"The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins"

Official paper of the Town of Gresham, Oregon. Official paper of the Town of Fairview, Oregon.

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the Postoffice at Gresham, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

LAUBER VS. STANLEY.

The decision of the six jurymen in the case of Lauber versus Stanley, tried before Judge Rollins, as announced in Tuesday's Outlook, in awarding the plaintiff damages in the sum of one dollar, is not of a kind to encourage the farmer to feel very safe in using the public roads or very favorable toward the autoist.

Mr. Lauber was driving a herd of valuable cattle along a public road to his farm near Gresham. It was dark and he had no light on his wagon. The cows were following along behind the wagon. He met an auto load of young people and turned out, giving half the road. The auto turned out to pass the wagon and not seeing the cows, two of them were struck and one so badly injured it died soon after at the owner's barn. The farmer demanded settlement from the owner of the auto but was refused. The trial resulted. The loss to Mr. Lauber was estimated at $100. He got one dollar, is out his attorney fees and it is believed has not the right to appeal. In fact, it was contended Mr. Lauber should have paid for the damages to the auto.

If Mr. Lauber was entitled to damages at all he should have had an adequate amount. If not entitled to any the decision should have been so rendered. The matter of rendering a verdict to technically cut him off from any further recourse to justice was certainly unjust and unworthy. The fact that Mr. Lauber did not have a light on his wagon as the law required had nothing whatever to do with causing the accident. The wagon was seen and turned out for.

It was one of those accidents which no law could provide against but which any autoist is liable to have unless extreme care is used and which the autoist should be willing to settle for.

MEXICO'S CONDITION

We Americans, in our daily perusal of the slaughter in Europe, with its ever increasing expansion and ferocity, should pause occasionally and contemplate the extremities to which revolution has reduced and is still further reducing our neighbor republic on the south. Before the war in Europe broke out this Mexican affair was considered our choicest morsel of news on the front page. For many weeks now European affairs have overshadowed all else to such an extent as virtually put Mexico out of the popular reckoning.

Yet the carnage in Mexico is as severe and as bloody now as it has been at any time, and the incidental horrors of it are impressing themselves more than ever before upon the Mexican people as a whole.

Mexico City is famine-stricken, and the problem throughout the country is no longer merely to decide as to which of the aspiring war chiefs shall have next turn at occupying the national palace, but the far more practical and very urgent one of how to get something to eat.

REMARKABLE FORECAST

The value of a reliable correspondent to a newspaper was illustrated in the forecast made last Tuesday by L. H. Wells, our Portland associate, who foretold the election of Bigelow and Baker as city commissioners. It was not guess work that picked the winners from a field of eleven, but a close calculation of existing conditions. Mr. Wells' long experience as a newspaper reporter enables him to judge correctly in such matters and his prognostications are based on such facts as are presented to his understanding from a study of the situation. His letters to the Outlook are always reliable as well as interesting.

When a man works for himself he has no need of a time-keeper, although a good watch comes in very handy about dinner time.

The cucumber knocks a man out on the final count after he gets it down.

NEXT CONVENTION CITY

The first indication of the approach of a nation-wide political disturbance was the active grooming of "favorite sons" by several states in the republican zone. This has been in progress for several months but is now being succeeded by the claims of a number of the larger cities for the honor of playing host to the republican national convention which is due in about a year from now.

Among the most active of the big cities are Chicago, Philadelphia, Minneapolis, St. Louis and Baltimore. All are preparing to qualify as competitors in the contest, the process of qualification being the raising of a sum to be offered the republican national committee for the privilege of "entertaining" the delegates. In recent years the sum realized in this manner is said to be considerably in excess of the cost of entertainment and the balance has gone into the pot as a nucleus of the campaign fund.

Chicago which has been a favorite convention city for republicans this year suffers a handicap. The memory of what transpired there three years ago between the warring factions of Taft and Roosevelt is still fresh and the very name of Chicago to the republicans is suggestive of strife and disaster. It will take time to overcome the reluctance which party leaders will feel to reconvening the party delegates amid scenes that are so unpleasantly suggestive.

St. Louis and Minneapolis are long shots. Their location and size operate to their disadvantage. Baltimore is a democratic city in a democratic state and will suffer because of that fact. Such a process of elimination leaves Philadelphia, and she has a record of entertaining republican conventions whose candidates have swept the country. Philadelphia has every facility and if she seriously undertakes the job can readily match any financial proposal submitted by her rival sisters. We offer the guess that the city of Brotherly Love is the one best bet in the convention city contest.

