

BREAKING CLAY SAUCERS COMING SUNDAY SPORT

Next Sunday will witness the first shoot of the winter season at the gun club grounds below Linnemann junction, when the Multnomah and Hercules trophies will go to the best marksmen.

There will probably be 75 gunners in the shoot for the two prizes. The Multnomah trophy is a handsome cup donated by Frank Howe; the other is a trophy presented by a powder company. Following the gunnery a barbecue will take place on the grounds.

There will be shooting regularly every Sunday hereafter and there is almost daily practice.

DEATH AND FUNERAL OF LOYAL H. RICKERT

Loyal H. Rickert an old-time resident of the Harburt neighborhood, died at his home there on Friday last aged 79 years, two months and seven days. The funeral took place on Sunday from Columbia grange hall, interment being in the Evans' cemetery, Rev. Mr. Reed officiating.

The deceased left a wife, two daughters and three brothers, all of whom are well known in Eastern Multnomah. He was a respected member of his district and his departure is keenly felt by a wide circle of sympathetic friends and acquaintances.

DETENTION HOME ISSUE AGAIN UP

To determine whether it would be less costly to establish a detention home for women on the H. C. Campbell tract, near Troutdale, which the city proposes to buy at a cost of $8000, or on a tract of 20 acres, which is thought might be secured from the county at the Multnomah County Poor Farm, an engineer will be sent over the ground within the next few days to make surveys and compile estimates. The city commission met with County Commissioner Holman and discussed the proposition. Until the engineer can make his investigation and prepare his report nothing will be done in the matter of purchasing the Campbell tract.

WANTS TO BUY LAND NEAR GRESHAM

The Commercial club and the Outlook frequently receive requests for information regarding this locality which are being answered to the best of our ability. Most of these are more or less general but here is one that is quite specific and should be answered with definite information. It comes through W. L. Crissey, chief of inquiry bureau of the Portland Commercial club.

The inquirer is Mr. Thos. A. Frewen, 243 East 53d street, Portland, Oregon. Mr. Crissey says:

"Mr. Frewen is looking for a small farm of 20 to 40 acres. He wants a good portion of it in cultivation, soil suitable for general farming and hog raising, but he is not particular as to the buildings on it. He wants running water or a spring; and not too distant from school as he has two young children.

"Mr. Frewen is looking for a home; is willing to pay a reasonable price for a well located place within five miles radius of town, and would appreciate having a suitable list of farms submitted for his consideration.

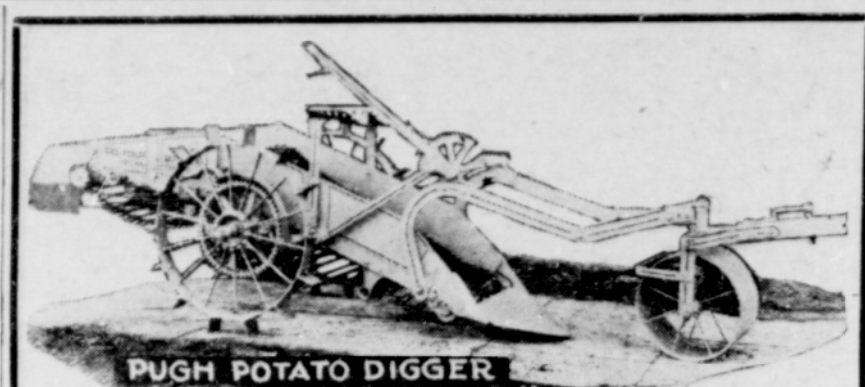

"I would consider your community a decided gainer if you could interest him in locating there, and I know you will give him special attention."

The Outlook will be glad to forward any written information in answer to above request to Mr. Frewen or it may be sent direct to above address by any owner.

Chas. Riley McCalley Here. An entertainment will be given next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the Methodist Episcopal church, under the auspices of the Ladies Aid society by Chas. Riley McCalley, a noted violinist and reader of James Whitcomb Riley. Admission will be 25c and 15c.

Home Cooking Restaurant. A regular dinner will be served every day from 12 to 2. Short orders at any time. Having taken over the restaurant formerly conducted by Mr. Peck I would be pleased to retain his patronage and will endeavor to merit that of the entire public. L. HOLLYWOOD.

An auto trip was taken Sunday to Gervais by Mrs. J. H. Metzger, Floyed and Beh Metzger, Jas. McKinney and Dewey Gibbs. They found the Greshamites who are there picking hops well and having a good time, but reported that, owing to an oversupply of pickers, no one can get in full time and there is much dissatisfaction.

SCENIC PATHWAY UNDER THE FALLS

S. Benson, the millionaire good road enthusiast is not content with what he has done in giving to the state the scenic wonders of Multnomah falls with a concrete bridge across the gorge above the lower falls, but he has evolved a scheme to improve the attractions at Latourell falls and will pay all the expense.

Latourell falls flows over an overhanging precipice, and there is room behind the falls for several persons to stand and look through the sheet of falling water, remaining perfectly dry meanwhile. Just a little spray will catch the explorer as he goes behind the falls and as he comes out again. It is easy to dodge it if one is quick enough but the path is slippery and sometimes a person gets wet a little. Mr. Benson's scheme is to make things easier and safer so that all may enjoy the experience of going behind the falls and looking out. Just below the falls is a good bridge which is a portion of the Columbia River Highway. Mr. Benson is preparing to build a cement path around and behind the falls from one end of this bridge to the other. It will be several thousand feet long and will be built on easy grades, winding around the sides of the basin, so as to avoid the destruction of any timber or of any part of the scenic beauty of the spot. Tourists can then take the trip behind the falls and enjoy an experience that will be at once novel and exciting.
