A SUCCESSFUL POULTRYMAN

H. W. Cooley, of the White Knoll Poultry farm was in Gresham on business today and paid the Outlook office a friendly visit. Mr. Cooley is one of the most successful poultry raisers of eastern Multnomah. He raises White Leghorns only and believes they have greater possibilities than any other breed of fowls. Mr. Cooley is running five incubators of an aggregate capacity of 1600 eggs. His second hatch of the season is just off. Two of the latest brooders have just been installed with a capacity of 1200 chicks each. When asked how he gets eggs for such large incubators he replied that he had the right kind of hens. His present flock numbers 460 laying hens. Mr. Cooley is constantly enlarging his plant and the most up-to-date equipment. He expects next winter to trap-nest 1000 pullets.

The White Knoll farm is situated on the Section Line road about three miles east of Gresham. Mr. Cooley invites visitors to inspect his place.

INVALID WILL SEEK HEALTHIER CLIMATE

Mrs. J. H. Schram, who has been in poor health the past year and a half, is confined to her room once more. She spent a few months at Tangent and Highland last fall and returned home at Thanksgiving time, looking well and much improved, but is once more taken down. The doctor has ordered her taken away again as soon as she is able to travel. She will go to visit her sister, Mrs. Carrie Fisher at Abbotsford, B. C., if able will start about March 25, accompanied by Mr. Schram and son Walter who will remain with his mother. Hubert and Wesley will be cared for by Mrs. Schram's sister, Mrs. Annie Campbell of Madris, Eastern Oregon. The other sons, Maurice and Karl, will seek employment where ever they can find it, which leaves Mr. Schram alone.

"SATAN"

"The Drama of Humanity"

At the Gresham Picture Show, Monday Night, Mar. 9.

A Great Five-Reel Feature

A wonderful Historical production of four periods—before the Coming of Christ, the Teaching and Passion of Christ, the Middle Ages and Modern Times.

First Reel.

The scenes open with a glimpse—all too brief—of the warring angels "on the plains of Heaven." We see Lucifer's last onslaught on the "impregnable towers" and his utter rout and expulsion. There is something at least of the Miltonic splendor in the following scenes, pleasing and impressive. For many of the later scenes the producer seems to have gone to Klopstock's "Messiah," probably the least read book in the world. He has, however, found helpful suggestions there and has made good use of them. Satan's devious entrance into the terrestrial paradise and his sudden transformation into a serpent, winding its uncooled length upon the tree is a fine piece of double exposure. Double exposure skillfully done is one of the great assets of cinematography and in these reels it is done with exceptional cleverness. The first reel touches deeper cords in the human heart; we see Satan planning the deadly weapon with which Abel was killed and we see him fashioning the first sword and suggesting the first human sacrifice.

Second Reel.

In the second reel, dealing with Satan's work in the lifetime of Christ the producer has taken high aim. Satan at times takes on the garb and manners of a Pharisee. First he tempts Christ in the wilderness and later takes possession of the soul of Judas. The latter circumstances furnish an occasion of introducing numerous scenes from the Passion of Christ. They are put on with great reverence and surely not lacking in art, as many of them have famous paintings for their prototypes. The convulsion of the elements at the moment of the crucifixion—darkened heavens and a marvelous background to the terrible scene. There is so much sustained excellence in these scenes, however, that a detailed description of them would fill pages. A wonderful depth of thought and feeling pervades all these scenes.

Third Reel.

In the third reel, dealing with Satanic activities in the middle ages no finer subject could have been chosen than alchemy, a soul-destroying superstition from which some of even the best minds of the day were not entirely free. Satan selects for his victim a young friar, deeply enamored of the black art. He flatters the young man's vanity and lets him find a plant, which seems to have had which root in the infernal laboratory itself, for through its malign influence the noble convent of good works is changed into a workshop of the devil.

Fourth and Fifth Reels.

The fourth and fifth reels takes us into the very heart of the modern conditions. The contrasts between the different reels, the marked changes of times and costumes and manners and buildings are among the chief merits of this production and constitute not the least parts of its charm and power. The work of the tempter in the last reel is tragically destructive. The art and skill of the producer here reach rare heights. In the short space of a thousand feet he has touched upon one of the most fruitful dramatic themes of today—the inequalities of modern society. The tempter finds in them the great means of inducing the commission of crime and encompassing the destruction of human happiness. We see how luxury begets unrestrained lust and violence and listens to every whisper, that selfishness loves to hear. Poverty, too, affords baleful opportunities to the tempter. He destroys all who give him heed. The climax of the last scene is bold, striking and full of deepest meaning. The tempter's victims are buried beneath a heap of smoking ruins. As though he had just stepped out of a banquet hall in faultless evening dress, the modern Satan contemplates his work with a sneer and a shrug of the shoulder, and, plucking a brand from the blazing embers, lights a cigarette with "the friendly elements." In wholly different surroundings is revealed the same demonic touch we observed in the first reel, when the tempter followed the trail of the serpent into the paradise of man.

WHERE AND HOW VOTERS MAY REGISTER

Many voters, especially the newly enfranchised women throughout this part of the county are asking where they must go to register. Justice Rollins is responsible for the statement that voters may register at the county courthouse or Gresham or any other place in the county where the books are open. Voters may register in Gresham before either Justice Rollins or City Recorder Roberts.

SEE THE ENTIRE STATE OF OREGON

"See the Big State and not the big city," is the appeal to be made by the business men of Portland to the people who will come west during 1915. Unless a vigorous campaign is conducted, nearly all the exposition travel will be direct from San Francisco to Portland with no stopovers in either western or eastern Oregon.

The perfect plans for an energetic campaign to influence travelers to visit the smaller communities and see the state itself rather than spend all of the time decoted to Oregon in the city of Portland, a meeting will be held in the parlors of the Portland Commercial club on Thursday, March 12. Delegates will be present from all the communities which were represented at the development convention recently held in Eugene. Also, at this meeting, plans will be laid for a big convention to be held in the near future in the city of Salem, at which all the counties of the state will be represented.

WHY PLAN FOR WINTER?

Or any other season, for that matter
When the delicacies of the tropics or the products of the northern countries
Are made available by modern methods of preserving food-stuff.

The home canning of certain vegetables not only represent a laborious task—but when completed

The superiority of the professionally canned article is many times very noticeable.

In no instance is the difference so great as in canned peas.

Only a few districts are especially adapted to the proper production of peas for canning.

From the best of these MONOPOLE Brand is selected.

This dainty vegetable is rich in the elements that give strength and endurance.

Chronic Stomach Trouble Cured.
There is nothing more discouraging than a chronic disorder of the stomach. Is it not surprising that many suffer for years with such an ailment when a permanent cure is within their reach and may be had for a trifle? "About one year ago," says P. H. Beck, of Wakelee, Mich., "I bought a package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and since using them I have felt perfectly well. I had previously used any number of different medicines, but none of them were of any lasting benefit." For sale by Gresham Drug Co., and all Dealers.

WHAT IS YOUR BANKING CONNECTION?

? This question invariably arises when a young man begins to climb in the business world and unless he is able to answer it satisfactorily he can not win the confidence of older men in the game. A man is known by the company he keeps and the bank he does business with.

? We take pride in maintaining an institution that reflects credit upon our customers. No matter what your age or circumstances an account with us will be helpful to you.