The Oregon State Grange, recently in session at Tillamook, adopted a resolution in favor of the one-body legislature. The type of law-making bodies of which the grangers approve would consist of fifteen members in session continuously. Whether the grange's idea of a 15-man house working the year round, will meet with general favor, is extremely doubtful. But a proposition to have the legislature get busy for about six weeks repealing all the surplus laws it could, would probably carry with a large popular vote.—Ontario Democrat.

William J. Bryan resigned from his position of secretary of state on Tuesday and is now at liberty to give his full support to the administration, which he could not do in an official capacity. To the average person he has done the right thing, as he was not in accord with the president's peace policy. He won't be missed—not even on the chautauqua circuit, where he will be more than ever in demand as a rara avis just escaped from the political pen.

Mrs. Kelley of the Child Welfare League attacked Mrs. Frederick Schoff, president of National Mothers Congress, for public addresses in Oregon pleading for employment for children. Mrs. Schoff says habits of industry must be formed young.

The Federation of women's clubs at pink tea in Portland declared that women in the country are ruining their health and morals working in the fruit industries and canneries.

The Dailies cannery will start with 100 girls and women if the Oregon law will permit them to work for wages this cannery can afford to pay.

A woman thinks no more of taking another woman's hatpin than a man does of taking another man's umbrella.

Oregon bank deposits increased $2,690,475 from March 4 to May 1 this year.

WAR ON DOGS

Our esteemed secretary of agriculture in President Wilson's official family, David F. Houston, is megaphoning a cry for help in behalf of the American wool growers. Singularly enough Secretary Houston wants protection for wool. His wool protective policy, however, consists in an urgent admonition to all farmers to work for the passage of laws in their respective states to protect sheep from dogs. He announces that domestic grown wool is important to the mills of the United States, and in order that there may be a supply he calls for the destruction of the dogs, or at least for their control. He seems to think that this is all that is necessary for the protection of wool.

The secretary of agriculture should know that there is an old saw which runs something like this: "Give a dog a bad name and hang him." It is not denied that dogs have been known to kill sheep. It is the nature of the beast. But because the secretary has given the American dog a bad name it is not to be supposed that the farmers are going to hang their dogs; neither will the dogs commit suicide.

Let's Keep Oregon Free from Smoke

Five thousand members of the Portland Chamber of Commerce have enthusiastically joined in a movement which is intended to keep Oregon's atmosphere free of smoke during the season of 1915. Letters are being sent to all correspondents in Oregon urging a cooperative movement in this direction.

With the dry season just beginning it is considered that calling attention to the large number of tourists coming into Oregon this year will be sufficient to arouse the interest of the people of the whole state to the gravity of the situation. Last year thousands of tourists were disappointed. They came to Oregon expecting to see the splendid scenery so widely advertised, and on their arrival found the brush heaps on fire from the Cascades to the coast and the atmosphere resembling a San Francisco fog. Those tourists left Oregon in disgust.

Oregon is spending hundreds of thousands of dollars in building of good roads in many sections of the state and the work is being pushed with vigor at this time in order to have them in readiness for the use of the tourists. All this investment will be lessened in value to the state should the usual practice of burning slashings during the summer prevail. By concerted effort throughout the state the season of 1915 may become the most successful in the history of Oregon in entertaining tourists. If their pleasure is not interfered with it is quite certain that the travel in years to come will be more than doubled.

State-wide prohibition is not going to make all brewery equipment in Oregon entirely useless. The Northwest Fruit Produce company has been incorporated and will take over the buildings of the present Salem Brewery association for the manufacture of loganberry juice and for the canning and preserving of fruits of all kinds. The new company is capitalized at $75,000.

The governor of Oregon has proclaimed Friday, June 11, a legal holiday in order that the residents of the state may have a good excuse to close up their business and attend the Rose Festival. It is expected the attendance on that day will be a record-breaker.

Malheur county is rapidly coming to the front as a dairy section. There is a co-operative cheese factory at Nyssa and it is prospering. The factory is paying 30 cents a pound for butter fat.

Bay City is to have a new saw mill which will be operated as an auxiliary of the Oregon Box Factory.
