FIRE CONTROL IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

A timely article in the American city magazine in reference to fire control in public schools is just as applicable in Gresham as elsewhere. It follows:

The problem of schools in its essentials is in many ways akin to that of factories, with the outstanding difference that in dealing with children even greater care must be exercised by the supervisors or "room captains." These should be chosen from amongst the teachers, and their duties with regard to their charges should be along precisely similar lines to those already laid down, though it should be borne in mind that personal influence here plays a greater part. Where plans of other instruments are available, an excellent plan is the use of march time music to assist in steadying the lines of scholars after a fire alarm. Incidentally, school should always be dismissed once a day in accordance with the practices of fire drill. In the matter of exits, preference should be given to the classes of smaller children, and it is particularly urged that exits for infants should be smoke-proof and of sufficient width to accommodate double lines of two children each. Further as far as the construction of the building will allow, the convergence of two columns in narrow halls or stairways should be particularly avoided. This is only too liable to cause confusion, which, in the event of the building being a quick-burner, may result in terrible loss of life. In schools of advanced grades, where there are boys of a certain age, it is a good system to organize a small force to use the chemical extinguishers common to all public institutions and from the nature of the duty youngsters are likely to become enthusiastic, over, and expert in, their management.

Should fire occur during school hours, the officer in command of the fire force can ascertain quickly from either the principal or teachers the location of the fire, which will govern his subsequent actions. Should it be in the upper floors, the entrance must not be attempted by doors or stairways, by which the children are leaving, though use may of course, be made of any unused stairway. By a ladder raised to an upper window a line of hose should be quickly brought to bear on the blaze, care being exercised to drive it back from the exits. Other lines as necessary will be placed similarly, and the fire thus held in check till all the scholars are out of the danger zone. Then, should the fire assume dangerous proportions, it may be fought as in other buildings, i. e., by stairways both front and rear, and if necessary from both sides.

Too much emphasis cannot be laid upon the necessity of preventing excited parents and others rushing to the entrances by which the children are leaving the building, breaking the line, causing confusion and retarding the exit of those still within. However good their intent, their interference must work mischief. It is imperative that the children be kept marching until all are safely out of danger. Officers in command should see that an adequate force of police and firemen are told off for this important duty.

Wm. A. Morand's new concrete block building covers a space 50x50 feet, is one story high and has a full concrete basement. The blocks were made here and are first grade. The corner store is occupied by the post-office and the other store, adjoining is to be fitted up as a drug store by Mr. Morand who will conduct the business himself.

Another vessel was wrecked near Manzanita beach on Wednesday. The British ship Geneselin sailed out of her course and is wedged high and dry between the rocks off the extreme point of Neah-Kah-Nie mountain. All the crew was saved. Two wrecks in a season will give that place a reputation.

GEORGE F. HONEY DONATES PRIZE

Editor Gresham Outlook:—On answering my phone one morning a few weeks ago, to my surprise, I was informed by our banker that a deposit certificate for $25.00 had been placed to my credit as a prize for having one of the best kept new lawns.

It is very gratifying to me to be classed with the many who are endeavoring to make "Beautiful Gresham" more beautiful. And although the prize was unexpected I was pleased with the compliment.

I am going to turn the whole amount over to the small boys and girls of Gresham. Here is the proposition:

"The Young Crusader" is a sixteen page illustrated paper—National official organ of the L. T. L. Subscription price is twenty-five cents or, twenty cents in large clubs (is worth ten times its cost.) This desirable little paper will be sent for one year to the first one hundred and twenty-five boys or girls who will write their name and address plainly on a postal card and mail same to Mrs. J. M. Shoemaker, president of the W. C. T. U. Gresham, Oregon.

Only one subscription to a family. Just a one cent postal card. Don't miss this. GEO. F. HONEY.

L. T. L. means "Loyal Temperance Legion." It is the junior division of the W. C. T. U., the largest and best woman's organization on earth. Every mother and sister who objects to having the whisky business flaunted in the face of her family, or friends, should wear the white ribbon. And every man in Gresham should be an honorary member of the W. C. T. U., and learn to get the shake out of his knees and and look happy, when he is asked to help his wife "kill the bear."

BORING LOCAL NEWS NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Donahue, of Medford, are here on a visit, renewing old acquaintances.

Theodore Rehberg, messenger for the American Express Company has bought a home here and has "moved in."

A. J. Gossett and wife have been receiving the congratulations of their friends upon the arrival of a new girl baby.

"Uncle" Morgan, the inspector, is at present in a Portland hospital having one of his legs treated. He is expected back soon.

Claude Danielson, formerly operator at the Pleasant Home station, and Miss Fannie Meyer were married September 20. They have gone to Corvallis where they will make their home.

Boring has a remarkable system of spurs and switches to facilitate loading of cars. The extra trackage throughout the yards probably reach for more than a mile. Everything is convenient.

The Live Wire theater has been closed for several weeks but will open again soon under the management of Frank and Theodore Rehberg, assisted by Dolly and Evelyn Rehberg and other local talent. Plays will be given every two weeks.

One of the largest apple orchards in this section is being brought to perfection about one mile west of Boring. It is owned by A. S. Ellis, contains 100 acres of three-year-old trees, and is growing thriftily. Only commercial varieties were set out.

Since January 1st, 647 cars have been loaded with railroad ties, each holding 600 ties. F. M. Morgan is superintendent of the work, representing the Sandy Ridge Mills, the Olsen Lumber Co., and the Sandy Fir Lumber Co. The ties are delivered here by teams from the mills. Sixty teams are employed in this work.

Consideration, $12,500, and may be sold on terms to suit purchaser with interest at 6 per cent on deferred payments, secured by first mortgage. This option expires October 15, 1913.

HUNTERS CAUTIONED BY GAME LAWS

With the open season on upland game birds now on, more than ordinary vigilance will be exercised by the state game warden's department in enforcing the observance of the law pertaining to this class of birds. Upland game birds, which include China pheasants, blue and ruffed grouse, and quail, will be open to the huntsman until October 31.

The laws relating to upland game birds passed at the last session of the legislature are very stringent and will be strictly enforced, particularly as regards size of bag, trespassing and shooting of female pheasants.

Hunters are restricted to a bag of five for any one day of pheasants and blue and ruffed grouse combined and to not more than 10 of these three varieties combined for any seven consecutive days. That is to say, a huntsman may shoot a combined bag of five each day for two days, and would then be forced to stop for five days or shoot some other variety of game not included among these three.

Sportsmen will be permitted to have five of these three varieties combined in their possession at one time. More than five will be considered prima facie evidence that the whole number was bagged on one day. Those who kill their five on any one day will be compelled either to consume or ship home their bag before finishing their seven consecutive day allotment.

The restriction on quail is similar, with 10 the limit on seven consecutive days' shooting, but a hunter would be permitted to have five pheasants and blue and ruffed grouse combined and 10 quail in his bag at one time.

It will be unlawful to shoot from any vehicle or from any public high-
