TOMORROW'S TALE.

With the election over the people of Oregon are able to take a retrospective view of the campaign just ended and draw their own conclusion therefrom, whether their favorite candidates have been elected or defeated.

In some respects it has been the most rancorous campaign ever conducted in Oregon. The era of mud slinging has not passed, but it is a pleasure to note that it was all done on one side. The democratic party, through its various mouth-pieces, has carried on a vituperative warfare, aimed at R. A. Booth and Jas. Withycombe that has been without parallel in Oregon history for more than twenty years.

The dignified attitude of all the republican candidates was in sharp contrast to that of their opponents and their henchmen. Governor West's speech in Gresham on Saturday night was a sample. Without a reference to the qualifications of Senator Chamberlain or Dr. Smith, he devoted two solid hours to vilifying their opponents and some of those who having been their champions.

It was claimed that the direct primaries would help to eliminate much of the personality and abuse of political campaigns in Oregon. But it seems that every successful candidate has an enemy and a vulnerable point to attack. The sponsors of the primary law, the republicans, seem to be the only party that has maintained a dignified course and that has lived up to the spirit of the law; it is also the party that has protested the strongest against the assembly plan and the party against the primary delegate election bill, which, if adopted, would mean a return to assembly or convention methods.

The returns tomorrow will show what the voters have been thinking about during the past few months.

PEACE ON EARTH.

A resolution was adopted at the last session of the National grange, held less than a year ago, which will probably be somewhat modified this year. It is given here to show how unprepared the world was at that time for the great war that is now submerging more than half the nations of Europe. It follows:

"We rejoice in the fact that among all the leading nations of the earth the sentiment in favor of universal peace has made greater advancement in the last few years than for several preceding centuries, and we hope and believe that in the very near future the desire for peace on earth and good will among all the nations of the world shall become the universal sentiment of mankind."

Governor West has issued a proclamation setting aside Tuesday, November 3d as Oregon Industry day in order that public interest may be aroused in regard to the industries of the state. In his proclamation Governor West says: "I earnestly request that each and every citizen of this state purchase and consume only those products which are of home production. By so doing public attention will be directed to and centered upon our Oregon industries, the merits of which will be brought home to all."

Some candidates will laugh tomorrow and the world will laugh with them; others will weep, but they will weep alone.

DOMESTIC ART IN THE SCHOOL

The materials and the work of domestic arts in the schools are connected directly with the materials and work in the home. Hence the domestic arts course not only contributes to the aims of universal education, but likewise to the arts and science of home making. Throughout the entire course, as planned for the public schools of Oregon by Mrs. Brooks, professor of domestic arts at the Agricultural College, the work is carried along two lines that supplement each other—subject matter and problems of construction. Since the principles of art and design are constantly used in working out the problems, the aesthetic nature of the children, along with their practical and intelligent endowments, is undergoing steady and natural development.

All work in this course is determined and guided by an underlying principle or idea. The purpose of the technic of sewing, garment making, care and furnishing of girls' rooms, house planning and furnishing, study of textiles, use of money, and other problems involved in efficient house-keeping, is to impart to pupils ideas and ideals, standards and guiding principles, experience and methods, as permanent assets in their lives.

"Hand work is not to be introduced as a unity of itself," says Mrs. Brooks "but in close relation to the other work of the grade. Thus employed it vitalizes the entire course, and brings the child directly into contact with the world, where she may realize the relation of all the work of the school to all the work of her life. In thus understanding her relation to society she becomes a better citizen as a producer, a consumer and a home-maker in her community."

Oregon's Great Exhibit.

The Manufacturers and Land Products show, staging the greatest display ever made of the products of the farms and mills of this state is now on. From every section of the state has come some remarkable specimens of the products of farm and factory and from all parts of the state are coming the crowds which fill the great Armory to overflowing. The past week was a notable one in the point of attendance, special time having been allotted to the visitors from individual communities. Forest Grove sent a delegation 150 strong, Woodburn, 100, and Salem and Eugene sent an enthusiastic crowd of Radicators and Cherrians these two organizations being the guests of the Royal Rosarians of Portland. Eight counties are represented in the Willamette Valley exhibit which it is intended to send to the Panama Pacific exposition in 1915 after it has done service in this and other land shows. The counties represented by this exhibit are Washington, Yamhill, Polk, Benton, Lane, Linn, Marion and Clackamas.

Oregon was not only "first" in the selection of her building site on the grounds of the San Francisco exposition, but she was also the first to finish her building and the first to throw the building open for a public entertainment. On last Saturday evening a Halloween dance was given to six hundred invited guests under the auspices of the Oregon society of California co-operating with the exposition officials. All other state societies represented in San Francisco were invited and each was asked to christen the huge log column representing that particular state. Oregon apples and cider from Hood River were served and a former resident of Portland supplied automobiles to transport the guests to and from the building.

The unanimous approval of the proposed union high school, as indicated by reports from the other districts, is very gratifying to the promoters of the plan. It is receiving merited consideration and all indications point to a big majority for the school when the vote shall be taken.

The Fruit Growers League of Medford and the Rogue Land Canal Co., are taking steps toward securing irrigation in Rogue River Valley entailing expenditure of $2,000,000.

GERMAN TELLS TALE OF BARBARIC ACT

SANDY, ORE., Oct. 26, 1914.

