"The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins."

Official paper of the Town of Gresham, Oregon.
Official paper of the Town of Fairview, Oregon.

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the Postoffice at Gresham, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

A HEALING SORE.

The big papers of the nation are just now speculating over the problem of who will be the republican nominee for next president. Some of them are even wondering who will be pitted against Woodrow Wilson for the democratic nomination. While it is rather early to make forecasts—and none of the papers are doing that just yet—it is inevitable, however, that there should be a discussion of presidential possibilities.

It is noticed that the democrats are grooming Taft for the republican standard bearer, but they are all fighting shy of Roosevelt; yet they expect to again elect the president.

Nothing could be more foolish and suicidal than for republicans to re-echo the sentiment first expressed by democrats, that Taft should be the candidate. Such a nomination would not only drive back into opposition a considerable number of republicans who have returned to the party fold from the progressive ranks, but it would offer less than no chance to attract any of the Roosevelt supporters. And it should never be overlooked that the republican party will need every vote to make victory certain next year.

The field for a choice is large and both Taft and Roosevelt should be eliminated, and if a victory is to be clinched, a nomination must be avoided which will tend to re-open the healing sore of the last campaign. To achieve this end all of the intelligence of the republicans must be employed.

A BLESSING IN DISGUISE.

With the spraying season drawing to a close it might be appropriate to remark that the fruit tree pests are the greatest blessings that Oregon ever had. With the woolly aphis, San Jose scale and the brown-tail moth the state is thrice blessed, for with them came the knowledge to the farmers that they must get out and take care of their trees or lose them.

This knowledge was instrumental in causing the fruit growers to "get a move on" with the result that Oregon produces the best fruits and gets the best prices the world over.

The best fruit country in the United States needed an awakening. The awakening came with the pests, so if it does cost something to spray the results are greater than ever before. It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good.

The Farm Land Bureau of the Oregon Development League has issued a pamphlet in which is listed nearly 500 farms for sale in every county in Oregon. Three excellent farms near Gresham are included. Those interested may address J. W. Brewer, manager, Portland.

Unless there is a rearrangement of present plans, the Cello canal will be opened for the passage of boats for five days in April, probably between the 10th and 15th, and it is expected that a number of steamers now on the upper river will be brought to Portland for overhauling and two or more boats will carry freight from Portland to Pasco, Kennewick and other points. Construction work on the canal is practically finished, but little remaining to be done except to clean out an accumulation of refuse and to build a few bridges for the accommodation of owners of fish wheels and two for the passage of teams. The canal is being finished several weeks earlier than was expected, and it will probably be opened permanently for navigation on May 1st.

WILLAMETTE DONOR IS REMEMBERED

P. W. Severson, of Portland, but who is well known to a large number of people in Eastern Multnomah, recently passed his eighty-fifth birthday anniversary. It will be remembered that he was the donor of $100,000 to Willamette University.

In remembrance of that event the Willamette Collegian has the following in its issue of March 24:

Even in times of extreme excitement Willamette's students do not forget their friends. On the very evening of the most hotly contested Glee contest of years, it was remembered that the occasion was the birthday of one of Willamette's benefactors. About two years ago Mr. P. W. Severson gave to the university a handsome hundred thousand dollar gift. This never-to-be-forgotten deed was called to mind in a special Student Body meeting convened just previous to the Glee performance. The following telegram of appreciation and congratulation was ordered sent to Mr. Severson.

Mr. P. W. Severson,
85 East Sixteenth St.,
Portland, Oregon.

Dear Mr. Severson:—Our entire school assembled tonight for the Freshman Glee, has given an unanimous vote to extend to you our most hearty congratulations on the occasion of your eighty-fifth birthday, and have asked me to express to you the gratitude with which they always remember you and their sincere wish that this birthday may be a happy one and that you may have many happy returns of the day.

(Signed) Emery Doane,
President of Student Body.

An Era of Better Business Conditions

The legislature has adjourned without enacting any reactionary legislation attacking business or industries—it went the other way and gave more attention to constructive policies.

The effort of the legislature as a whole was directed to making it easier for industries, placing fewer burdensome regulations on corporations and capital helping development.

The feeling is growing among the people that big business as well as small business is entitled to profits, and that industries and payrolls are more desirable than agitation and regulation.

If railroads and public utility corporations cannot make money, cannot pay interest on bonds, cannot earn dividends for stockholders, there is no future for this large field of investments.

As the community curbs the initiative of private enterprise, it drives out capital and forces public ownership with increased taxation in nine cases out of ten as the only alternative.

Then why should not legislatures, city and county governments, courts and commissions become constructive and helpful instead of attacking undertakings of private capital?

State, county and city have the right to collective enterprises, but they have no right to drive out or destroy the opportunities for private capital in any legitimate field.

The right of reasonable regulation is conceded, but there is an obligation that this regulation shall be helpful and shall conserve the fountains of prosperity.

