"The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins"

Official paper of the Town of Gresham, Oregon. Official paper of the Town of Fairview, Oregon.

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the Postoffice at Gresham, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

AN ILLUSION DESTROYED.

At the Land Products show we saw an exhibit of electrical appliances, and on a sewing machine was a placard which said something about quilting by electricity. Such a notice makes a fellow feel backward for the days gone when the old-fashioned quilting frames were surrounded by a dozen busy women and the savory smell of a boiled dinner awaited them when noontime came.

We are willing to fall in line with suggestions for sweeping, washing, ironing, cooking and milking by electricity, but quilts are different. All these things are work, but the quilting bee was a pleasure indulged in by every member of the family, and we would like to continue a few of the pleasures of life for the present generation, at least.

Quilting by electricity destroys the sentiment of the quilt, and the sentiment is its best component part. The theory of the quilt is that it belongs to the old days, and how can it remain a relic of the past if it is made by electricity? The quilt is the one remaining link that connects us up with the days spent in the old home, with old friends and in the old times. And who has not felt them if a quilt was ever quilted in the front room and gossip flew faster than the shuttle that electricity will fly for us hereafter?

We used to see quilts in the making the same as we saw rag carpets being made, and we appreciated them. They meant days of work in "piecing" before the auspicious day set for the quilting and the gossip of the aid society or the neighbors, and they were important things. Making a quilt was an achievement and it is a slap at our self esteem to know that electricity is going to supplant the nimble fingers that used to ply the needle and thread up and down through two thicknesses of cloth and a wad of cotton batting.

And then to think of the big hole that will be left in the displays at the fairs! We don't want them made by electricity; and even if they can be made better than by hand makes us all the more determined. We hate to have our faith destroyed.

Women used to make quilts partly because it was the fashion and partly because a woman who has made a quilt feels that she has really accomplished something in life, whether she wanted a quilt or not. It somehow just had to be done, and we have sometimes imagined the women of the future who would be quilting them with careful stitches. Yet quilting by electricity may be one of the results of equal suffrage. Who knows?

Gasoline went up to 15 cents on Tuesday, and its upward trend is pestering the 2,000,000 people who own autos and Fords; but our scouts report that the remaining 28,000,000 are standing firmly for high gasoline and cheap shoe leather, and that Rockefeller is siding in with common people representing the majority.

The New Jersey Suffrage ought by all means be given the ballot. They acted like old politicians in the recent election. The day before they claimed a landslide, and the day after they swore the men had stolen it from them. But it is fair to assume that by this time hot bottles are reappearing on the dining room tables.

A fine grade of bear beer is new on the market that has all the exhilarating attributes except snakes. Unfortunately it won't keep unless it is placed in cold storage, which will be an incentive to treat all around while the keg is fresh.

Let's be charitable with China. The beef she is going to furnish the Philippines may be better stuff than the embalmed product this country furnished during the Spanish-American war.

Out side of the few who are engaged in digging the potato crop, most of the population is busy discussing the slugger matches promoted by Fred T. Merrill in East Portland.

And to think of the valuable advertising space that is being used up on the president and his bride-elect.

A FINANCIER'S SHARE.

The share that James J. Hill of Minnesota, financier and railway promoter in the northwest, has had in determining what the terms of the loan from citizens of the United States to the governments of Great Britain and France shall be, has been more than personal, says the Christian Science Monitor.

Though not a farmer, nor a politician, nor a "friend of the people" after a conventional manner, he has been able to insist in a somewhat impersonal way on what he thought were the interests of the producers of the staple food crops which these nations are buying and want credit for.

Recalling not very ancient antipathies between farmers and railway builders and administrators, it is smile-provoking to think of the changes time brings, so that championship of agrarian interests is left to the magnate of St. Paul.

But it is no new role for Mr. Hill. He is always alert to make prosperous inhabitants of rural regions threaded by his carriers. His theory of making a railway rich and popular seems to be to serve all causes that induce thrift, wealth and contentment.

OUR INDIAN SUMMER.

