MORMONISM A MENACE.

If the charges made against Mormonism at the Christian conference session on Tuesday by Rev. Robert F. Coyle of Denver are true that sect is the greatest menace to our form of government than any other force in existence.

The speaker's attack was not made on the Mormon people but upon the cult as it is said to exist. He holds that as it is a menace to Americans as patriots and Christians the nation cannot be indifferent. He says:

"First of all because of its system. It is the most completely centralized, the most compact and most unified religious body in the world. As a piece of ecclesiastical machinery there is nothing to compare with it.

"Now, when this organization is used in affairs of state, used under the guise of religion, to coerce voters, to whip office-seekers into line, to give the church control of the ballot box, you can easily see what a menace it is to the government. Its solidarity invests it with an influence out of all proportion to its membership.

"In politics the Mormon church knows no party but the Mormon party. Because its people are dictated to and dominated by the church; because they act as a unit and cast their votes as directed. Utah is wholly under its control, and it holds the balance of power in the mountain states roundabout. With the congressmen and senators of ten or twelve states already obedient to its will, or afraid to incur its displeasure, how long will it be before the Mormon church hold the balance of power in the nation? This time will come, and come soon, unless the patriotic citizenship and statesmanship of the country awake to the peril."

We, of the Pacific coast have felt and known in some degree that Dr. Coyle is right. Further eastward, beyond the Rocky mountains, the effects of the Mormon church are scarcely known, its activities there being principally confined to proselyting for converts.

On this coast, however, especially in the states bordering Utah, the remarkable situation described is felt with great acuteness and we all know that Dr. Coyle is nearly right.

The situation is somewhat akin to the Chinese and Japanese situation here. It is not understood further east. If the Christian Conference accomplishes no other result than awakening the nation to its peril from Mormonism, it will have accomplished something great. Mormonism is not religion. It is a powerful organization.

SELLING AGENCIES.

A more thorough organization of farming and the establishment of credit and marketing systems on a business basis are among the objects of the Rural organization Service—the latest wrinkle to the many sided agricultural department. There is also the ever present question as to what is to be done to keep the farmers on the farms, or in other words, how following agricultural pursuits as a business may be made attractive from a monetary as well as social standpoint and thus overcome the young man's longing for the city.

Dr. Thomas N. Carver, who severed his long connection with Harvard university to become head of the new department service, said that he took the job "because it will solve for the farmers all the remaining age old problems that heretofore have proved the great stumbling block in the perfection of American farming methods." The plan is a new one. It will be an experimental stage for some years to come. Professor Carver says the plan is the right one, but admits frankly that it will take many months of digging and effort to get the system running true to form.

The Gettysburg reunion of veterans promises to be as fatal in proportion to the members present as was the battle fifty years ago. Hundreds are being prostrated by the heat, the hospitals are full and many fatalities are feared.

THE REVELER.

A brown stone front and marble steps
With doors that open wide;
A gilded hall bedecked with art,
Where the sins of a world may hide;

Where sons of passion nightly come
To tempt fair Fortune's frown,
Who in the anger of the game
May strike a brother down.

And there they sit with eyes strained wide,
And eager, clutching hand—
To shake the dice or deal the cards—
By Fortune's magic wand—
That points the way to speedy wealth
They stake their all, and gain,
Or lose their very soul and find
A grave and life's hopes stain.

"Come on, pile up the glittering heap—
A gambler's stake; who wins may sweep
Away that shining pile alone,
And call the cursed stuff his own.
What reek we now? Bring on the wine
To grace the board! Let those repine
Who care to sit and wring their hands
O'er others faults, and make amends
By penance for that which has been done,
And save a wreck by folly won."

"Come sit around, till the cards have told
Who wins that pile of shining gold!
Fill up each glass, nor fear to look O'er its foaming rim with eyes that brook
No fear of foe! Let's join the hand
And pledge with this that lasting band
Of friendship now that will not break
With roughest shock, though life's the stake!"

What care they now for other's
tears,
If others wall and weep;
If mothers watch their son's return
With eyes that know no sleep?
Here is their temple and their God—
They fall before his throne
And offer as a sacrifice
Their lives of manhood shorn.

But hark! What sound? A well-known voice
There falls upon one's ear.
It echoes through the gilded halls—
A mother's voice they hear!
Hushed is the sound of revelry,
Their songs of mirth and joy;
Untasted is the sparkling wine—
That voice, "My boy, my boy!"

The mother's footsteps echo there
And enter at the door,
Her tottering form and tear-dimmed eye—
"My boy!"—she knows no more.
His arms have caught the fainting
form,
His hands smooth back her hair,
And sobered from the revel wild
He leaves, forever, there.
EUGENE L. THORPE.

QUESTIONS

Will the night be dark,
And the tempest howl
When I put out to sea;
While in my bark
Will I hear the growl
Of waves as they laugh at me?

Will there be no star
To guide my craft
On its homeward destiny;
Shall its only spar
Be a broken shaft,
Drifting me so drearily?

Shall the ebbing tide
With mocking jests
Toss me upon the rocks;
While the ships that ride
The foaming crests
Sail on in snowy flocks?

Will the biting wind
And the sea gull's cry
Be my only company;
Will the time I spend
'Neath the stormy sky
Mean but naught to me?

Shall I ne'er see
The break of day
On beach so bleak and drear;
Shall it ever be
That blinding spray
To hiss upon my ear?
—JACKSON F. JONES.

All Sections of Oregon Urged to Prepare Land Show Exhibits.

From all indications Oregon will make a better showing in the Eastern Land Show this year than ever before. The Oregon State Immigration Commission, with headquarters at the Commercial club, Portland, is urging commercial bodies of the state, as well as individuals, to make suitable exhibits which will be included in the state display with no expense save that of gathering the specimens and taking them to the depot. They will be shipped from the nearest railroad point to Portland, assembled in a general exhibit and will be sent east by the commission but each organization or grower will receive full credit for the products entered.

A circular is now being issued by the commission giving directions for gathering and shipping the exhibits. Attention is called to the need for careful packing, the selection of only the best specimens and advice and assistance is offered. It is pointed out that the co-operation of all parts of the state is necessary in order that the agricultural wealth of Oregon may be shown to the best advantage and that success may be attained in competition for prizes with the exhibits made by other states. It is suggested that the decision to choose exhibits for this purpose should be made early in the season and that a few choice specimens from each community are much better to show the East what Oregon can grow than a large quantity of sample grains, fruits and vegetables of mediocre quality.

During the summer months mothers of young children should watch for any unnatural looseness of the bowels. When given prompt attention at this time serious trouble may be avoided. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy can always be depended upon. For sale by Gresham Drug Co., and Dealers everywhere.

Green ground bones, six pounds for a quarter. Sanitary Meat Co.

No prolonged, non-using, speculative holding of land under an irrigation project should be allowed.

The Forest Service department has recently taken up the work of reclassification of lands in the national forest reserves with a view to opening up for settlement such agricultural lands as may now be included within the reserve boundaries. Under the plan for this work the bureau of soils will determine what soils are agricultural in character, experts of the forest service will determine whether or not the value of the timber on such lands is greater than the agricultural valuation, and if not, any lands which are found valuable for agriculture and not needed for public purposes will be immediately opened to settlement and entry under the homestead laws.
