Not So Strange After All

You may think it strange that so many people are cured of stomach trouble by Chamberlain's Tablets. You would not, however, if you should give them a trial. They strengthen and invigorate the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. Mrs. Rosie Rish, Wabash, Ind., writes, "Nothing did me the least good until I began using Chamberlain's Tablets. It is decidedly the best medicine for stomach trouble I have ever used." The mortality of water fowl near Great Salt Lake has attracted widespread interest in recent years, and there have been many speculations as to its cause. Thousands on thousands of wild ducks, snipe, sandpipers and other birds have perished, and the situation is of more than local importance, as immense numbers of birds stop in this region while migrating and many of them succumb to the prevailing malady. A similar mortality has been reported at Tulare and Owens lakes in California, and probably occurs at many other points in the west. This matter has recently been investigated by the United States biological survey, which finds that in all probability the trouble is due to an alkaline poison. The birds probably sicken in the shallow water bordering the mud flats. As these flats dry after high water, salts and alkalies crystallize on the surface of the ground. Later pools from rain, or a steady wind blows the water over the flats; the highly soluble salts are taken up by the water, and birds feeding in the water thus charged are poisoned. Concentration of the salts by evaporation in poorly drained pools leads to the same result. Measures for keeping the water fresh are the only remedy thus far indicated.
