

ENTERTAINMENT VERY PLEASING

E. L. THORPE. The whole town is unanimous in presenting congratulations and compliments to Miss Viola Mathews and her maidens for the unique entertainment they furnished us on Friday evening last in presenting a burlesque of the Orpheum circuit.

Although some of the girls appeared to better advantage than did some of the others it wouldn't do to specialize. Some of them gave evidence of ability far beyond the sphere of the Gresham footlights but we'll let them guess who it was that did the best so as to avoid the heart burnings of individual consciousness if we said that some certain ones were not so good as some of the others.

The entertainment was staged by 1913 seniors of the Gresham High school for the purpose of raising funds for class expenses. Miss Viola Mathews was the leader and trainer of the chorus and has worked unceasingly to make the entertainment the success that it was.

Two recitations were introduced between the chorus numbers, Miss Christie Burkholder and Miss Mary Belt rendering a selection each in a way that won for them full rounds of applause.

Those in the chorus were, Iris Gullikson, Bonnie Metzger, Hazel Goger, Eva Hamlin, Laura Davis, Olive Merrill, Ruth Dixon, Alice Roberts, Gladys Crenshaw, Constance Gilman and Cleo Mathews.

The proceeds of the entertainment was $28.

Andrew Tollyson is improving nicely and is able to attend to light work.

COUNCIL PASSES ORDINANCES

A second attempt will be made by the common council to open the proposed thoroughfare known as "Burr avenue," along the eastern boundaries of the fair grounds. Owing to an error at the previous attempt the work was declared illegal.

An ordinance was approved authorizing an appropriation of $3000 for the erection of the city hall and to expedite the work of construction.

Two plans for the fountain at the intersection of Main and Powell streets were submitted by Baker & Baker, architects, one of which was adopted and the committee on streets and Public Ways was authorized to draw specifications and advertise for bids for its construction.

At a special meeting of the council held, on Friday evening last the matter of an extra floor in the engine room was taken up and same authorized, the plans and contract being changed accordingly.

FARMERS BALE MUCH STRAW

Only five or six years ago the farmers of Oregon left their straw piles on the spot where their grain was threshed. On many farms could be seen from two to four gradually diminishing heaps that were eventually burned or scattered about as fertilizers, and even yet some such unsightly mounds are to be found on the farms of Peter Tumbledown and others of his class in the profession of agriculture.

When the national grange was here in 1894 an excursion to Corvallis revealed to the astonished gaze of the easterners an array of straw piles in all sorts of decomposition. They were surprised and spoke their astonishment to the other members of the order who live here with seemingly good results for a change, was noted at the next harvest.

Some of the farmers began baling their straw, the oat straw at first and then all of it when they found that it had a commercial value. Now it is no uncommon thing to see the baler following the threshing machine and many tons of good straw are saved that were formerly allowed to go to waste without a thought as to its value.

It is true that the increasing price of hay during the past few years has had something to do with the saving of the straw stacks, but it is also true that the advent of thrifty eastern farmers among us has had its effect also.

The straw after it is baled brings about six dollars a ton and is used principally for bedding, the Oregon stockman having finally realized that it is economy to furnish his stock something to lie on that is cheaper than hay and better than sawdust which was formerly used to a great extent.

Then, too, a good quality of straw cut and mixed with shorts or middlings makes a fairly good ration for stock that is not being used, and sometimes the hay bill can be kept down materially by its use. The Oregon farmer is learning that economy pays and that the days of wastefulness are almost over.

"Joker" in the Bill

In a communication from the Legislative Tax commission of which Chas. V. Galloway is chairman, it is stated that under guise of placing a graduated tax on the value of corporate property in Oregon, promoters of the single tax theory have concealed a joker in a long constitutional amendment, which will go before the people through the initiative in November, and which, if passed, will result in the theory of single tax becoming a practical reality in the state.

This concealing of a "joker" in sweeping amendments has become a habit in attempting to advance single tax legislation as demonstrated by the so-called county tax amendment which was passed in 1910. In that amendment abolition of poll and head tax was made the catch phrase to lure the voter, when in reality the amendment as a whole allowed each county to provide its own system of taxation or exemption.

This year an attempt is made to seduce the voter through a series of graduated assessments on properties valued at $10,000 or over.

The "joker" is concealed in the seventh section of the proposed amendment, labeled section (1) and is as follows: "The people of any county may at any time by a county law assess and tax personal property and improvements on, in and under land in their county, but except as such property may be assessed and taxed by and under such county laws the same is exempt from taxation in Oregon."

By the provision included in this sentence, as the proposed amendment is made self-executing, automatically all personal property and all buildings and improvements upon land would be exempt from taxation. This would even exempt all buildings and improvements upon lands of the corporations which are mentioned as falling under the provisions of the graduated tax section. Some of the most valuable properties of such corporations would be entirely exempt from taxation, even to the graduated tax.
