READING FOR PROFIT.

Some of the great newspapers, among them the Oregonian of last Sunday, have been quoting Dr. George D. Strayer, of Columbia university, as saying: "It is better that a boy should read Diamond Dick stories for the fun he gets out of them than that he should become disgusted with reading altogether, through having to read nothing but literature too far in advance of his comprehension."

We all know what reading leads to. It prepares the mind for what it may absorb and often warps the course of existence through life. Somewhere the course of childhood runs into the larger stream of maturity while maturity is laying out a course for childhood, and the Columbia professor is pleading the cause of childhood.

Back of all reading lies interest in what is being read be it for entertainment, relaxation or intellectual profit. The child must take his reading as he takes his play, and the young mind generally regards schooling as a necessary evil. Teachers, more than parents, have it in their power to awaken in children a desire for the proper sort of reading. Sometimes a mistake is made, or vigilance is relaxed, and the healthy child finds the keenest possible joy in the future adventures of a Diamond Dick masterpiece.

Much has been said about the evils which follow morbid or misplaced reading. Give an imaginative youth a perverse piece of writing, and harm is likely to follow unless he has a well-balanced mind, because an interest has been awakened. Reading is a curious trick. Some take it naturally and search out what interests them until they are sure of their needs and read for profit. Others acquire a habit of reading everything which is of doubtful benefit, but which is better than being forced to digest unpalatable mental food. If they have never read for interest it is a hard work they begin, when in after years, they realize that they must read to develop themselves.

YEON'S REQUEST.

Road Commissioner Yeon has made several recommendations to the Budget committee for road building and repair money to the extent of $588,222. Of this amount the sum of $73,661.70 is for the Columbia River Highway and for new construction work in other parts of the county, $231,000.

He has ignored all petitions for improvements, including the hard surfacing of the Gresham-Fairview road. They are left to the county commissioners. Other less important recommendations are made, and those omitted would call for only $297,000 more, or an increase of nine-tenths of a mill more than Mr. Yeon is asking for.

A suffragett wants household work to be lifted from the level of drudgery to the status of a profession. The men are willing to call it a profession, science, art or philanthropy provided it is done and dinner ready on time.

A bill is pending in the Georgia legislature which prohibits one from carrying booze in his pockets. In Oregon, after January 1, a person must carry it internally to escape the law, so pockets won't be necessary.

The several congressmen of the states along the Mississippi river have decided to ask for $60,000,000 for river improvements, at the next session of congress. Where is "Our George" and Harry?

After the war is over it will be a long while before President Wilson will thank Bryan for his assistance in keeping this country out of the said war with one or two foreign nations.

You sometimes hear of a famous singer or actress about 17 years old who has not been divorced, but the chances are more than even that she was never married.

An eastern paper says that legislation will some day prohibit kissing. If it does it will be necessary to muzzle the mothers and lovers like dogs in the summer time.

Don't miss "Teddy O'Malley" at Regner's hall this, Tuesday, night. It's chock full of laughs.

Where Do You Keep Your Money and Valuable Papers?

Mrs. W. F. Jahn, of Wisconsin, spent a lifetime in saving $10,000. She kept it "hidden" in a suit case. Some one walked off with the suit case—and the $10,000.

A few days ago thieves broke into the home of Dave M. Donough at Fairview and stole a gold watch and ring and went through his papers.

A LOGANBERRY SONG BY HESTER B. THORPE

The following loganberry song was written by Miss Hester B. Thorpe, a senior in the Union High school. The words have been set to music, the time being an original composition in three-four measure:

THE RUBY SPRING.

A wildwood maid in her Forest bower, And loved by all who knew her there, Was wooed by one with tender power To win the love of the maiden fair.

She saw in the glance of the dark prince beside her The love-light reflected that told her the tale, So 'old yet so new, as his tendril entwined her, He pleaded his love in the winds of the dale.

CHORUS

It came to her on sunlit airs, And then the blended love was theirs; The tie that bound two hearts as one Was born—their Loganberry son.

II.

And as he grew his fame was spread To other lands in liquid flood, The life elixir of the world Was found in Loganberry blood.

'Tis drunk in the joy of the feast in the meadland, And quaffed in the glare of the revels by night; It's wine and sweet nectar are visions of dreamland, In shimmering wavelets of ruby and light.

