MONDAY, OCT. 12 At the Moving Picture Theatre

"WAR IS HELL"
 A Four Reel Hand Colored War Feature

This picture shows the actual destruction of English balloons by a German Zeppelin, also a battle between two aeroplanes. This and many other European War movements are woven into a very thrilling drama.

ing for 17 cents per bushel, now 75 cents. Then hogs 4 cents, now 8.10. As I passed from northwest to southwest, and from thence to northeast and saw the cattle not on a thousand hills, but roaming in the valley and see and hear of her institutions of learning I am forced to the conclusion that Missouri is a great state and has in it some mighty good men and women, notwithstanding you have to "show" them.

Passing through the states of Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio, the 20th day, we crossed the Ohio river into West Virginia as the train goes winding up Big Sandy and you see nothing but hills and brush in sight: you wonder what this country was made for. Can it be of any use to humanity? As you see a railroad track up almost every hollow, (no canyons) and at the mouth of hollows, nestles a little town, sprung up as by magic, and ever and anon pass a train of 50 and more cars loaded with coal and coke, think of the thousands that are benefitted by the products brought forth from the bowels of these mountains, you are convinced the most unsightly things are pregnant with blessings and can be made subservient to the wants of what Oregon will be after November 3, dry. How changed. Four years man.

Bluefield and all West Virginia is ago I passed from the Ohio river through the entire state and at almost every station men boarded the train drunk, but in crossing the entire state I did not see a drunk man. The old Dominion, my native state, has just gone dry by more than 20,000. The saloon keepers who with the bums and undesirables crossed over the line into the old state so they could enjoy personal liberty (?) now will have to depart for a climate more congenial and adapted to their taste. I commenced this epistle expecting to tell something of the impressions made by the trip across the continent but length already admonishes that there is danger of the waste basket, so I will stop right here.
 E. A. LEONARD.

W. C. T. U. COLUMN

There are two things that every good citizen of Oregon will do: First register. Second, vote for the best interests of the state.

It is not necessary for any person of voting age to be referred to other states, or other countries for evidence of what drinking does for the individual. The little community in which we live furnishes ample example. Can you think of one family that would be benefited by removing the temptation? We know you can. Then let's help by discussing prohibition with our neighbor. Don't say "my vote won't help much."

The women of Gresham are making a systematic canvass in the city to urging everyone to register.

North Dakota's Experience.

The results here are most gratifying. The assessed valuation has increased more than threefold since prohibition was adopted. The per capita bank deposits is nearly $138. The per cent of illiteracy has been reduced in ten years from 5 6-10 per cent to 3 1-10 per cent. The per capita wealth has nearly doubled in the same period. There are but 14-10 prisoners for each 5,000 of population. Of the fifty counties, forty-two have no poorhouses and those in other counties have but few inmates. Four counties have no jails and the jails of fourteen counties are empty. Eight counties have no prisoners in penitentiary and nine counties have but one each.—Oregon Anti-Saloon Manual.

It is booze that makes Oregon institutions in such contrast with the above.

Vote "332 X YES" Oregon dry, it means money and character to our children.

Where the Drink Burden Falls.

The great burden of drink is not borne by the drinker, but by the drinker's children.

In our studies among school children in New York City we find that sixty-two per centum are the children of drinking parents; and that ninety-one per centum of these children of drinking parents suffer from some functional or organic disease. In one institution for the treatment of physical defectives a recent study shows that every patient is the child of drinking parents.—Pacific Patriot, Aug. 19, 1914.

Think of the heartaches of the parents of these suffering children. New York state is no exception. The drink curse is the same in Oregon.

We can help materially to better these conditions by voting and using our influence for prohibition.
