A GRANGE MOVEMENT.

The decision reached at Evening Star grange on Saturday, to have a county agriculturist appointed, is a move that has been delayed for a year by the opposition of several of the subordinate granges and Pomona grange. Rockwood grange stood alone a year ago in asking the county commissioners to make the appointment; now the others are falling into line and there is a probability that the appointment will be made.

There will be no extra cost as the appropriation for salary has been provided for in the estimates; besides the state pays half. The appointee will be from the agricultural college and will bring the experience of the college to the farmers.

Another movement, started at the Evening Star session on Saturday, would launch a campaign for increasing the grange membership of this county by at least 500. It has been apparent that the granges have been losing members during the past two years, the decrease during that time being about 200. This decrease was partially brought about by the grange opposition to the county expert idea, but it has at last dawned upon the granges that a county expert will stimulate their growth by the work he will do toward teaching people how to farm who are not now making much of a success at the business.

Another feature is the proposed field day meeting next spring. With every effort combined there would be an awakening all along the line. The farms would be better tilled, the granges would become more popular and there would be greater prosperity.

There is room for several more granges in Multnomah county. One should be organized at Rose City Park; another at Fulton; another at Linnton, and probably one or two more places. Nor is it necessary to exclude them from the outskirts of the city of Portland. In many eastern cities there are big flourishing granges in the cities, so why not here?

The Gresham fair grounds would be a good place for the proposed field meeting, therefore it is suggested that Gresham grange take the matter up in co-operation with Evening Star.

CARNEGIE LIBRARIES.

A dispatch from Chicago says that there are too many "mausoleums" all over the country, meaning Carnegie libraries that are not properly maintained by the people.

It is now proposed to increase the requirement of local maintenance to 15 per cent of the cost, annually. The public librarian of Denver says that this action "would result in fewer libraries, but in greater benefits. The library building is the last thing a town needs, anyway; the books and the librarians come first."

The Denver librarian seems to be right. At least he has described the situation in Gresham, where the library is a popular institution and is liberally maintained and patronized. Here we had the librarian and the books long before we were given the Carnegie library. It was popular then and demanded a permanent home which it now has, and instead of being a "mausoleum" it is a temple.

Perhaps there is a difference between the people of Gresham and some other places, but the Carnegie library is not in a graveyard, although it is a monument to the munificence of its donor and the enterprise of those who now have it and appreciate it.

The man who tempts the "white slave" law by transporting a woman across state lines is in danger; but how about it if he goes across the line himself? There is the essence of blackmail in the application of the law in some cases.

An expert is teaching the ten commandments of health. There is but one of importance—live naturally. The other nine are the same thing repeated.

WHO KNOWS OF A CRIPPLED CHILD?

The Outlook has received an appeal from the Oregon State Federation of Women's clubs, asking for information about any crippled children in this county who could be aided by a state-wide organization to furnish free medical treatment of the most modern scientific kind in all cases where the family income is not sufficient for expensive consultation with specialists.

The Federation, which includes a hundred women's clubs in all parts of the state, asks anyone who knows of a little victim of an accident, of spinal meningitis, of infantile paralysis, of tuberculosis in the bones or joints, or any other crippling cause, to write the details of the case to Mrs. Millie R. Trumbull, secretary Child Welfare Commission, 250 1/2 Third street, Portland, Ore.

The club women maintain that these little cripples, besides being the most pitiful of all cases of helplessness, and besides being entirely without organized assistance in contrast with the great state institutions which care for the deaf, the blind, the feeble-minded and even the delinquent, are also the most curable if treated in time, and the most able when so treated to make good, strong, useful citizens instead of charges on public charity all their lives.

Shorthorns Prominent at Portland Stock Show.

At the recent stock show held at the Portland stockyards, a large number of Shorthorn cattle were sold at auction, individual animals bringing record-breaking prices. In commenting on this feature of the show, Manager O. M. Plummer says:

"The Shorthorn sale was very satisfactory to consignees as well as to those who secured animals. The spreading of this good breed of cattle augurs much for the beef industry in this western country. Among some of the unusual results of the sale may be noted the following:

Shorthorn bull, Clifton King, owned by Frank Brown, sold to J. B. Cornett, of Sheffs, for $900, one of the highest prices paid in a western show ring for many years.

Cow, Roan Beauty, sold for $700. Cow, Lilydale, sold for $610; both were owned by Frank Brown and sold to H. G. Keyt, of Perrydale.

Bull, Roan Victor, owned by A. D. Dunn, sold to M. R. Rose, of California, for $600.

Bull, Pet Minority, owned by J. B. Cornett, sold to Wm. Rettle, of Fossil, Oregon, for $580.

If there is luck in odd numbers nineteen-fifteen should be a lucky year.

Troutdale went "dry" on Thursday at midnight with all the joyous hilarity that it could muster. Happy Troutdale.

That broken resolution cannot be mended now, although the break is only four days old. Try it again next New Year's day.

With wheat going up the bakers would be justified in building their loaves on the Swiss cheese plan of more holes than cheese.

This is the month of lodge installations and the Outlook would be pleased to have full reports of such doings from every locality.

The cackle of the hen, heard more frequently of late, justifies the market reports that eggs are getting cheaper. Perhaps the cackle has some bearing on the market.

The new immigration law would exclude all negroes from landing in the United States. Such a law three hundred years ago would have prevented the civil war.

