A recent issue of the Columbia Herald, published at Houlton, Oregon, contained the following reference to Miss Ethel Smith, who has closed a term of school at that place.

Thursday evening, May 20, at the Wig-Wam was the scene of a gay social given in honor of Miss Ethel Smith who has just closed a most successful term of school here, which was standardized March 19th, being the second standard school in Columbia county. The evening's entertainment consisted of cards, games and dancing, everyone present participating, which made the occasion one long to be remembered. Toward the close of the evening three hearty cheers were given for Miss Smith in testimony of the general esteem in which our teacher is held. On Friday the patrons of the school joined with the children in a picnic dinner at the Wig-Wam. After a sumptuous repast, for which plates for 50 were laid, all adjourned to the schoolhouse to enjoy a brief program and view the various exhibits prepared by the pupils during the term. The program consisted of songs and a playlet entitled, "Vacation Time is Here." Its rendering attested Miss Smith's teaching and training ability. At the close of the program, Miss Marie Hein in a few well chosen words, on behalf of the pupils, presented to Miss Smith a beautiful necklace.

A recently produced playlet of the year 2015 describes the courtship of tomorrow: "The maiden of next century is at a desk dreaming of her future family when the future father of the dream family flies in. To prove that they are truly soulmates the rays which register their feelings meet and blend into one shade of red. While they are talking the youth hears through an individual telephone that he wears around his waist that even though his morals are above reproach he can not marry Jane because his great-great-grandfather led a life of dissipation. Both are in despair until Jane calls up the marriage license office and hears that because of her splendid record they may be married."
