

CHERRYVILLE

Professor Warner, principal of Sandy high school, was a caller at Cherry Acres last week.

The Ladies' Aid will meet at the home of Mrs. Geo. Couper Wednesday, July 7th, at 2 o'clock.

Miss Gail Shark went to Portland the past week to spend several days with relatives.

Miss Viola Friel spent the past week with Mrs. Martha Richardson, who is very poorly. She met with a severe fall a few weeks ago and as yet is not able to walk.

Mrs. W. G. Webber has gone to Wasco, eastern Oregon, to spend a few weeks with friends.

Miss Genevive Rugh was a caller at Sandy last Wednesday.

Mrs. Ethel Craig and children and Miss Marie Craig of Camas, Wash., spent the past week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Clark.

Miss Jennie Clark left last week Wednesday to spend several weeks at Camas, Washington.

Rev. G. A. Gray, of Sandy, will preach Sunday, July 11th, at 3 p.m. at the M. E. church.

Perry McDowal and wife of Portland, spent Sunday at the Martin home.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Turner and daughter dined Saturday with J. T. Friel and family, and were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Clark.

It is unnecessary to tremble for the future because of the worries of the past. Ex-Governor West seems to have conquered his mouth since last November, and we may yet live to see many others of the vociferous quiet and thoughtful.

Cured of Indigestion.

Mrs. Sadie P. Clawson, Indiana, Pa., was bothered with indigestion. "My stomach pained me night and day," she writes. "I would feel bloated and have headache and belching after eating. I also suffered from constipation. My daughter had used Chamberlain's Tablets and they did her so much good that she gave me a few doses of them and insisted upon my trying them. They helped me as nothing else has done." For sale by all Dealers.—Adv.

WOMAN TELLS HOW TO MAKE EASY MONEY

A woman who has made some easy money in chickens relates her experience, as follows:

Any woman can raise chicks better and easier without the hen, or heated brooder, than with, and they will grow so much faster, if she will only follow simple instructions.

Any small box can be made into a fireless brooder by a woman who can use tools at all. A box about 18 inches long by 12 wide and 8 to 12 inches high will be a good size for 20 or more chicks when first hatched.

There should be a little door in one corner at the bottom about four inches in size, some air holes near the top, a cover for the top, made of small mesh wire and narrow boards around the edge and a frame made from about two-inch wide thin boards to fit inside of box, to rest on nails or cleats nailed to the sides.

A piece of muslin or flour sack is tacked to this frame. It needs only be tacked at the corners if drawn very tight. Lay a plait where tacked enough, making a fullness to rest on the little chicks' backs. Lay an old wool piece on top, enough to keep them warm.

I invented last year an easy way to make a cover to use for this frame, when they are about a week old. It is made of muslin but not sagging. Tear or cut strips of cloth, blanket or napped is good, about six inches wide and the length needed. Cut this to an inch of the edge, like a fringe, and sew on the machine across muslin top about two inches apart till the cloth is filled. This can easily be taken off and sealed and can be used more than one year. This is much better than tacking to a board cover.

This brooder should be partly filled with warmed straw when the chicks are first put in. They should rest there at least thirty-six hours before feeding.

A small feeding box is needed, with a little door and nearly covered with cloth and glass or wire net at the end to let in light to feed in while very young. A little straw is put in this to scratch in.

They must be put under the hover to rest and keep warm till they learn to go in themselves.

As they grow older they will need larger frame to continue them and this can be set out on the grass. At about three weeks old, take a box about two feet square and put in little roosts about 8 inches high. The lower half of the box should have one board clear across, hung with leather hinges to raise up, so the bottom can be raked with a hoe and fresh soil put in to keep clean. A small opening is made in the back for the chicks to go in.

One side or half should have small mesh wire to let sunlight in. This should be covered at night with a sack. This box is set at one end of their scratch pen on warm days. They will go in this to rest and learn to roost on the perch. They are now old enough to do without top cloth cover.

