BUSINESS MEN IN POLITICS

In one sense there has been altogether too much "business" in politics, and in another sense, and in a much better sense, there has not been enough. There has been in the years gone by too much selfish, privilege-seeking business in politics; the kind of business which seeks an unfair and improper advantage through legislation.

Exactly because there was too much of this sort of business in politics, an opening was made through which the demagogue entered, who profiting by the just resentment felt against such privilege-hunting business men, carried on a thousand schemes, ignorantly and maliciously aimed at all business, to its serious injury and harm.

What is needed, and imperatively before the next campaign, is that business men generally should take an active interest in politics in order to prevent unjust and dishonest attacks upon legitimate business, to promote such legislation as will give honest business a chance to prosper. The legislative lobbies, fresh in memory, are reminders of this need.

Someone has wisely said that the average man thinks more clearly and soundly on an empty stomach. Figuratively speaking the empty stomach is a condition now and it is therefore the best time to think. The returns from the election of 1914 demonstrated that the people were thinking far more rationally last year than in 1910 and 1912. The figurative emptiness of the stomach which made for clear thinking was felt even more keenly in business circles than among the farmers and working people. This clarity of vision and clean-cut habit of thought on the part of the business men will be imperatively in demand next year.

The nation has learned in bitterness and sorrow that American business enterprise and prosperity cannot be indefinitely embarrassed and hampered without the whole country paying the penalty. It is of primary importance that American business be prosperous if the country itself is to be prosperous.

The experience of the past three years should have demonstrated to every business man the dangerous folly of leaving politics to the politicians. There is acute need in American political life of exactly the qualities which have given American business its unique character and success. We shall never achieve the maximum efficiency in government until we have applied to government the same principles of efficiency which have been applied to business.

The call of the hour is to every American business man. He must, for his own protection, abandon his distaste of politics and give to the country an unstinted and willing service to the end that political control shall be wrested from the hands of incompetence, demagogery and petty corruption, and supplanted by sound and wholesome business deals. This condition is demanded in national, state, county and local politics.

The men who die in the trenches will not be burdened with the war debt. It may not be consoling but it is a fact that those who don't die will have to begin paying off the obligations and they will leave the bulk of it to their descendants even to the third and fourth generations.

Dr. Cook has announced that he will climb Mount Everest, the highest peak in the world. It must be admitted that he has the descriptive powers to do it.

The periscope of the rose festival bobs up once in a while down in Portland, which indicates that a carnival torpedo will be due in about three weeks.

A suggestion to those who have fine lawns is to prepare to go fishing, remembering that there is a fish worm at the root of every dandelion.

From a Railroad official: "Mr. Woonacott's lecture on the Passion play is one of the most instructive and heart touching I ever heard."

SCHOOL BOARD CONVENTION

There would be great possibilities for good in a state conference of school board members. Other public officers have their conventions—county clerks, assessors, and sheriffs—so why not an annual convention of school directors? It could be headed by the state superintendent and would be attended by the county superintendents and many of the most prominent educators of the state.

The advantages would be many. Such a conference would bring together school boards of the entire state, instead of keeping them so widely apart, and it would give them an opportunity to compare notes and general instruction.

It is important and well worth the while that the educational interests should be brought together for a conference with the state authorities in the department of education.

And there would be material in plenty for them to discuss. There are new and important laws bearing on the conduct of the schools, and it is a matter of considerable consequence that there should be a thorough understanding of these laws on the part of those who will have the direct responsibility of their application.

Besides all this there is much to be gained from the comparison of ideas, which goes far to enable the school board in one community to see a situation from the different viewpoint of another board in another part of the state. The formal addresses for which arrangements could be made would be delivered by prominent educators who would disseminate improved ideas for future consideration of those who have the direct management of the Oregon schools, and such a convention would be altogether profitable.

The American Fisheries Society suggests fish ponds on farms, wherever available, as a means of cutting down the high cost of living. The advice is good, but who would do the farm work with a fish pond in the back yard?

Catholic Institution Benefactor: "The most kindly and sympathetic lecture I have ever heard was Mr. Woonacott's lecture on the Passion Play."

No such slogan as "Remember the Maine" would answer the purpose in England. "Remember the whole flock," would be more to the purpose.

Americans may need cranking up to meet an emergency, but only once. After that they are self-starters.

A narrow-minded man is one who sees the whole panorama of life through a crack in the fence.

In the event of an extra session of Congress it will convene under the head of "new business."

Next to the Germans the ones most responsible for the tragedy were the officers of the Lusitania.

SUMMONS.

In the Justice Court for Multnomah District, County of Multnomah, State of Oregon.

Aaron Fox, Plaintiff vs. Geo. H. Griffin, Defendant.

To the above named Defendant, Geo. H. Griffin

In the name of the State of Oregon you are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled action on or before the 14th day of June, 1915, that being the time fixed by me for you to appear and answer, for want thereof, the plaintiff will take judgment against you for the relief demanded in the complaint, to-wit: for the sum of $239.86 and for his costs and disbursements in this action.

And you are further notified that the plaintiff has caused to be issued, through this court, a writ of attachment and also caused a garnishment to be served on the County Clerk of Multnomah County, Oregon, who has in his possession a certain sum of money belonging to you and which is being held subject to the outcome of said action.

This summons is served upon you by publication thereof for six consecutive weeks in the Gresham Outlook by an order made by me, Justice of the Peace for the District, County and State above named, which order is dated on the 10th day of April 1915.

B. F. ROLLINS, Justice of the Peace, Gresham, Oregon.

General von Schubert, of whom little is heard, has won great honors in the present war. His official title is general of the artillery of the German army, and to him more than to any other one person is due the credit for the manner in which the German artillery has performed the work mapped out for it in the war thus far.

A man who has just enjoyed a good sound sleep is both taller and lighter than he was before. The intervals of sleep required by different individuals vary greatly, according to one writer. He calls attention to the fact that babies sleep about twenty hours out of the twenty-four.

The new "Almanach de Gotha" makes known that up to now seven German princes have been killed in the war—i. e., Princes Frederick and Ernest of Saxe-Meiningen, Max of Hesse, Rudolf and Ernest of Lippe, Wolsath of Waldeck-Pyrmont and Henry XLVI of Reuss.

A Butter and Egg Account

A short time ago an enterprising woman made $100 from selling butter and eggs. Instead of keeping it in the household stove, she put it in the Bank. She had added to it and the sum mounted up. You can open an account here for $1.00. You can bring it or mail it. May we help you save money?
