THE NATION'S CHILDREN.

Two great meetings of national scope and importance were held last week: one in Portland, the other in Baltimore. They illustrated in a striking manner the tremendously intensified interest in American child welfare during the past twenty years. The Portland meeting was distinctively and, in the last analysis, exclusively in the interest of children, for it was the nineteenth annual conference on the welfare of children under the auspices of the National Mothers' Congress and Parent-Teachers' associations. Four days were devoted to its sessions, and the men and women of twenty years and more hence will feel, if they do not openly acknowledge, the benefit of this and similar conferences.

The Baltimore meeting represented a movement which in its aims is older by many years than the other in organized form; and while it comprehended unfortunate of all ages in its range of endeavor, the children are, after all the chief beneficiaries. It was the forty-second annual meeting of the National conference of Charities and Correction. It lasted through six days and brought together a notable assemblage of men and women from all parts of the country.

The subjects to which special attention was paid this year were unemployment, inebriety, outdoor relief, illegitimacy and social evil, feeble-mindedness, and the relation between public and private charities. The establishment of a children's bureau as a part of the federal government at Washington has unquestionably come about through the efforts of these organizations. There is practically no limit to the good that they may do and are even doing now. Generations yet unborn will rise up and call them blessed.

UNCLE SAM AFTER THEM.

The seditious utterances of the Menace—a name fittingly self-applied—has brought the publishers of that anti-Catholic weekly paper into trouble with the federal court at Kansas City, and they have been ordered to trial on indictments charging them with using the mails for the transmission of obscene matter. The freedom of the press is safely guaranteed by the constitution, but when the freedom thus allowed degenerates into outrageous abuse of the privilege, those responsible therefore are justly held amenable to the law in severe penalties.

The Catholics of America constitute a large proportion of our most patriotic citizenship, and any publication that seeks to array religious prejudice against them to the extent that the Menace has by its inflammatory utterances has no legitimate place in American journalism.

The Dunkards, a religious sect, has issued a declaration against the automobile, forbidding its members from owning cars. The world moves but the Dunkards seem inclined to remain stationary. They prefer old Dobbin and the one-hoss shay which is their privilege if they feel that way.

Dispatches convey the intelligence that Marconi, the wireless inventor, has joined the colors in Italy, probably having been called by his government. It would seem that men of his importance should be exempt from military duty in any nation.

A Chicago doctor says sleeping with the head pointed due north will cure many diseases. We wish the Oregon people would try it for the malady which causes so many good republicans to vote the democratic ticket.

Senator Harry Lane will speak in Gresham next Friday night, and if a few educational squalls do not rattle in this vicinity for awhile, we shall quit the guessing game for a spell and have our instruments tested.

Less than a month of spring remains and the promised drive of the allies appears to have been delayed by a punctured tire or something.

A WORLD CONGRESS.

Last week at Cleveland, Ohio, the World Court Congress was formally opened. It was a gathering of national leaders who advocated the establishment of an international court of justice through which it is hoped to eliminate war.

The theory and purpose of this congress, and of all other organized efforts to establish permanent peace, are thoroughly good. If it lay within the power of its sponsors to bring it about, war would cease throughout the civilized world. If the effort at Cleveland or elsewhere can avail, there will be an end of wars for all time to come.

But if human hearts and brains, even such hearts and brains as the men who met at Cleveland, working in earnest co-operation, could have accomplished this, the era of worldwide, permanent peace would have set in long ere now, and the present lamentable war in Europe, or anything like it, would have been impossible; for peace has been the desire of thinking man through many years, and the sincere endeavor to establish it permanently is not an innovation of this year nor of the last hundred years.

Some philosopher has ventured the proposition that, if only two men were left on earth, one of them would be the master and the other would be his servant. Settlement of the question as to which should be which would involve a test, perhaps long, perhaps short, of physical strength. Even the greed for power is an impelling force for man, and until he shall have been educated out of that greed, of such a thing be possible, tests of physical strength will continue at longer or shorter intervals, according as their selfish interests may seem to dictate between nations as between men.

Peace of permanent character, is a grand, lofty and noble ideal for which to work; but it is an ideal, and will continue to be nothing more nor less than that until human intelligence shall have been lifted to a plane far higher than that which it now occupies.

The winner of the present conflict will be satisfied only with the cession of the earth and nine planets, to be selected by a committee of astronomers.

Men in the trenches are asking that the sporting papers be sent them—probably they would relieve the dull monotony of the life they are living.

