FIXING THEIR VALUES.

Two bright young college men are sent out by the Public Utilities Commission to fix the values of the Oregon-California Power company plants in this state.

This is to determine the actual value of the properties as a basis for making rates for light and power. It is not to be the selling value of the property.

If the young men find that the power company is charging rates that are excessive, the commission will direct the company to lower them until they yield only a just and reasonable profit on the investment.

There is only one danger in all this—the rate making value tends to become the market value. If that be the result, no more capital will come to Oregon to invest in public utilities and every community will be forced to public ownership.

DEATH OF PIUS X.

Word came from Rome on Wednesday of the death of Pope Pius X, at the Vatican, following a brief illness. His reign since 1903 has been marked by a fatherly beneficence that has placed him in the lead as one of the greatest rulers of the Catholic church.

A PEEVISH STATEMENT.

County Roadmaster John B. Yeon seems to be peeved a little because the farmers along the Base Line are opposing the improvement of that thoroughfare. Witness the following in yesterday's Oregonian:

"Base Line road will get no improvement this year and very little improvement next year if this proposed hard-surface paving proposal falls through," declared Roadmaster Yeon on the witness stand yesterday. "It is useless to pave with hard-bound macadam."

One would think from the tenor of this statement that the destinies of all the road making in Multnomah county were in the hands of Mr. Yeon, and that the people have nothing to say about how their money shall be spent. If the county commissioners are the servants of the taxpayers and not of Mr. Yeon they will defer to the wishes of those who own the property and foot the bills.

The postoffice department has reduced the cost of money orders to many foreign countries, but not for the United States. It seems to be the policy to make it easy to send money out of this country, but not to meet the rates of the banks and express companies on local business.

The Associated Press and the United Press are making faces at each other in the columns of our two esteemed evening co-laborers, the Telegram and the Journal. Both of them got a new subscriber last week but never mentioned the event, being too busy scooping each other.

EXPLAINS ABSENCE.

Congressman Lafferty has been accused of "absenteeism," in that he is here instead of being in Washington while congress is in session.

It is remembered that Senator Bourne was accused of being an absentee from Oregon during nearly the whole of his six years as senator. There is no way of pleasing people who are politically opposed to a public officer, or those who have a grudge. Lafferty is here when not needed in Washington; Bourne was away when he was needed here. So there you are.

The facts in Mr. Lafferty's case are that the entire legislative program in the lower house had been carried out and it is simply marking time while the senate is scrapping. When the senate acts the house will do business again. It is a good thing to have each congressman at home a few months in the year where his constituents could meet him and talk things over. Information at first hand is the most important.

SAVE AND HAVE CAMPAIGN.

One of our local banks is following the footsteps of Eastern banks in an educational campaign on savings, and bringing the depositor in closer touch with the banks and the protective laws of our state.

The Bank of Gresham, one of the enterprising and growing institutions of our town, is at the present time campaigning the surrounding country and educating the people to the advantages of an account, both from a protective standpoint as well as creating a more harmonious feeling for home industry which every commercial enterprise strives to do. Our government report tells us one person out of every seven in this country has a savings account and perhaps if the other six were given the opportunity this percentage would greatly increase itself.

Just as the electric light and gas companies of today consider it beneficial to their customers, to teach them the economy of cooking and lighting with gas and electricity, so do the banks consider it within their province to teach the people the art of systematic savings.

The Bank of Gresham has made gradual strides since its organization here and today stands as a monument of respect to our little city.

How Oregon Has Been Rolled.

From the sale of public lands Oregon has contributed $10,317,387.18 to the reclamation fund to June 30, 1913.

Oregon has been allotted from that fund for reclamation work up to same date only $4,324,218.77.

Of this amount $1,277,132.01 (one cent) has been returned leaving us a net investment of $3,057,086.16, or less than one dollar out of three paid in.

There has been allotted to various states up to April 30, 1914, $10,307,396.73, of which Oregon gets $1,294,724.08.

In amount contributed Oregon is only surpassed by one state—North Dakota. But in distribution nine states get more than Oregon.

The above facts were brought out in an address in congress by N. J. Sinnott, congressman from the eastern Oregon district.

We expect the editor of the Rockwood Rip saw will be mad at us because we reported three broken arms from there last Tuesday. Couldn't help it; had to give the news.

We would suggest that the Gresham Fruitgrowers association take an option on all the cornhusks in this vicinity if the price of tobacco goes up.

Portland's municipal improvement bonds seem to be the only commodity that didn't go up in price because of the war.

Beans have advanced about 30 per cent. There is no evidence that they are being used as a substitute for coffee.

The supply of dyes is said to be running low. Gee! aint we lucky guys with Easter so far away?

Three miles of water main will be laid on the Portland peninsula.

A wizard makes a lion disappear by magic. Incidentally he makes the wolf disappear from the door by the same art.

MAKING THE GAS METER USEFUL.

"He's a genius!" "What's he ever done?" "He has contrived a plan by which he has been able to harness his gas meter and make it run his sewing machine and work the churn."