CHORUS

And still its crimson sparkle gleams, To haunt the revel-seekers' dreams; And distant memories faintly cling Around the liquid ruby spring.

Mr. Bryan last week completed his work in Ohio trying to convert the Ohio democracy to prohibition. He has made no mention of how large his collection of corkscrews is.

Adele Garrison is writing "Revelations of a Wife" for the newspapers. Will she tell us where she put the morning paper when we come home at night?

If this thing keeps up another summer we will have to get an appendix to our encyclopedias, so as to make those names easy that we find in the war copy.

Prospects are for a large house this Tuesday evening to see the play "Teddy O'Malley" at Regner's hall. Seats should be reserved in advance at Aylsworth's store.

It is said that within four months England will be giving Japan the S. O. S. call. But even then another war loan will have to be floated to pay Japan.

street the day before. His right side is affected and he is quite helpless, and can talk but little. Mr. Newberry is 81 years of age and up to recent years had led an active life. He came to Portland in 1870, and was associated with Dr. J. C. Hawthorne in the agricultural implement business in Portland, and became well acquainted with business men of the Northwest. In 1877, at the earnest desire of citizens he became a candidate for mayor of Portland, and was elected by a large majority. During his administration, according to the reports, Portland enjoyed an effective business administration. For several years Mr. Newberry had lived in Baker county and practiced law at Baker City and other points in that county, returning to Portland about a year ago. His wife and daughter, Mrs. Stevenson, are attending him.

The Portland Ad Club, on Friday evening last, selected a loganberry song for the purpose of advertising the berry industry in Oregon. Also, "to popularize that pure and delightful drink, loganberry juice, fully believing that its popularity will spread from city to city, from state to state, and from nation to nation, until loganberry juice will have indelibly written the name of Oregon across the map of the civilized world." While the purpose of the Ad club was a laudable one, its selection of a song by a committee of educators is open to severe criticism—or rather the committee should be criticized for selecting the song it did. It was proposed in advance that the selected song should be sent broadcast over the state, sung in all the schools and become the official promoter of the new drink. Whatever the merits of loganberry juice as a popular or national beverage, which many consider to be doubtful, the merits of the song given first prize will be for giving satisfaction to those who are favoring loganberry juice as a substitute for intoxicants. The song has objectionable features to any person of temperance proclivities just at this time, when Oregon is to soon become a prohibition state. The following lines from the song are referred to: I love a sloe jin rickey, I love an abanthe hickey, With a little whiskey, when I'm feeling frisky, I love a long mint julep— To place such sentiments before the children of the schools of Oregon and advertise them to the world as the sentiments of the ad club and its committee is certainly bad taste, if not something worse. There were two other songs given second and third prizes, and both of them have the merit of being clean compositions. It is not enough to make the excuse, as will probably be done, that the balance of the first-prize song is a boost for loganberry juice, although it is open to the further criticism of being quite slangy in some of its other lines. All three of the selected songs were rank parodies on popular songs. The first one is a take-off on "This is the Life," a variety show song with a catchy tune, which would not have been so bad had the words not been so much an advertisement of mixed concoctions of stronger liquids as of the juice of the loganberry. The second prize carries the air of "Put on Your Old Gray Bonnet," while the third one is a Scotch dialect song in imitation of "Comin' thro' the Rye." Of more than two hundred and fifty songs submitted there were none fully up to the highest standards of song requirement, and we believe the ad club will finally realize that it has paid too dear for its whistle. THE COMMERCIAL CLUB. It would be an interesting discovery to go up into Metzger's hall some evening and find the Commercial club wrestling with a problem of how to boost the town. On several occasions lately there has been something of importance for it to do but the work had to be taken up by individuals or by the common council. A noteworthy instance was the proposition to have a Gresham Day at the land show. The mayor and councilmen with a dozen of our prominent citizens took the matter up. That was a job for the club. Other instances can be recalled and more will follow. Civic improvements, road matters in which the county is interested and all the other public affairs of a community should be taken hold of by the Commercial club, but Gresham's club seems to be dead. Why not bring it to life again? It's a safe bet that the new labor temple to be built in Portland will not have "unfair" banners paraded in front of it while it is under construction. The so-called scabs will now have their turn at watching its construction from afar.
