COLUMBIA HEIGHTS

Columbia grange was a busy scene on last Wednesday, when Pomona grange met and many prominent grangers were present from all over the county. It was an interesting day, and everybody were glad they came, and to be sure it kept the cooks and waiters on the jump to serve them all at meal time, but judging from the compliments received from everybody, our dinner was most enjoyed especially, the baked salmon. In the evening Mrs. Townsend, of Fairview, took charge of the program, which was interesting. Next Pomona will meet with Lents grange the fourth Wednesday in September.

Mr. Morgan gave a dancing party at Chanticleer Saturday night, which was much enjoyed by the young folks of the Heights.

Dr. Osman Royal, of Portland, has leased some land of J. Deaver and will start at once to build. The plans of the building call for a fifty foot tower, where refreshments will be served to tourists. Mr. Dabney, who owns Dabney park near the clubhouse grounds at the Sandy, is also planning to build on the bluff overlooking the Columbia river.

Plans to have electric lights up here at the Heights, are now under way. Julius Meier our new neighbor, has taken up the business with the Portland Railway and Power Co.

And now, please be good, for we shall soon have a hard surfaced road and it will be Warrenite in spite of all the protest against it. The two big road bosses have their way and we hope they know what is best. More than twenty teams are busy grading here and all we wish for now is some good weather. Now we had better save our nickles and pennies for nothing will do after awhile but an auto.

Miss Ruby Rasmussen is home from Monmouth for the vacation.

R. P. Rasmussen took a party to the Oaks on Sunday to hear Spivoty's band of sixty members, which is very fine.

ODD FELLOWS HONOR POPULAR MEMBER

By L. H. WELLS.

PORTLAND, June 21.—Special—High tributes were paid Robt. Andrews, grand patriarch of the Grand Encampment of Oregon and past grand master of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows of Oregon, Wednesday night at the reception held in Orient hall. The reception was one of the most delightful held and it closed with a banquet attended by nearly 200 members of these two encampments. N. P. Tomlinson presided at the opening meeting.

The interesting feature was the presentation to Mr. Andrews of a beautiful leather rocker, which part of the program was a surprise to him. Chief Patriarch A. S. Starr summoned Grand Patriarch Andrews before him and then told of the various accomplishments he had secured during his life as an Odd Fellow, and as each accomplishment was mentioned Mr. Andrews was presented with a big bouquet of roses, and this continued until he had more roses than he could carry in his arms and the bouquets had to be placed on the floor. While this was being done the leather rocker was rolled into the room concealed with roses, so that it looked like a bower of bloom, and Grand Patriarch Andrews was firmly but gently placed in the rose chair. As he took his seat there came a shower of roses from nearly all the audience. The roses were literally poured in on and over him until he was nearly hidden under the rose covering.

Mr. Andrews responded to the presentation speech, expressing his deepest appreciation of the high honor given him. Mr. Andrews said that if he had been able to be of any service to the Odd Fellows order and the encampment in Oregon it had been more than compensated by the honors tendered him.

Mr. Andrews' record is as follows: He was elected grand master of the Oregon Grand Lodge in 1902, during which time the order made rapid progress and he made important decisions; elected grand representative to Sovereign Grand Lodge 1903-4; elected trustee Odd Fellows Home 1909 and 1915 and served as president of the board since 1912. This home is considered one of the best managed in the United States. Mr. Andrews was elected grand patriarch for the Grand Encampment of Oregon in 1915.

Defeat of W. L. Brewster for reelection as commissioner at the recent election shows that the average voter has no regard whatever for ability, honesty and faithful service. Mr. Brewster was one of the cleanest, ablest and most conscientious man ever to take office in Portland, and gave two years of splendid service, and yet all this was lost sight of completely. Because he did not neglect his duties and make a noisy campaign for re-election he was not known in the fight. And yet, we say popular government is a tremendous success, when it is not, as is shown when merit is thrown into the discard, and 36,000 out of 80,000, men and women, never go near the polls. The man or woman who will neglect to vote is not a good citizen. We were told that when the women were given the ballot they would vote. They do not.

I have come to have a wholesome regard for the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, commonly called Mormons, after attending the dedication of the Portland church and the conference which followed last Monday. I have no use for polygamy, one wife being sufficient for me, but here is a church which does things. It gets substantial results. It feeds the starving family first, and then gives prayers for their souls afterward, which is a good scheme. Most churches pray while the needy are starving. It is hard to save a starving soul. Fill the man up with good "grub" and there is less trouble to reach his soul. The Relief society of the Latter Day Saints held a conference last Monday, and the reports showed a tremendous program of relief. It was shown that this church had on hands 200,000 bushels of wheat stored in the graneries of the United States, and this is used only to help up needy farmers throughout the country. The church sent help to the Belgians and the sufferers at Dayton, Ohio. Of course, the story of the revelation to Joe Smith ninety-five years ago on which the Mormons founded their faith, does not appeal to me, but the policy of the church to help first and pray afterwards does appeal to me.

The fine harmony that has been manifested through the merger of the Third and Hawthorne Park Presbyterian churches of the East Side is highly refreshing, in face of the miserable row that is in progress between the factions of the First Methodist church of Portland. With this example of contention and strife in the Methodists, the Presbyterians decided to avoid all strife, and hence they have united, the merger having been accomplished this week. The Central Presbyterian church, of Portland, has been formed out of two churches, with a membership of 700. More churches ought to unite, the United Presbyterians having formed a big union church on the East Side. Let the union go on until there will be no more struggling churches and half paid pastors.
