Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the Postoffice at Gresham, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Finally, brethren, whatever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things.

Prohibition made many gains throughout the state on Tuesday and the "dry" forces have reason to be pleased. They are encouraged to continue the work and may decide on putting up a state-wide fight next year.

The most important but least surprising victory was at Salem. At last year's election the wets won by 65 but it was a foregone conclusion that it would go dry this time.

At Oregon City, with its 14 saloons and great population of Germans and mill workers the surprise equals the gratification over the victory. It has already been announced that a legal contest will begin at Gresham, Salem and Hillsboro by the wets to prevent the closing of the saloons on January 1, as prescribed by the law.

Concerning the effect the closing of the saloons here will have on the financial affairs of the city the sentiment is divided. The wets see nothing but disaster, but the dries are optimistic. The old arguments made before election are being repeated on both sides.

The loss to the city direct will be exactly $750 which will have to be returned as unearned. Withrow & Butcher's license expires on July 15, next year, and that of H. Mathes on Sept. 7, next. The prospective loss for the future is whatever sum might have been taxed against the saloons as a yearly license.

Any contest that may be commenced must start within ten days after the election. The people will, probably know within a week what is being done and what are the grounds for a contest.

Experts declare that Oregon has the best climate in the world for the production of flax and they confidently predict that flax and flax mills will be to Oregon what cotton and cotton mills have been to the south. A co-operative manufacturing firm is being promoted at Salem and it is expected to begin operations within the near future.

The heaviest movement of Oregon sheep and lambs ever known has been going on recently from central Oregon points. Within a period of ten days 32,000 sheep were shipped from Bend to points in Montana where they will be fed for a life time on their way to the Chicago market.

That the Dalles-Cello Canal will be completed and ready for the passage of boats in about another year is the opinion of F. C. Schubert, of the United States Engineers, who has had charge of the work.

One acre of celery, grown a short distance west of the city of Hood River, is being gathered and marketed, mostly in Portland, and the truck grower expects to receive not less than $2,000 from the crop.

Ex-Governor Sulzer, of New York, was elected to the legislature and a republican was chosen mayor of New York City. Boss Murphy was beaten and the deposed governor is on top again.

A mass meeting to nominate city officers will be held next Tuesday, but that doesn't exclude candidates who may desire to run on an initiative petition.

Overheard in the dark: "What would you say if I were to kiss you?" "Ishkabbible."

STATE COURTS LACK POWER

The following is in reference to the laws relating to local option and the statutes governing the cases where a majority vote has had the effect of prohibiting the sale of liquor.

The local option liquor law was adopted by initiative vote of the people of Oregon, June 6, 1904, and went into effect by proclamation of the governor of the state on June 24 of the same month.

The law provides, in the abstract, that not later than ten days after any election thereunder, the county clerk, taking to his assistance two justices of the peace of the county, shall open the returns and make an abstract for the information of the county (now circuit) court; which court on the 11th day after the election shall hold a special session.

When the majority vote is found to be for prohibition, the law takes effect on the first day of January following the day of election; and saloonists or liquor dealers prevented by prohibition from pursuing such occupation for the full time to which they would otherwise be entitled, are entitled to have refunded to them by the city, town or county, a proportionate amount of the license paid by them, for the unexpired term.

The prohibition, however, does not preclude the sale of pure alcohol for scientific and manufacturing purposes, or wines to church officials for sacramental purposes, nor alcoholic stimulants as medicine in cases of actual sickness, but such stimulants must be sold only on written prescription of a regular practicing physician, dated and signed by him, certified on his honor, though not on oath, that he has personally examined the applicant and finds him actually sick and in need of the stimulants as a medicine; but no person shall be permitted to sell more than one ounce on any one prescription.

All the elections on the subject of prohibition or local option are held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday in November of any year, except when the first election is for prohibition, no second election shall be held before the first Monday in June of the second year following. When prohibition is defeated elections may be held thereafter annually until it carries. When prohibition carries for the entire county, no election shall be held for a precinct or subdivision of the county until prohibition has been defeated for the entire county.

Penalties for violations of the law are, fine of not less than $50.00 nor more than $500.00, or imprisonment in the county jail for not less than ten, nor more than thirty days, or both. Persons are punished for any second or subsequent violations by both such fine and imprisonment. It is the duty of grand juries to inquire diligently after violations, and the special duty of the district attorney to file complaint in the circuit or justice's courts of the law therein. It is also made the duty of sheriff and constable to search places suspected of liquor selling, and having obtained a warrant, they are authorized and required, on admission being refused, to force the same in order to make arrests; while it is the duty of judges and justices of the peace to see that the law is rigidly enforced. In complaints and indictments it is not necessary to state the kind of liquor sold, nor the place where sold, nor show knowledge of principal to convict for acts of the agent or servant, and all persons to whom liquors are sold are competent witnesses; while the issue of license or revenue stamp to any person is prima facie evidence of selling by such person.

The constitutionality of the law has repeatedly been tested and upheld by the supreme court of the state, and there are no provisions in the law for the contesting of elections held under the law, as there is for other elections; so decided by the supreme court in February, 1910, in the case of Bradburn et al vs. Wasco county, in the following language: "The law does not confer judicial power to inquire into the validity of an election, where a proposition of any sort is submitted to a vote of the people under a statute, which makes no provision for the contest of the election."