All Water Trip to San Francisco.

PORTLAND, March 25.—Special—As a finale of the week of celebration May 3-8 in honor of the opening of The Dalles-Cello canal, numbers of citizens of the Columbia basin are planning to extend their journey to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, where they will celebrate "Columbia River Day" on May 10th, in honor of the 123d anniversary of the discovery of the Columbia River in 1792 by Captain Robert Gray. A large percentage of the excursionists will take their automobiles with them and, after touring the exposition city and California points, will make the return overland in their machines. The plan is to make the entire trip going by water, taking steambot at Lewiston, Pasco, Kennewick, Wallula, Umatilla and other river ports, and transferring to the ocean lines at Astoria. The travelers purpose to widely advertise the fact that they have made an all-water voyage of from 500 miles inland in the Columbia basin to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, incidentally distributing information respecting The Dalles-Cello Canal and its effect upon the commerce of the Columbia basin. Many of the retail grocers of the Inland empire will be in the party as delegates to the National convention in San Francisco, Co. May 10th. "Columbia River day" has been officially designated by President Charles C. Moore, of the Exposition Board of Directors.

Notice for Bids.

Sealed bids will be received by the Executive committee of Multnomah grange, No. 71, for painting the Orient Grange hall. Specifications to be had from the committee. All bids to be in by April 15, 1915. Executive committee reserves the right to reject any and all bids.
R. I. ANDERSON, Chairman.
MRS. MYRTLE JOHNSON, Sec'y.

HOW DONEY QUEERED THE MOONSHINERS

The Willamette Collegian in its last issue has the following characteristic story of the newly-elected president of Willamette University:

When Dr. Doney first became president of the W. Va. Wesleyan, he started out over the hills and dales of mountainous West Virginia to secure students. One day he was overtaken by darkness in a back woods region and the chances for shelter looked slim. He continued and finally saw perched on the hillside a little log-cabin. Riding up he inquired if he could stay over night, the old mountaineer consented and took him into the cabin. There were only three in this family; the man, his wife and a son, about twenty years of age. After supper in the course of conversation Dr. Doney asked, "I hear there are moonshiners in this part of the country, do you know the whereabouts of any?"

This question was one which any mountaineer of that region would look upon suspiciously for government inspectors are hated, the old man concluded that this stranger was one. They talked about college and what its advantages were for awhile. The doctor retired. His room was in the attic. Long after he had gone to bed he could hear voices mumbling and he began to fear that his death was being planned. Nothing happened, however, and when morning came he went down and the old couple began to ask him how much money it would take to send their son to college. He told them, but they did not have that amount, but the son went back to Buckhannon and began school, working his way through. The first year he was backward and slow, but before he finished he had knocked off the rough traces of the backwoodsman. Some few years later Dr. Doney was in another part of the state lecturing and a well dressed, shrewd looking man came up to him and spoke. He did not remember him and the man introduced himself saying: "Do you remember stopping over night at a log cabin some years ago, and asking about moonshine?" Well, I was one of them, but after I had gone to your school one year, I came home and smashed up the 'still' and have since succeeded in cleaning up the rest of those in the community, and I am now interested in the prohibition work."

Thus Dr. Doney had unconsciously struck a blow, the immediate effect of which he had not foreseen.

Payroll of 13,000 Names.

Nearly $20,000,000 was expended by the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation company in the states of Washington, Oregon and Idaho during the year 1914, according to figures just compiled. The exact amount is $19,735,803.73. The statement further shows that more than 13,000 names appear on the annual payroll and that between 65,000 and 75,000 persons are dependent on the operation of the Union Pacific system in the Northwest. For the year ending June 30, 1914, the O. W. R. & N. paid $1,390,698.65 in taxes. In the three states $5,042,425.71 was spent in the construction of new lines.

There are 2,000,000 persons unemployed in the United States whose yearly earnings should be about $1,250,000,000, says Theo. N. Vaill, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, in the annual report of the company just issued. Those unemployed are now living at the expense of savings, their friends or the public, he says, and what is needed to bring about their re-employment and the return of prosperity is a restoration of conditions which would inspire confidence in the securities of public service and manufacturing enterprises to enable them to obtain capital for extension and improvement. A billion dollars a year is needed, he asserts, to put these enterprises in a position to meet the demands of the country, both as "growing" and "going" concerns and if they could begin the expenditures of even a part of that sum "it would restore the normal conditions of employment, expenditure, consumption and production."

To the Housewife.
Madam, if your husband is like most men he expects you to look after the health of yourself and children. Coughs and colds are the most common of the minor ailments and are most likely to lead to serious diseases. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when it has a cold. If you will inquire into the merits of the various remedies that are recommended for coughs and colds, you will find that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy stands high in the estimation of people who use it. It is prompt and effective, pleasant and safe to take, which are qualities especially to be desired when a medicine is intended for children. For sale by all Dealers.—Adv.
