DOG KILLS 24 BUFF QUINTOS

Mrs. Percy Glese is mourning the loss of more than half of her flock of fine Buff Quinto chickens, which were killed by a bird dog on Sunday last, it evidently trying to make the most of the last day of the open season for birds.

The dog, which was a black and white one, came to the Glese farm some time during the day, while Mr. and Mrs. Glese were in the house, and killed 24 fine hens, and wounded more or less severely, five others. When discovered, he was being fought by a rooster. Mrs. Glese's flock numbered 46 in all. Of those remaining, many are ruffled and plucked.

The dog returned to the place on Monday and was shot at, but escaped.
