

"OUR FAIR"

The city of Gresham and all of eastern Multnomah, speaking through the Outlook, welcomes the people from the metropolis and the other parts of the northwest to its annual county fair today.

For nine years the promoters of our county fair have devoted much of their time and considerable money to the upbuilding of an enterprise that pays no dividends. Their reward is to be had in the satisfaction that they have of helping to build up a healthy competition among the farmers, dairymen, orchardists and stockbreeders and in helping to develop the resources of this part of the state. Their efforts in that one direction have been successful, but financially their enterprise has not been a paying one.

In the face of many discouragements the stockholders of the fair association have continued their work, often with scant encouragement; the board of directors has borne the brunt of criticism and fought off many schemes of graft, and today are again presenting to the public the fruits of their efforts for the betterment of the community. Their welcome to the public should be appreciated in an effort to relieve them of their burden of debt and show them that their activities are appreciated.

There should be no further incentive than a patriotic feeling to make this year's fair the success that its promoters are trying to make it, for the prosperity of the fair means considerable more to Gresham and all of eastern Multnomah than it does to the few who are devoting so much energy toward making it all that it is intended to be.

JUST DREAMING.

"Oh! Nature's noble gift, My gray goose quill, Slave of my thoughts, Obedient to my will."

In despite of every being able to wait for you in such a way as to convey to the public any very lucid idea of this our great county fair. How can we have you describe the delights of music discovered by Parson's band and orchestra that thrills our very soul, as we wander in amazement among these wonderful productions of man or pause to gaze in dreamy admiration upon some fragrant exotic plant?

Special Offer.

During the week of "Our Fair" we will give with every purchase of a Round Oak Chief Range 12 yards of Linoleum. It is a rare offer.