This is the Indian summer we spoke of two weeks ago—in America the most beautiful period of the year. We don't connect it with the lighted street, with fashion, with motor cars or civilization. We testify to the natural man that is in us all and call our most perfect days Indian days.

We call them that with a sigh implied. There is a regretfulness in Indian summer. It is in the air, in the haziness of the camphres of long ago. Tears, idle tears, rise in the heart and gather to the eyes in looking on the happy autumn fields and thinking of the days that are no more.

The most civilized of poets interpreted the mingling of happiness and regret that the stoneman of old yesterdays and of today has always felt in Indian summer.

Some of us don't need the advertisements to tell us what kind of an overcoat or underclothing we are going to wear this coming winter. We already know—unless, of course, the moths got 'em while we were not looking during the summer months just past and almost forgotten.

Mrs. Galt, the coming Mrs. Wilson, is certainly a remarkable woman. She didn't tell anybody who told anybody else about the engagement in advance of the president's announcement. And she probably knew of it before the president did.

The American governments that have recognized Carranza were probably impressed with his statement that he is going to substitute baseball for bull fighting in Mexico. Carranza has shown a statemanship of high order.

The decreased acreage of winter wheat, poor seed and, consequently, a poor stand, shows the relationship of the bread fund to the vacation fund.

Don't forget a bouquet for the weather man, even if you have to swipe it. He is keeping enough of the late flowers blooming to make it easy.

Please remember that we gave everybody fair warning—Saturday night will be Halloween and the moon won't rise until after midnight.

Wonder if the president has consulted his future mother-in-law in regard to the date and place?

PLEASANT VALLEY

Mrs. A. M. Bright, of Walla Walla, visited a few days last week with Mrs. G. M. Loughlin.

Edw. Kelly was in the valley last Saturday shaking hands with old time friends. Mr. Kelly will depart in a few days for San Francisco, where he will visit relatives and take in the exposition.

Chas. Kennedy, of Lents, was out looking after his farm one day recently.

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Dickenson, of Oswego, attended grange at this place last Saturday.

Will Donley has returned from a trip to San Francisco, where he spent several weeks visiting and sight-seeing.

J. J. Johnson, a Portland attorney, was a valley visitor one day recently.

John Brugger, of Lents, transacted business hereabouts Wednesday.

Miss Laura Moore, who is teaching school at Timber Grove, southern Clackamas county, came home Friday and spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. U. Moore.

Mrs. F. M. Roman is entertaining for a few days, her sister, Mrs. McNay, also her cousin Miss McNay of Omaha, Nebraska.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Garrison and Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Donaldson were attending to business in Gresham Tuesday.

Mrs. G. N. Sager visited with Mrs. Emma Wilson of Portland one day recently.

Mrs. C. F. Kesterson left last Friday for Kellog, Douglas county, where she will join Mr. Kesterson, who preceded her to that place several days ago. This will be their future home.

A meeting was called Wednesday evening at the schoolhouse for the purpose of organizing a Parent-Teachers' club. Quite a number responded to the call. After some discussion it was determined to meet two weeks from that date and perfect the organization.

Pleasant Valley grange met in all day session last Saturday. There was a good attendance, a sumptuous dinner was served, and an excellent program was rendered during lecture hour. Two candidates were initiated in the first and second degrees, one application for membership was received. The subject for discussion at the next regular meeting, fourth Saturday in November will be military training in the public school.

PLEASANT HOME

The Methodist Ladies' Aid will hold a special meeting at the parsonage in Pleasant Home next Thursday, November 4. All members and others interested are urged to be present.

How Cataract is Contracted.

Mothers are sometimes so thoughtless as to neglect the colic which their children contract. The inflammation of the mucous membrane, at first acute, becomes chronic cataract, a disease that is seldom cured and that may prove a life's burden. Many persons who have this loathsome disease will remember having had frequent colds at the time it was contracted. A little forethought, a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy judiciously used, and all this trouble might have been avoided. Obtainable at Gresham Drug Store.—Adv.
