"The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins."

Official paper of the Town of Gresham, Oregon.
Official paper of the Town of Fairview, Oregon.

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the postoffice at Gresham, Oregon, under the act of March 3, 1879.

GRESHAM'S OPPORTUNITY.

It is the belief of the Outlook that the people of Gresham and vicinity who may have a few hundred or a few thousand dollars to invest will be careful in the duty they owe themselves and the community if they allow the proposed automobile factory to locate anywhere else than here.

It has been said by Shakespeare that Fortune knocks once at every man's door. She is knocking loudly at many Gresham doors just now but some of the people won't be at home those who are at home will have the privilege of giving the fair game a welcome for themselves and on behalf of the others who may not see or hear her.

As was stated at the gathering yesterday, no town can grow to very large proportions that depends wholly on the farms surrounding it. A pay roll is needed to make a town grow and prosper. Manufacturers bring people to engage work and they must have homes all the necessities that go to them. All lines of business are increased and other workmen as well as other business men are multiplied in supplying their wants. Every avenue of enterprise is encouraged to grow and the expansion of business is assured. Hard times are not felt in the place that has ready money every week for payment of store bills, house rent and other things that go to make up existence. Factories means prosperity.

Gresham's Object Lesson.

Gresham has furnished an object lesson for Portland and other municipalities on the purchase of private property for public use. Her property owners have named Portland property owners who often account the city legitimate prey for private greed.

Gresham has citizens stirred by civic patriotism, citizens willing to sell to the public at prices below ruling prices to individuals.

At the annual school meeting there last Monday nine sites were offered for a high school building. The offers were listed on a blackboard, and it is insisted that all the prices were below figures quoted to individual enterprise.

Civic patriotism of nine property owners won the fight for a new high school. Gresham will have the school.

Fraternal discussed the proposition for three hours and determined to let the people decide between the nine sites. A special election will be held. The vote will be by ballot, with first, second and third choices. The nine tracts will be listed and their location and cost printed on the ballots. An entire afternoon will be given over to the election.

Gresham's object lesson is timely. Does ownership of property in Portland destroy civic patriotism?—Oregon Journal.

As next Friday will be the Fourth of July, and the Outlook force being desirous of celebrating with the other ten thousand mortals who will be here on that day, it has been received, moved and carried that the issue of this paper due on Friday, July 4th, be published one day ahead of time. Correspondents and all others interested will please take notice of this declaration of independence and act accordingly.

A solution of the revenue problem for congress seems to be an income tax. The people are demanding more reduction in tariffs, and as the country must have money to carry on its business there is no reason why big incomes should not help pay the cost.

The next big thing in Portland is different—the World's Christian Conference. It should do Portland much good.

People of every section of Oregon are excusable for contending that it is best and most prosperous section of the state.

LIBRARY BOOKS THAT SHOULD ATTRACT YOU

It has been said that books—"Should to one of these four ends conduce, for wisdom, piety, delight and use."

So we are reviewing these few books with the hope that each of these ends will be met.

F. A. Collins' "Wireless Man, His Work and Adventures on Land and Sea," shows the great advantages of wireless, the apparatus and how it works. Some of the wireless rescues, novel uses, wireless in the army and navy. Each heading is brought out clearly and interestingly. The books is supposedly for the growing boy but is entertaining and instructive for all.

W. T. Hornaday's "Our Vanishing Wild Life, Its Extinction and Preservation." The preservation of animal and plant life, and of general beauty of nature, is one of the foremost duties of the men and women of today. We are told of the former abundance of wild life and how the different species are becoming extinct and why. And the factors in their preservation are taken up, demonstrating how we are to execute all these laws and sentiments.

Mary C. Clarke's "Girlhood of Shakespeare's Heroines" give us a different idea and view of each of these women that we have become so well acquainted with. We now discover why Portia was such a strong type of woman; we are shown the effect of childhood's training on Lady Macbeth, Desdemona, Katherina, Bianca, Ophelia, Juliet and others. Of course, the volume is designed to trace only the probable antecedents and demonstrate the influence of imaginary and possible circumstances, events and associations surrounding the childhood of each of these heroines; but it makes these same heroines tenfold more attractive than ever before.

Arnold Bennett's "Your United States," shows us what one Englishman thinks of our country. He praises and then very humorously tells us of our faults. The book is full of humor and is very entertaining for those inclined to lighter reading.

Maximilian DeLoup's "American Salad Book," is most original and useful. The recipes have been collected from all parts of the world and we are told that America is the land of salads. The mixing, decorating and garnishing, the accompaniments and condiments, the service and the different types are under headings of their own.

Oregon is likely to become the center of a great fishing industry within the near future if the investigations of the government confirms the report of extensive halibut banks off the coast of Lincoln county. A large number of launches are now being fitted out at Newport, on Yaquina Bay, for the purpose of exploiting these recently discovered banks, and those which have already started operations are returning to port with capacity loads of splendid fish. The extent of the banks is stated to be sufficient to supply the Pacific Northwest with fish for years to come.

That the dairy business in Oregon is growing at a tremendous rate and that in value it far exceeds the state's next largest crop—livestock—is the statement of State Dairy and Food Commissioner Mickel in a recently issued bulletin. The value of dairy products for 1912 was $19,000,000 while that of livestock was $12,000,000. Prospects for a material increase this year are good.

According to a statement by State Game Warden Finley, "about 3,000 Chinese pheasants will be liberated this season in the various counties of the state, about 1500 of them going to Eastern Oregon. In addition to this increase of the game resources of Oregon, about 12,000,000 young trout will be liberated by the state fish hatcheries.

Oregon Bankers Would Stop Fraudulent Land Dealers.

That would-be settlers coming to Oregon have, in many instances, been victimized by unscrupulous land speculators and that the state as a whole has been injured by their operations, is a statement made at the annual convention of Oregon bankers recently held at Corvallis, and the attending delegates expressed a determination to co-operate with the commercial bodies throughout the state in an effort to put greedy real estate men out of business. The plan does not contemplate the entire elimination of land selling agencies, but does propose to annihilate the sharks who have been speculating in good Oregon soil, taking it out of production and holding it for an unreasonable increase in price.

It was decided to form an appraisal committee in each community to pass on the prices of lands, the committee to consist of two members of the local commercial body and one banker, and intending purchasers will be advised to purchase no real estate from any dealer until the value of same has been passed upon by the appraisers and the price asked decided to be a reasonable one. It was stated as a fact that much of the agricultural land in Oregon is held at too high a figure. There is doubtless plenty of good land which can be obtained at a fair price, but the newcomer, usually unfamiliar with local values and conditions, seldom bears of that land. The committee will see that he gets a square deal.
