Meirose

Don't forget the entertainment Friday night, Oct. 25, at the Meirose school house. Capt. Branson will give his famous lecture, "The first and last steps of a drunkard's life," illustrated by charts. He gives this lecture several times a year and it is considered by the people to be the most helpful educational lecture going the field. Plenty of wit and humor are interspersed. Bessie Strebin will recite and Jeremiah and his Pa will have a dialogue. The men will eat apples suspended by a string and the women will pound nails. A dish of cream will be awarded to the winners. We will serve brick ice cream, three flavors. Come everybody and have a good time. Parents are especially invited to hear the lecture. Bessie Strebin will recite at 8 o'clock.

To Bake or Buy Bread?

Shall bread be baked in the home? Mrs. Henrietta W. Calvin, dean of the home economics department of the Oregon Agricultural College believes it is not only cheaper to bake at home, but that the bread is more wholesome, nourishing, and cleaner. She has figures to support her argument.

"All intelligent women are now interested in discussing questions relating to industries in the home and those which can with advantage be taken out of the home and carried on in large factories or centers, says Mrs. Calvin.

"In regard to the production of bread, certain factors must be considered, as the comparative cost of the home produced article and that purchased, the comparative quality and cleanliness, and the general sanitary conditions.

"In considering the cost of home baked bread, it may be figured as follows: Cost of flour for four loaves, 3 pounds, 11c; cost of liquid, one quart skimmed milk, 2½c; cost of yeast, 1 cake compressed, 2c; cost of salt, sugar and lard, 1c; total cost of materials 16½c. Cost of materials for one loaf, 4¼c.

"Thus it is figured that the actual cash cost of one loaf of home-made bread will be 4¼c if made with compressed yeast. Home-made yeast will save about .00 1-3 on each loaf, the actual cost being about 3¼c.

Saturday night seven fine chickens were stolen from Mrs. S. T. Crow. One of them was a fine Rhode Island Red rooster, the others were Black Minorca hens and pullets. It was their first night in the new place, Mrs. Crow having just moved to the Walker House. There were indications that the intruders entered through the gate, caught the chickens, pulling the head off one, and made their escape through the wire fence at the side through John Hamlin's yard. Mrs. Crow says she has strong suspicions of the party and has made complaint to the police.

Forger Re-arrested

Charles A. Noren, a paroled convict from Folsom, Cal., was captured in Portland on Saturday evening and is on his way back to prison. His wife has been living at Troutdale for the past year and went to Portland to meet him, not knowing that the officers were again on his track, and did not get to see him until after his arrest.

Noren was sent to prison in January, 1911, for passing forged checks but was paroled last August to a man in Stockton. He skipped out to Hoquim, Wash., and forged more checks and then came on to Portland to meet his wife. He will serve the remainder of his sentence now, which is about 18 months.

Exhibition of Honey.

Production of honey is an industry that thrives well here and the product always brings good money as well as being in constant demand. W. F. Cummins, of Troutdale, brought a fine display to the recent fair but for the lack of show cases did not put it on exhibition. He had 16 frames of 8 pounds each; 7 of 6 pounds each; 3 of 4 pounds each; also 12 one-pound boxes. In addition to these he had 9 quarts strained honey, one 2-quart jar, 7 pint jars and 12 jelly glasses full. His experience at the fair shows the need of better facilities for exhibiting such productions.

When you have a bad cold you want the best medicine obtainable so as to cure it with as little delay as possible. Here is a druggist's opinion: "I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for fifteen years," says Enos Lollar of Saratoga, Ind., "and consider it the best on the market." For sale by Gresham Drug Co., and Dealers everywhere.
