

In a city school one of the boys would persist in saying and writing "I have wrote."

To cure him of this he was set the task of writing one hundred times the words, "I have written" after school hours.

The teacher went home and forgot the boy for a time. On hurrying back she found he had left this note on her desk:

"Dear Teacher—I have wrote 'I have written' a hundred times, and I have went home."

RAISING FUNDS FOR ATTORNEY

Editor Gresham Outlook:—While attending the W. C. T. U. meeting on Thursday, March 19, I was asked to do a little canvassing among my neighbors in the way of getting subscriptions to help pay the expenses of the lawyer who plead the case for the "dry" in the recent trial. I was astonished to have almost the first person to whom I presented the subscription list, tell me she heard Mrs. Wostell was trying to get the people of Gresham to pay a lawyer she had hired for some personal affair of her own. I wish to correct through your paper, if I may have the space, this false report.

The money which Mrs. Hattie Wostell and the other members of the committee were appointed to raise, is to pay the lawyer who was hired by the "dry" to plead the case both before the circuit court in Portland, and the supreme court in Salem and not to pay any private bill of Mrs. Wostell's.

The false report spoken of seems to have been spread broadcast and I feel, in justice to Mrs. Wostell, it should be corrected.

I pity the man or woman who has so much enmity toward another that they will deliberately tell a malicious lie about them to ruin their character.

I have known Mrs. Wostell since I was three years of age (a little over twenty-six years), and she was my teacher for two years while attending the grammar school, so I feel as though I know her about as well as anyone in this community.

I believe in giving every man his just dues and I know without a doubt that Mrs. Wostell would not stoop to do such a dishonest thing as she has been reported to have done.

Don't Fiddle

People who fuss and fiddle seldom accomplish anything. And in the end, all they have for the worry and stewing is a batch of disappointments.

The housewife is the purchasing agent of the home. She is probably very careful about the brand or make of the shoes, gloves, hosiery and other wearing apparel that is purchased, but Does she exercise the same care in selecting a brand of table food? Changing from this to that and then another brand, keeps one guessing all the time. Pure foods and good health are mighty closely associated. Unless you have both Pure Food and good health, you will care little about anything else.

LOOK FOR LOWERED COST OF LIVING

A great many of the necessities of life bid fair to be cheapened—we hope without any corresponding reduction in the reward for honest effort, the difference being taken rather from the profits of that class of speculators and middlemen who perform no real service for society.