With the world in the throes of war, it is pleasant to reflect that Oregon has commenced biting into her 1,000,000,000 cherry crop.

There is the per capita circulation of $35.20. Can you believe it from your own experience; but figures don't lie, although liars can figure.

Considering the urgent necessity of a big wheat crop this year, nature is not managing things as well as she was expected to.

Two German scientists have found that the human brain is radio-active and emits a faint glow under certain conditions.

The parcel post system is being attacked as the destroyer of rural communities and the country merchant.

Much would be forgiven if the weather man would send us a few weeks of good sunshine—so that the gardeners could dig out the weeds.

Public management of lands has been a dismal failure in Oregon at the hands of the state government, according to Ex-Governor West.

California is always lucky. Now it has a real volcano to add—and advertise—to its other numerous attractions.

A man might kick at being a widow's second husband, but it's a great deal better than being her first.

A new piano for traveling musicians weighs but 120 pounds and can be packed and shipped like a trunk.

A New York judge decrees that fish is meat. Thought we had all the fish prevaricators here.

Clackamas county has a $10,000 damage suit growing out of a jitney accident.

WOMEN COMPLETING FINAL ARRANGEMENTS

Club women of Portland are busily engaged completing the final arrangements for the Biennial Council of the General Federation of Women's clubs, which opens May 31st with an evening reception at Multnomah Hotel, the official headquarters.

There will be morning, afternoon and evening sessions, at the White Temple on June 1, 2 and 3; following the afternoon sessions on the 2d and 3d, the delegates will be conducted over the city in automobiles.

June 4th there will be an all-day picnic at Multnomah Falls. One hundred popular club women of Portland will serve as hostesses, taking lunch for self and five out of town delegates. The Steamer "Undine", famed as the Flagship of The Dalles-Celilo Canal celebration, will carry 300 or more of the Club woman to the picnic place, and a like number will go by train, returning by boat, while those going by boat will make the return trip by train, thus affording all an opportunity to enjoy the river trip and shore scenery one way, and a view of the Columbia Highway and other scenes from the line of the railway.

One of the entertainment features of the week will be a pageant, at the Heilig Theater, "Every Woman's Road," a morality play by Prof. Josephine Hammond, of Reed College, for which advance seat sale is announced. Out of town delegates desiring to make reservations for the play may communicate with Mrs. J. J. Frankel, chairman Finance committee, 270 E. 17th street North, Portland. In blocks of ten the two dollar seats are offered at $1.50 and the $1 seats at 75c for mail orders only.

Gresham club women are planning to take every possible advantage of the opportunities offered in connection with this Biennial Council. It is expected that several will be in attendance at the various sessions.

Mrs. Chas. Cleveland, president of the Gresham Council of Women Voters, urges as many as possible to attend the reception at Multnomah hotel on the evening of May 31. She states that all club women are eligible to attend. Those who wish to do so must register at the White Temple, 12th and Taylor streets, before 4 o'clock on Monday afternoon, and receive an invitation and accompanying admission card. For those from outside the city, who cannot reach Portland by 4 o'clock, the committee will be on duty at the Multnomah hotel during the early hours of the evening, to furnish cards to club women and their gentlemen escorts, who are most cordially invited to attend.

Mrs. Cleveland is making arrangements for automobiles to convey all who wish to go from Gresham on Monday evening. Those desiring to go will do her a favor by calling either Mrs. Cleveland or Mrs. J. N. Clananah as early as possible.

WHAT MIGHT HAPPEN TO SENATOR LANE

Here is what might happen next Friday evening when Senator Harry Lane addresses the high school graduating class—but more than likely it won't:

"My friends, the school work is the bullhouse of civilization. I mean—ah—"

The speaker evidently has a stage fright, not being used to speaking before a Gresham audience.

"The bullhouse is the school work of civ—"

Here is where the audience began to smile. The senator was rattled.

"The workhouse is the bull school of—"

The rattling had got to be a twist. "The school bull is the house-work—"

An audible snicker reveals that the Gresham kids have got the senator's goat.

"The bullschool—"

The senator was getting wild, so were the kids and the teachers and the parents, etc. He mopped perspiration, gritted his teeth and made a fresh start.

"The schoolhouse, my friends—"

A sigh of relief went up. He had his feet under him again. He gazed suavely around. The light of triumphant self-confidence was enthroned upon his brow.

"—is the woolbark—"

Then the lights were switched off.
