Fairview

FAIRVIEW, Oct. 13.—Miss Eva Turner, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Turner, died on Sunday, October 12, at the home of her parents. She was 20 years, 2 months, and 12 days old. She leaves, besides her parents, one brother, Blaine, to mourn her loss. Miss Eva was born at Cheney, Washington, moving with her parents to Fairview when only a small child, where she has since resided and grown into womanhood. She was a girl who was loved by every one, and one who always was willing to lend a helping hand and was always active in all social functions, being an active member of the Christian Endeavor. In 1908 she graduated from the Fairview public school, afterward attending the Gresham high school two years and the Oregon Agricultural college three years. The funeral services will be held from the Presbyterian church on Tuesday with interment in the Masonic cemetery.

Avoid Sedative Cough Medicines.

If you want to contribute directly to the occurrence of capillary bronchitis and pneumonia use cough medicines that contain codeine, morphine, heroin and other sedatives when you have a cough or cold. An expectorant like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is what is needed. That cleans out the culture beds or breeding places for the germs of pneumonia and other germ diseases. That is why pneumonia never results from a cold when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. It has a world wide reputation for its cures. It contains no morphine or other sedatives. For sale by Gresham Drug Co., and all Dealers.

"DRY AND PROSPEROUS" REPORT FROM EUGENE

The old fable of the deadness of a dry town gets another knockout blow from the records of the development of the city of Eugene, Oregon.

Eugene was made dry in 1906 by the action of Lane county. At subsequent election in 1908 the city as well as the county gave a dry majority. In 1912 the city of Eugene was so well satisfied with this disposition of the saloon that it gave a three-to-one vote for a continuation of the policy of Prohibition.

Here is the reason for it in the following figures:

When Eugene voted dry in 1906 the population was 5,000. Then there were no street cars. Now there are five lines with a total mileage of thirteen miles. Then there were no sewers or large buildings. Now there are three four-story buildings and a municipal light plant valued at $600,000, and sewer construction this year amounts to $60,000. There are now four banks and twice as many school buildings as when the city voted dry; there are three Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. buildings valued at $80,000, two hospitals and ninety-three building permits issued this year, estimated to cost $500,000. Including the electric railway construction, it is estimated that the construction work of the city for 1912 was $1,441,411.

For next year a high school building valued at $160,000 and other public improvements greater than any year heretofore are in contemplation, and two new railroad lines nearly completed will soon begin running trains into Eugene.

One of the big economic leaks has been fairly well stopped for Eugene, and the business men are pretty well satisfied.

Those who favor saloons often state that conditions are worse in a dry town than in a saloon town, that the law cannot be enforced, that more liquor is sold and there is more drunkenness, etc. Of course, people who have been around any know that it is not true. Yet there are probably many honest people who do not think very deeply, who are influenced by these statements. For the benefit of these, we submit the following facts, that no doubt contributed to some extent at least to the overwhelming dry victory last fall in Eugene, of which Dr. Parsons speaks in his excellent article on Eugene, published herewith.

In April, Springfield, a city with in three or four miles of Eugene and connected by street railway, went wet after a dry regime. From April 1, 1912, to October 10, six months and ten days, there were 292 arrests for drunkenness in Eugene. From September 15, 1911, to March 1, 1912, six months and fifteen days, there were only seventy arrests for drunkenness. For the same length of time there were four times as many arrests when there were saloons as when there were no saloons. — William Parsons, in New Republic.

The Best Light

AT THE LOWEST COST

ELECTRIC LIGHT is the most suitable for homes, offices, shops and other places needing light.

ELECTRICITY can be used in any quantity, large or small, thereby furnishing any required amount of light. Furthermore,

ELECTRIC LAMPS can be located in any place, thus affording any desired distribution of light.

NO OTHER LAMPS possess these qualifications, therefore, it is not surprising that

ELECTRIC LAMPS are rapidly replacing all others in modern establishments.