A great many of the "war pictures" now being published could just as easily be taken at or near any American army post. Perhaps they were. The movie artists can fake up almost anything, even a war in Europe.

One week more and the legislature will be unuzzled, but the voters have given the members their instructions as to economy with the tax payers' money. Otherwise the muzzles will be clamped on and their teeth will be pulled next election.

At the request of Senator Lane, the Interior Department is taking steps to ascertain the holdings of private owners within the proposed new boundaries of Crater Lake National Park, with a view to preparing a bill for the recommended extension of the park.

A meeting of all organizations and growers interested in fruit and vegetable by-products will be held in Portland on January 25. A committee appointed at the conference held at Spokane some time ago expects to be able to make a full report on conditions throughout the Northwest.

CALIFORNIA QUARENTINE CONSIDERED

By L. H. WELLS.
PORTLAND, Dec. 31.—Special.

Delegates from Multnomah, Clackamas, Washington and other counties will attend the meeting to be held in the Rosarian room of the Commercial club on the afternoon of January 5 to further consider the question of a quarantine against California potatoes. Granges in Clackamas and Multnomah counties have expressed themselves as favoring a quarantine, provided it is established that California potatoes are infected and liable to contaminate Oregon potatoes. J. J. Johnson, master-elect of Multnomah county Pomona grange, said yesterday that much interest is being shown in the coming meeting, and that many delegates will come to insist on a quarantine.

Mr. Johnson has a copy of a tentative general inspection law proposed for Oregon, Washington and California, which will be considered at the meeting of January 5. This bill provides for a head inspector in each state and according to the copy in the possession of Mr. Johnson the proposed law would be in the nature of reciprocity in the three states. The granges of the three counties have had the inspection matter under consideration for some time.

It seems to be conceded that the Oregon product should be protected at all hazards, but at the same time caution must be observed, or Oregon growers will suffer more than they gain. It is a fact that Oregon and California potatoes do not mature at the same time, and that there has been an interchange of the products of the two states. We ship our potatoes to California at a time when they are short there, and we get the California products at a time when we are short in Oregon. If we should quarantine against the California tuber it would operate against California being a market for Oregon potatoes and hence, there should be great caution exercised in establishing a quarantine against California tubers. It should be demonstrated beyond question that such quarantine is needed to protect Oregon from infection.

Reports of the community Christmas tree and relief committees of St. Johns submitted full reports at a meeting held Tuesday night. The Christmas tree committee was dissolved, but it was decided to make the relief work a permanent work in St. Johns. V. W. Mason, who has been chairman of the relief committee, Recorder E. A. Dunsmore and K. C. Couch, president of the St. Johns Commercial Club, were appointed to carry on the permanent relief work this winter and next winter. This committee will make a careful record of the families aided this winter for future reference, and will co-operate with the city, which has 60 men at work cutting wood in the Catton tract. Chairman Mason outlined the general plan of the future work of the relief committee, and stated that the committee wants co-operation of all churches, business men and civic organizations in St. Johns in this permanent work. Much credit was given Chairman Mason for the success of the work so far. His report showed that in cash and groceries, food and fuel, there had been received $734. The balance on hand is, cash, $160; groceries, $100; canned fruits, jellies and clothing, $173, which will be distributed as may be needed.

"There is now a fine united spirit in St. Johns," said Mrs. Mason, which is the result of the community Christmas celebration relief work. The people are united, and the plans we have adopted will take care of the needy effectually for all time."

Leonard Agnew, a civil war veteran, died very suddenly at his home 493 East thirty-fourth street south. He had been in good health, and dropped dead without warning of any sort. Agnew was 72 years of age, and has a wife and family. He was a member of Sumner Post, No. 12, G. A. R., and the post was in session when a telephone message received at the court house announced the sudden death of Comrade Agnew. He had been a member of Company B, 135th Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer. Sumner Post had charge of the funeral services which was held from Lerch's chapel, corner East Eleventh and East Clay streets.

Union evangelistic services will start in the temporary tabernacle erected on East Eleventh and East Belmont streets next Sunday night to continue through the month of January. E. J. Bulgin, an evangelist of some note, will be in charge.

GRESHAM, OREGON

Professor George L. Rose, from California, will be the musical director. The tabernacle was built through the combined work of volunteers from all the eleven churches which are backing the union meetings. A very fine united spirit is shown in the membership of these churches, and if nothing more is gained it will result in a better spirit of union between the denominations. It is always a question whether these spasmodic efforts result in a permanent good, but it some times takes a charge of dynamite to move some people.

An enterprise in Wallowa county which is now well under way is the erection of a mammoth lumber manufacturing plant and the construction of twenty miles of railroad. The grading on this railroad has been completed and several miles of steel laid. The mill will have a capacity of 100,000 feet of lumber per day and will be owned and operated by a syndicate of capitalists with headquarters at Kansas City. The mill is expected to be in operation by July 1 and it is estimated that it will take fifteen years of continuous operation to exhaust the merchantable pine owned by the company.

In Portland, on February 15, 16 and 17, will be held the Ninth annual congress of the Oregon Retail Merchants' association. This is one of the most important organizations in the state, having a membership of nearly 3,000, and practically every club and organization in Portland will assist in receiving and entertaining the visitors.

Are you holding fast to all those good resolutions yet?
