THE SPIRIT OF SANDY.

Sandy has a way of doing things that is all its own. For whole-souled hospitality that strives to make every visitor feel at home the people out there are in a class by themselves. When the races and other sports were on Saturday nearly every place in town closed up, including the bank and the crowd was just the jolliest ever. At the dance in the evening there was a free and courteous spirit prevalent that made everybody feel at home and everyone seemed to enjoy the revelry to the limit without any sign of rowdiness or other evidences that would detract from the pleasure of the evening.

When two thousand people assemble at a country gathering and behave so well that visitors are compelled to speak favorably of them and the residents of the town it goes a long way in favor of the community that can entertain such a crowd so that everybody wants to go there again.

The mayor of Sandy was heard to remark that if the city marshal disturbed anyone while the fair was in progress he would be locked up. Well, no one was disturbed in the merrymaking, as there was no occasion for such a procedure, and the city marshal wasn't locked up either.

Although the town has a saloon or two and quite a small portion of the national debt was paid off during the two days of the fair, there was no disorder. The people out there are civilized, hospitable, generous, energetic and know that it pays them best to entertain each other and their visitors in such a way that nothing but words of praise will be spoken when the crowds have gone.

Next year's fair time will be eagerly looked for and we predict that the crowds will be there again ready for the real fun of enjoying a wholesome good time.

Ninety new doctors turned loose last week in Oregon. How many more cases of appendicitis will be the result?

Some of the Outlook advertisers have adopted the plan of changing their announcements with every issue. Those who do not read them may miss some desirable bargains.

Two estray notices in the Outlook, advertising lost cattle, found the owners since our last issue. The moral is obvious. Advertising pays. Read the Outlook and save money.

Old Jupiter Pluvius poured out his watery wrath in copious quantities yesterday, seemingly revengeful for having missed all the fairs held during September. If he was caught napping he will never get over it until next summer. But then maybe he was only foolin'.

After several years of litigation involving claims in the Siletz country, the announcement has just been made that the settlers have finally been victorious and that patents to the land will immediately be issued by the government. With all uncertainty as to the future removed development will certainly proceed with great speed. The railroads have long been anxious to tap that rich timber section, and they are now free to go ahead with the work.

The Sandy district has frequently been spoken of as one of the places distinctly suited for the growing of apples. It is said that apples equally as good as the Hood River product may be raised out there, and the specimens shown at the fair last week would seem to prove the assertion. But it was observed that some of the apples on display were affected by various diseases. If Sandy is to become an apple center the growers should make an effort to grow them as they are grown at Hood River, where 98 per cent are perfect. Wormy or diseased apples will never sell in the markets of the world.

Lusted

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cook and family autoed out from Portland in their new Ford Sunday and visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hamilton.

Mrs. L. Lusted, of Gresham, visited Grandpa and Grandma Lusted last week. Grandma has not been so well for the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hamilton and family from Sandy visited their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hamilton, last Sunday.

Mrs. Ed. Hamilton and daughter Mildred attended the fair at Salem several days' last week and also visited her son and daughter and granddaughter, and she also was one of the hundred of visitors to be shown through the asylum. Mrs. Hamilton had the privilege of talking for an hour with a young man who was taken there when he was 17 years of age. He has been there fourteen years last August with very little hope of returning to his home again. The young man recognized her and even remembered her name after so many years.

Mrs. J. W. Robertson and Miss Marian Robertson visited in Portland last Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Woodward. Mrs. Woodward was for several years a teacher in the Gresham high school.

Development of the country tributary to the Sumpter Valley railroad is now in full swing. Mining and logging are extremely active, but probably the most hopeful sign of future prosperity in that section is the great interest being taken by the farmers in stock raising and dairying. Two carloads of high grade Holsteins were recently imported by the First National bank of Prairie City and these cattle have been distributed among the farmers at reasonable prices and on easy terms. It is expected that within a short time the output of the dairy will be among the most important products of that section.

