"The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins."

Official paper of the Town of Gresham, Oregon.

Official paper of the Town of Fairview, Oregon.

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the postoffice at Gresham, Oregon, under the act of March 3, 1879.

MAKE PLANS NOW.

Right now is the time to make plans for exhibits at the state on county fairs. Decide what you will exhibit and try to grow the very best possible. Some of the best advertising ever obtained by individuals communities or counties has been the notice they awakened at the fairs. We remember that Benton county is known even beyond the borders of Oregon largely because it has won the first prize at the state fair on five separate occasions.

The prizes given at the fairs are all worth working for. It is a proposition that everyone should consider carefully, and now is the time to begin.

STATE FAIR EXHIBITS.

It is to be regretted that Multnomah county will make no exhibit at the state fair this year. However, it takes money to prepare and arrange an exhibit but the advertising is worth the outlay. There is an evident lack of interest on the part of all the other agricultural counties of the state except Benton and Marion. This lack of interest is mainly due to the fact that Benton county always wins first money. Marion county is barred from competition for prizes but it makes the best display and the cost is never considered. A manager is employed by the year and the county court pays his bills without question.

There is a suspicion that Benton county is assisted by the agricultural college, although the charge is denied by the men in charge of the exhibits. At any rate the county cheerfully pays the bills, which are always more than the prizes won but the advertising is worth the difference.

The other counties of the state have never made an effort to win first money and of course they are dissatisfied, knowing that Benton will beat them out. An effort, backed up with a liberal appropriation, would put Multnomah county in the lead, as we have every product here that is needed to win. It is to be hoped that our county court will wake up next year with an adequate sum to make the effort.

As an instance of the great capacity of the linotype for work under the hands of an expert operator it may be mentioned that four papers were issued from the Outlook office again in four days—two Outlooks, another weekly and the Multnomah Booster. On Monday the entire list of names of the new telephone directory was set up. This was all machine work and the amount of hand setting was almost equal in volume during the same time, although set in larger type. We are some printing office.

The cannery of the Fruit Growers' association at Eugene, is running to full capacity and 24 quarts of loganberries or raspberries are being turned out for every minute of the working day. Due to increased acreage and unusually favorable weather conditions the berry crop in the Eugene district is unusually large this year.

The threat of Dr. Marie Equi, to kill anyone who molests her with a poisoned pin, places her in a class with rabid dogs and beyond the consideration or protection of the law if she is in earnest.

Portland's supply of cordwood for next winter is going through Gresham at the rate of ten carloads every day.

We should worry if we were hoping to win an automobile in the Book Lover's contest.

Muzzle the I. W. W. as well as the dogs. Both tare equally dangerous.

NEWS FROM SANDY

The Center of Large Lumbering, Dairying and Farming Activities

SANDY, July 14—Justice Pomeroy's court was in session all day last Saturday. Two very interesting cases came up for trial. The Bank of Gresham sued A Malar and E. D. Hart on two promissory notes for $100 each, given to the Co-operative Supply company, the defunct Portland corporation.

The Bank of Gresham set up that they were bona fide purchasers for value of the notes and hence, took the notes as against the original obligors, free and clear of the defense of fraud existing against the Co-operative Supply company.

The defendants set up the fraudulent character of the means with which these notes were secured on the part of the agents of the Co-operative Supply company and produced evidence tending to show that the Bank of Gresham did not pay value for these notes and held them only for collection and knew or must have known of the fraudulent character of the Co-operative Supply company.

The verdicts in both cases were found for the defendants.

These cases were of wide interest to the farmers of the surrounding country. The agents of the Co-operative Supply company operated very extensively in this locality, securing notes from the farmers, in the aggregate approximating nearly $5,000.

The Bank of Gresham was represented by attorneys Fred L. Everson, of Portland, and O. A. Eastman, of Gresham, and Hart and Malar were represented by attorneys Wm. M. Stone, of Oregon City, and C. D. Purcell, of Sandy.

SANDY, July 14—Dr. James Moore, of Salem, preached at the Methodist church last Sunday morning selecting as his theme, "The Importance of Faith in the Daily Life." Usingeas an example the tottering infant on the threshold of life learning to walk by the exercise of faith. Rev. Moore demonstrated that faith pervades throughout all human activities. The familiar biblical comparison of faith with a grain of mustard seed was well expounded. The important element of the mustard seed is the potentiality of life. With the potentiality of life is the power to grow, and as the mustard seed, so minute in size, can grow into such a large plant in comparison with the seed from which it sprung, so can a little faith which is implanted in every human life grow and develop into a larger and higher faith; so shall the one who exercises the talent within him accomplish almost any object which he desires.

A striking example was used in relating the experience of a middle west farmer visiting the Niagara Falls for the first time. The farmer and his friend started out early in the morning to see the Falls. Upon the first glimpse of that wonderful natural phenomenon, the farmer turned abruptly and started back. His friend asked, "Where are you going?" "To bring my wife and children to see this water before it all runs over," replied the farmer. His friend then told him, that the stream of water pouring over there had been pouring over unceasingly for countless ages. That it was fed from an expanse of thousands of miles of Great Lakes. That the lakes were fed by streams and by springs that had their source in the mountains. That the mountains and plains received a constant supply of water from the ocean through the agency of heat and cold and air and wind,. and behind all was the "Eternal law of God." Such is the power of an enduring faith. It connects the life of the individual with the resources of an eternal God.
