HELP IT ALONG.

Now that Gresham has secured the factory site of the Beaver State Motor company it should become the duty of every citizen to ally himself with the forces that will promote a spirit of progress along every avenue in behalf of the welfare of the town.

It has been Gresham's greatest drawback that outside influences have never heretofore been exerted in her favor. While other sections of the state have been promoted it has been the fate of Eastern Multnomah to remain at a standstill except as its natural growth would help it along. The advent of the two railroads through here was an incident that assisted somewhat, but in which the people had no share except as the roads increased valuations of property in certain localities. Now it is going to be different.

An enterprise that brings a big factory here is one in which every person may share according to his means. Nor should his interest be limited to the amount of stock of may be able to buy. It is everyone's business to assist in building up the community and this can only be done by a persistent course in speaking well of all enterprises on every occasion and keeping in view the idea that encouragement of industries is never promoted by disparaging remarks.

The Outlook would urge not only an active co-operation between the Beaver people and the residents of Gresham, but would also urge that each one should help the enterprises along in every legitimate way, including subscriptions to the capital stock.

Judge Fry of the "Speeders" Court, Chicago, has established a precedent worth following. He compelled a chauffeur who, while intoxicated, ran an automobile recklessly and dangerously through the streets of the city, to blind himself under oath not to taste liquor for at least one year. If this course were faithfully pursued, all the reckless and intemperate drivers of machines might in time be compelled to become total abstainers. A strikingly large number of automobile accidents are due primarily to the semi-intoxication of the chauffeurs or drivers.

State Printer Harris signaled his entry into office by announcing that he would unionize the office. He is paving the way for a conflict between the typographical union and the state government. There will be some more initiative matters followed by referendum objections by the time the next general election gets here.

Setting Eggs Direct to Consumer.
The direct market plan is giving excellent satisfaction to consumers in Portland. In the course of a year, one customer received but two eggs in damaged condition, and they were but slightly cracked. The eggs were cheaper than the public market eggs, and in such good condition that his small family used them by the case without any loss.

That the system is practicable for farmers and city consumers, Professor Dryden has no doubt. The poultry department of the O. A. C. is willing to co-operate with farmers, through the college extension division, in securing direct markets in Portland for a limited number of guaranteed eggs.