A remarkable record has been made the past summer in keeping down forest fires in the great timber areas of the Northwest, is being stated on good authority that the total loss will fall under 3,000,000 feet with a valuation less than $5,000, this in comparison with the former low record of 26,000,000 feet in 1911. This splendid showing was made possible by the active co-operation of railroads, loggers, campers and land-owners with the government rangers and the promptness with which all small blazes have been located and put out.

A Marvelous Escape.

"My little boy had a marvelous escape," writes P. F. Bastians of Prince Albert, Cape of Good Hope. "It occurred in the middle of the night. He got a very severe attack of croup. As luck would have it, I had a large bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house. After following the directions for an hour and twenty minutes he was through all danger." Sold by Gresham Drug Co., and all Dealers.

Two men well known in Gresham—one by the name of Stone, the other by the name of Wood, met an X-ray skirt on the street the other day. They were so astonished at the apparition that Wood turned to Stone and Stone turned to Wood and both turned to rubber.

A. Stid, of Mason, Mich., writes: "My whole family depends upon Dr. King's New Discovery as the best cough and cold medicine in the world. Two 50c bottles cured me of pneumonia." Thousands of other families have been equally benefited and depend entirely upon Dr. King's New Discovery to cure their coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles. Every dose helps. Price 50c and $1.00. All druggists. H. E. Bucklen & Co. Philadelphia or St. Louis.

RELATION OF CITY TO THE CHURCH

The following article is copied from the American City magazine and is entitled "The City and The Church." It is worthy of careful perusal.

Before embarking on a financial venture the business man asks, "Will it pay?"

The question in the mind of the artist is, "How can I get a desired effect?"

The scientist asks the question, "Will this advance knowledge or be serviceable?"

In philosophy we hear the pragmatist asking, "Does it work?"

In all branches of human activity we find practical tests are being applied. This is called the day and age of efficiency. If all the rest of life accepts practical tests, the church must also. Religion is a part of life. The church claims to be a living and vital institution; as such it must be judged by the same standards as other branches of human activity. The church is in the city, but in how far is it a part of the life of the city?

We often hear of the church deficit, by which is meant the difference between the receipts and the disbursements, but this is not the true church deficit. We should think of the church deficit as the difference between the moral influence the church might exert and the influence it actually does exert.

The new efficiency test of the church is this: What difference does the presence of this church make in this community? The public to which the church looks for support demands definite accomplishments in every other branch of human activity. The churches themselves have recognized this. We find a Congregational church in Maine which has taken upon itself to ensure the purity of the milk delivered in that town. We find a church in New York boldly publishing as its aim: "Our parish is the city. We refuse to be bound by social, racial or creedal differences. Our message is to men as men in the name of our common Father."

The accomplishments which the church should strive for should be based on the needs of the city. The first need of the city is for morally well-trained individuals. What concern does the church feel for the civic condition of the community? Notwithstanding the tremendous changes in our conditions of life—as, for example, the industrial revolution, the growth of cities and the intensification of life—the methods and teachings of the church have changed but little from what they were centuries ago. It may be answered that the church has but one truth to teach, and that handed down through the centuries. James Russell Lowell has pertinently replied to this:

"Truth is eternal, but her effluence
 With endless change is fitted to the hour."

The greatest conflict in the modern warfare is to make our cities healthful and wholesome places of abode and to bring their government, which is nothing but the common management by us all for the good of us all, to a condition of honesty and efficiency.

Direct action of the church in politics has been traditionally discounted in this country. Protestant churches occasionally have attempted it secretly, and the Catholic church possibly more frequently and more effectively, but for the most part we have carried the theory of the separation of the church and city to an extreme. The great function of the church should be to inspire men to action and the great call of the city is for inspired men to act in her service. In many cities there is felt a growing need of a survey conducted by experts on the status of church life in reference to community needs—from the viewpoint of what the city needs and what the church has to offer.

Dr. William H. Allen has truthfully asserted:

"The men and women identified with religious work could abolish his government if they would work together for definite visible ends in their community."

The call of the city is the government of the church.