Editor Gresham Outlook:—The following letter was received by Mrs. C. D. Purcell of Sandy, Oregon in answer to one written about the beginning of the war to her cousin in Mexico. The letter was written in the German language, and translated into English and given below as written, except the personal part is omitted. It has been sent to various papers and it is given only as representing a German's view of the war.

Leipsic, Germany, Sept. 15, 1914.

My dear Cousin:—Your dear letter of August 12th came to me September 14th over a month on the way. (personal part of letter omitted.) The 20th of July, Weida (the birthplace of Mrs. Purcell's parents) celebrated a home coming festival and as my vacation was on just then, I as well as all our relation went home to enjoy a brief rest. The pure air, mountains and valleys of beautiful Weida, the sight of and the hearty handshakes of old school-mate, neighbors, and friends proved very refreshing. Little did we dream then in the midst of peace, harmony and song, that war would be declared a fortnight later. It came like a thunderbolt, verily, dear cousin, it seemed like a hideous nightmare that our peaceful and progressive Fatherland should shoulder the gun and assume the many burdens which war creates.

Thus my vacation came to an abrupt close. I was summoned to Leipsic where confusion and the wildest rumors filled the air. Our foes had become so overspirited that they undertook a march to Berlin before war had been declared. France, Russia, and what grieves me most, England, our close relative, were anxious to fight Germany, and the former's troops were found in German territory, long ere the declaration of war where they demolished everything right and left and everywhere. Well, they soon found out that cherry eating with us was not so sweet after all; their visit was of short duration. Quickly our brave troops at the frontier drove them back where they belonged. Undoubtedly you have heard how victorious our foes have been so far. These reports are all as false, as can be. I trust matters have changed in the meantime, as the foreign ambassadors of neutral countries are standing by Germany and henceforth will allow only truthful stories to go out to countries they are representing.

Our German troops have well nigh reached Paris, and at this writing are in the thick of the fray, fighting the fiercest battle in history. This far Belgium is in our hands, excepting Antwerp which must fall shortly.

The English, French and Russian troops have been conquered time and again. But we have only three army corps along the Russian frontier. The Russians have burned ten of our villages and three towns so far.

The most inhuman acts are inflicted by the use of dum dum bullets used by the English and French troops. These bullets create frightful wounds and cause such pain and suffering. A soldier died here yesterday who was found in the hands of a ten-year old Belgian, who, after digging out his eyes, cutting off his nose, ears, and cutting out his tongue, cut the buttons off his coat and pressed them in the hollow of his eyes.

We have to place special guards everywhere to prevent the repetition of such beastly acts.

Fortunately the harvest was very good and importation of flour and food will not be necessary for a year at least, although the war is keenly felt as factories are closed and places of business at a standstill. Nevertheless, we are hopeful and with God's help will come out victorious. All letters must go unsealed and by way of Holland. Pray, do not forget this when you write.

With greetings to all, sincerely
Your cousin,
FREDERICK DOELTZ.

Secretary Franklin R. Lane has advised Governor West that the reclamation service engineers have decided upon the Deschutes project as the most suitable one in this state upon which to expend the $450,000 allotted by the government for reclamation work in Oregon. This appropriation was made for expenditure during the calendar year of 1914 and was made dependent upon the appropriation of a similar amount by the state of Oregon. Unless the money from the state is forthcoming the government appropriation will expire on December 31, but it may be renewed immediately for the first of the next year.

The Columbia Highway is to be finished through The Dalles by June 1st.

Official Tests Add Value.
Official tests are now thought to be almost essential to profitable business in breeding pure-bred dairy cattle. The man that buys breeding stock today demands production back of it, and this production can be guaranteed in no other way. That these buyers are willing to pay for a record of high production in their dairy stock is shown by reports of sales recently collected by Professor Graves, head of the O. A. C. Dairy department, as follows: The average price of 171 non-record cows at auction was $288, and the average price of record cows of practically the same breeding was $465; and the average price of 184 heifers with non-record dams was $299, and the average price of 133 heifers of the same breeding with record dams was $341. This shows conclusively the great increase of value added to dairy stock by the official tests. The practice is gaining in Oregon but no more than a small proportion of Oregon pure-bred cattle breeders have taken it up.

In order to enjoy the immediate benefits of the reclamation extension act passed September 14, settlers on all government irrigation projects must file formal acceptance of the terms of that act with the local project manager not later than November 15. Failure to file such acceptance by the date named will force settlers to meet payment falling due

December 1, 1914, on which date they must also meet any and all deferred payments. In the event that the acceptance is on file by December 1, instead of having to pay an installment of six dollars per acre, the settler will be required to pay but 2 per cent of the balance due under the contract for the purchase of water rights. Failure to make the necessary payment due on December 1 will result in the forfeiture of the water right entry.

Despondency Due to Indigestion.
It is not at all surprising that persons who have indigestion become discouraged and despondent. Here are a few words of hope and cheer for them by Mrs. Blanche Bowers, Indiana, Pa. "For years my digestion was so poor that I could only eat the lightest foods. I tried every thing that I heard of to get relief, but not until about a year ago when I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and got a bottle of them, did I find the right treatment. I soon began to improve, and since taking a few bottles of them my digestion is fine." For sale by All Dealers.
