Consolidation Will Benefit Entire State.

The working out of details in connection with the consolidation of the Portland Commercial club and the Chamber of Commerce is progressing rapidly and smoothly and within a very short time all the varied, and frequently duplicated, activities of these two important bodies will be welded into one harmonious and effective unit. Under the direction of the new organization the work of development of the state and its resources will receive more consideration than ever before. The budget committee is unanimous in the opinion that greater efforts should be made in the future to assist established industries in all the communities of the state and that it is up to Portland to live up to the record already made in this line and to make great additions to the work already outlined.

The entire strength of the organization will be united in a comprehensive program for the development of Oregon; to help farmers to profitably market their produce; to finance the small farmer who finds himself unable to secure a suitable location; to welcome the new settler and help him to select and establish a new home; to take care of the great number of travelers expected to visit the state during the present year and to effectively apply the knowledge gained during the past ten years to meeting the present and future requirements of the business interests of the whole state.
