Official paper of the Town of Gresham, Oregon.

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the Postoffice at Gresham, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

TOO MUCH LEGISLATION.

The people voting down nine-tenths of all the laws on the ballot this year ought to convey a lesson to the legislature.

Representatives from Clackamas county propose to take steps to limit the volume of new laws by demanding that:

"All appropriation bills must be reported by committee on ways and means by the 20th day of the session.

"Committee on ways and means must prepare tabulated statement showing amount of appropriation asked for in one column, and amount allowed in second column.

"No bills to be introduced after the 20th day of the session without consent of two-thirds of the members.

"All bills which have been amended must be reprinted with amendments in italics.

"All bills before final passage by confining introduction of bills to not over five for each member.

This would reduce the volume of legislation to 300 bills in the House and 150 in the Senate.

Twenty days would be reserved to consider 450 bills if this plan is adopted of reducing expenses.

Resolutions should be put through both Houses of the legislature early in the session to this end.

This would reduce the enormous cost of printing bills and also clerk-hire.

NEW ROAD POLICY.

From the tone of the county road master and the commissioners, as published elsewhere concerning a bonding proposition, it would seem that the idea of taxing the farmers for hard surface improvements has been abandoned.

The people of Eastern Multnomah in their opposition to hard surface during the past summer expressed themselves in favor of a general tax for the purpose, but stoutly refused to allow the proposed hard surfacing under the law that would compel each piece of land to pay for the half of it.

It now remains to be seen whether they will vote for bonds to further the object. No one is opposed to good roads and a bonding proposition is no worse than a gradual tax extending over several years. To be consistent the property owners should encourage the bonding idea and get the roads.

City and county consolidation may be accomplished now if the people so desire it. The law that was adopted gives the voters power to join two or more towns together. There is a probability that St. Johns will again become a part of Portland and the latter's boundaries may extend eastward to include Gresham, Troutdale and Fairview.

One of the oldest wholesale liquor houses in Portland went into bankruptcy on Tuesday. There is no money in the business now and 50 saloons in Portland will quit business on New Years. A wild scramble to unload stocks on hand is being made and bargain counter rates are being offered on all kinds of booze.

The county's tax sum is likely to be 15 mills, which is about 18 per cent lower than last year. Many of the items are lower while none of them have been increased. Even the road fund will not be increased, but a general bonding scheme may be resorted to for hard surface purposes.

Tomorrow's vote in five school districts will tell the story of victory for the Union High school at Gresham. It is not conceivable that anyone in Gresham can vote against it and it is more than probable that there will be a majority in the other four.

Multnomah went wet by 95 majority; Clatsop by 35. The vote should be taken again so as to make it unanimous.

THE FIGHT FOR TAX REFORM.

The Press of Oregon was almost unanimous in the campaign that resulted in defeating freak measures on the ballot.

The Press is again leading the fight for tax reform and reducing the expenses of our state government.

The State Tax Board and the various city, county and school taxing bodies are all busy cutting down levies.

In addition to that the press of the state will be the influence that will compel retrenchment in the legislature and lop off extravagant appropriation.

A square fight will be made by the state press association to reduce running expenses of the state government, at least half a million dollars.

The press proved more powerful in preventing vicious legislation than all the other organizations put together.

In the campaign for tax reduction the newspapers will accomplish more than all the pledges in the political platforms.

Industrial Club Girls Raise Pigs and Poultry.

Pig and poultry raising, vegetables and corn growing, are Industrial Club projects that are engaged in by girls as well as boys in various parts of Oregon. Of course the greatest proportion of girls are engaged in the more domestic subjects of sewing, baking, or canning, yet those who have undertaken the more strenuous pursuits are making a splendid success of their work.

One of the most noticeably successful girls engaged in vegetable and corn growing, as shown by the hundreds of reports now reaching the office of State Agent F. L. Griffin, at the Agricultural College, is Gertrude Courtney, a fifteen year old girl of Union county. Her garden is a long, narrow strip consisting of 2500 square feet between rows of trees in a nine year old orchard. Her corn field is one-eighth of an acre likewise located in this orchard. The ground had been doing double duty, supporting the trees and growing truck crops for many years and was in poor condition.

The ground was prepared by thorough fertilization with stable manure after which Miss Courtney performed all of the work with her own hands. In her report she tells how she plowed the field, harrowed and leveled it, and later planted and cultivated the crops. She grew potatoes, sweet corn, squash, and cucumbers, having started the tomatoes in a hot bed prepared by herself. From this garden she sold vegetables to the value of $21.72 and from her corn field in spite of an early frost, she gathered ten bushels of corn of which one-half was disposed of for seed.

"Drys" Not Downcast.

Leaders of the prohibition movement in Portland and other parts of the state are not much disturbed by the official election returns from Multnomah county, which give a "wet" majority of 95 votes in the county.

While they are disappointed that Multnomah is not lined up with the solid "dry" counties of the state, they point to their majority of more than 35,000 votes in Oregon at large as a sufficient indication of the sentiment of the people.

However, it is pointed out, the "drys" would have a powerful weapon in shaping future legislation had Multnomah county remained in the "dry" column, where the unofficial returns placed it.

The coming session of the legislature is expected to take action to make the prohibition law effective. With every county in the state returning a majority in favor of prohibition, the legislators would be forced, almost, to give unanimous support to the prohibition program. Before the Multnomah official count was completed Clatsop was the only county in the state in the "wet" column and the margin there was only 35 votes.

Few members in the Clatsop and Multnomah delegations, it is believed, are inclined to take advantage of the fact that their county has voted "wet" and hold out against the "dry" program.

However, the vote in the remainder of the state was so overwhelmingly in favor of prohibition that any efforts on the part of the local legislators against the enforcement laws would be ineffective and it is certain that representatives of the outside counties will vote in support of prohibition. They would hear from their constituents if they should do otherwise.—Oregonian.

Ashland and Weston both had a majority for normal schools in this county. Though small the vote shows that this county values higher education.

Best Cough Medicine for Children.

Three years ago when I was living in Pittsburgh one of my children had a hard cold and coughed dreadfully. Upon the advice of a druggist I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it benefited him at once. I find it the best cough medicine for children because it is pleasant to take. They do not object to taking it," writes Mrs. Lafayette Tuck, Homer City, Pa. This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. ### THE NEW MONEY.

With the inauguration of the regional reserve banking system we are to have a new money, a different money than any we have ever used before. It is paper money based upon the business enterprise and solvency of the community in which it is issued.

Money is interesting always. New money, doubly so. Even when a new copper cent, a new dime or a new nickel is put out we take note of it forthwith. It is like the introduction of a person of quality in our midst. We are curious to see what it is like, and compare it with old acquaintances of the same class. Interest is all the greater where the denominations of the new currency are higher.

This new paper money represents the establishment of a system of larger credits over the entire business area of the country. It means that the credit privileges and emoluments once concentrated are now distributed according to the need of every business community. Under it the promissory note with business enterprise and business profit to rely upon, may put its shoulder to the wheel of industry and commerce, just as it would if the transaction were wholly between private individuals with this difference, that the new money enables such credit to move in a steady and effective stream in whatever direction it is most needed. The regulation of it is absolutely safeguarded. There is no chance for inflation, no chance for material loss. All things considered the new money promises to be the most serviceable of any we have ever had.—Telegram.