I have raised chicks this way for five years. The last year from about ninety chicks, I sold most of the little roosters (broilers) in two months from the day hatched, to just about pay the cost of the pullets to this time. The pullets mature early enough to pay their cost with the eggs in the fall.

There is usually grain growing on the farm so the hens can pick that part of their food without cost where there has been a stack of grain from about the first of June till October. The cost cannot be counted very exactly where one grows the grain, but it leaves a good profit for the woman who wants to earn something herself. Any one ought to save at least $1.00 apiece from eighty to ninety hens and do all her other work besides, also furnishing her table with eggs and chickens.

In raising chicks this way I do not lose any with the hawks. With the

TROUTDALE

The Troutdale Ladies' Aid society will meet Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Fred Zimmermann. All are urged to attend.

A large and enjoyable neighborhood picnic of Troutdale people was held Sunday on the banks of the Sandy river near the bridge. A fine picnic dinner was the chief feature of the day.

The quarterly conference of the Methodist church for the circuit including Troutdale, Fairview, Rosewood and Bridal Veil, will be held at Fairview on Monday forenoon the 12th.

Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Raker and son Ellsworth, and George Anderson, uncle of Mr. Raker, were in Troutdale on Sunday.

POWELL VALLEY

Mr. and Mrs. Swan Magnuson entertained on Sunday her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Palmblad and son Albert, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gustafson and children of Woodstock, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Palmblad, Paul Palmblad and Mrs. Cedarquist and baby all of Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. John Palmquist had as guests on Monday Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gustafson and children, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Palmblad, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Palmblad and children, Mr. and Mrs. Swan Magnuson and children, Harold, Wendell, Amy, Pearl and Cecil Gustafson.

ARTISTIC JEWELRY IN REACH OF ALL

Jewelry of a very high order and of a very artistic design is quite within the reach of those who love beautiful things, but who cannot afford to pay high for such adornment.

One day has passed when to appear in imitation gems was to label oneself a person of bad taste, for today the jewelers, perceiving that real gems are for the few, have turned their attention to designing rings, pins, necklaces and bracelets from imitation stones so near like the real that only an expert can tell the difference.

The consequence is that many refined women who display the best of taste in gawking their persons have taken advantage of the jewelers' wisdom and appear in artistic imitations which add immeasurably to their appearance, but which they would be unable to afford were the gems real.

Every woman who understands the art of gawking the very least bit knows that a beautiful costume can be given added charm by the wearing of a pin, a ring or necklace in harmonious or contrasting color. While the costume may be pretty in itself, it lacks distinction without this one touch.

Nowadays we do not hesitate to supply this touch with a very good imitation of the real, knowing that few who gaze upon the jewel will realize it is not genuine, so nearly like the real thing are the modern imitations made.

OREGON WINS TEN PRIZES IN MILK TEST

Mention has been made of the victory of Elwood E. Quay, of Cottrell, whose sample of cream won the gold medal and $100 in cash at the San Francisco exposition, in competition with the whole United States and Canada. Mr. Quay was not known in the contest but he has received due acknowledgments and will get a share of the prize money.

Through the courtesy of F. H. Crane, who submitted a sample of milk to the Portland Pure Milk and Cream company, the Outlook is able to present all the winners of the contest, showing that Oregon won 10 of the 37 premiums awarded. Seven of the ten prizes came to Portland dealers and were largely for the products of eastern Multnomah. California won five prizes, Washington three.

The showing of milk and cream at San Francisco was the largest of the kind ever held. There was something like 2500 bottles of milk and cream entered, and it required the time of the judges for an entire week. The testing was done by experts of the University of California. There were 12 classes and Oregon showed up as winner in five of them. Following is the complete report:

Boys Invade Campus.

For the third time Oregon grade school boys have come to the O. A. C. campus to study, work and play. They learn to know the common field crops, how to produce, harvest and utilize some of them, and to know some of the most common insects and diseases of orchard, field and garden. Some of the smaller boys get a little homesick for the first few days but that soon wears off and all are sorry when it comes time to leave.
