DISPLAY THE FLAG.

Sons of the American revolution are making laudable efforts to encourage the display of the American flag.

Other countries make much more frequent use of the flag than Americans do. We have the most beautiful flag in the world and no other national ensign is richer in associations than the Stars and Stripes. The states have very generally passed acts penalizing the desecration of the flag. We should show our veneration for it by using it oftener.

It should be publicly displayed on Lincoln's birthday, Washington's birthday, May 30th, and July 4th, and on all other suitable occasions. It should be unfurled on all public buildings, on the more important office buildings, and also from the homes of citizens. Every householder who can afford it should own a flag, and should use it on proper occasions. Children should grow up familiar with it and instructed in the associations which endear it to the people.

FORCIBLY ILLUSTRATED.

The need for a road from Fairview to the Columbia river and means to cross the river was forcibly illustrated when the following from the Fairview correspondent to the Evening Telegram appeared in that paper on Wednesday evening:
"Mr. Chappel, of Camas, who has been spending some time with her daughter, Mrs. Ralph Copeland, returned home Monday. She was accompanied as far as Portland by Mrs. Copeland."

In a direct line the two cities of Fairview and Camas are scarcely four miles apart. The Columbia river flows between them and all communication from either one to the other must go around by way of Portland and Vancouver. It is about sixteen miles from Fairview to Portland; it is six miles from Portland to Vancouver and eighteen miles from that place to Camas. These distances are by land, by water from Portland it is ten miles further. Several transfers are required and delays are unavoidable, so that it takes a whole day to make a journey that could be made in an hour if a road were open and a ferry in operation.

Mail matter between the two places must go in the same round about way. This is probably the most striking instance in the United States where two growing cities so near together are forty miles apart and their inhabitants practically unknown to each other.

THE NEED IN PANIC PERIODS.

In our periodic panics, what the business man needs is not so much money as credit. If he can borrow from his bank on sound paper, and draw checks and drafts against the deposit which the loan creates, he can weather the storm. But our banks, under the present system, whereby their reserves are scattered through 27,000 institutions, must stop lending when they reach the legally fixed limit. Our banking reserves are not actually reserves at all, because they are not usable under all circumstances.
An imperative need in this country is concentration of reserves, either in regional associations or in a central institution, as may be deemed best; and a rediscount market for commercial paper. These are needed for the protection of our merchants and manufacturers.

O. P. Hoff, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor, at Salem, has just issued his biennial report. It is full of information concerning the labor field of Oregon and in demand at all libraries for the information it imparts. It will be widely read as it is useful to all classes, whether employer or employee.

OH, JOY!

We hail thy beaming face, oh sun,
For warmth and light once more;
We hope that summer has begun
And rains may cease to pour.

We praise thy radiant, dancing rays
That scatter dusk and gloom;
That steep this boggy earth, and plays
To put the world in tune.

We love to see thy countenance
Set in deep blue sky,
Heeding not that which confronts;
And yet,—I wonder why?

Did you ever stop to think
How great is Nature's purse?
How with the ease your eyelids wink?
She turns the universe.

It's wonderful what she can do
By help of unseen powers;
Yet if you watch, you'll find it's true
By reading the grass and flowers.
—JACKSON F. JONES.

The employing printers' congress will meet at Seattle, July 14, and continue four days. Probably 700 people will be in attendance. It will be during Potlatch week and those intending to go should make hotel reservations now by addressing Fred W. Kennedy at the University of Washington.

State Game Warden Finley plans a general convention of sportsmen for next fall in Portland, when he wants to enlist the assistance of hunters and fishermen throughout Oregon to carry out the work outlined by the State Board of Fish and Game Commissioners. Delegates are expected from the various sportsmen's clubs in all parts of the state. It is believed that with the aid of these organizations, Oregon can be made the greatest hunting and fishing ground in the country.

President Wilson has changed two members of the civil service commission which indicates a clean sweep of existing methods of appointment to places under the government.
