"The Linotype

Official paper of the Town of Gresham, Oregon.
Official paper of the Town of Fairview, Oregon.

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the Postoffice at Gresham, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

VOL. VI, NO. 1

The Outlook passed its fifth year with its last issue and begins today the sixth. That it has progressed so far successfully is due to the continued support it has received from a discriminating public and the friends it has made during its existence.

We are fully appreciative of the support we have received, and could not do otherwise than pledge ourselves to a greater effort in making the paper worthy of all the patronage of eastern Multnomah that can be given a home paper.

A CORRECTION.

The leading editorial in last Tuesday's Outlook, headed, "Wanted—A Plan," was written by a representative of this paper but failed to pass the inspection of the editor. We are informed by President H. E. Davis, Manager Jas. Sterling and Secretary Jas. Elkington, of the Gresham Fruit Growers' association, that the sentiments expressed in the article were erroneous and conveyed a wrong impression. It's publication is regretted.

The cannery is one of the much needed and promising institutions of this locality and it is not the attitude of the Outlook to reflect the sentiment of any who have grievances or are dissatisfied with its management, if such there are. The business done by the cannery last season may not have come up to expectations of some who are interested, but it should be borne in mind that last year was an off year in the canning industry and the institution was new, its capital was limited and it was very necessary for the good of all concerned to keep within the safest lines possible. That the management of the cannery did this is certainly to their credit.

It is believed that all things considered a good start was made which should prepare the way for greater success in the future.

There is no general dissatisfaction among the stockholders, there is perfect understanding among the directors of the association and they are planning and working in harmony. No one is seeking to get control in any selfish way to exploit the association or destroy its co-operative character. An earnest effort is being made to secure capital sufficient to finance the business on a larger and more profitable basis this year, and that will be to the advantage of every stockholder, large or small.

Manager Sterling could not do all that some individuals wished him to do last year. That he worked hard and conscientiously in the best interests of the association is certain and it is believed as efficiently as anyone could have done under the conditions. He should have the confidence and hearty co-operation of not only every stockholder but every fruit grower and farmer in the county.

The cannery must be made a success. It is the most needed institution in this part of Oregon. It belongs to the growers themselves, who have already put their money into it. It will require a little sacrifice at the start but sure and satisfactory reward will come in the future to all those who help to build it up and have the wisdom to stay with it.

If that bill requiring government hired men at Washington to work eight hours a day instead of seven is through we may expect a regular epidemic of that tired feeling. But a cure can easily be found in a few more civil service examinations among those who are eager to get in to the departments.

Henry Ford is said to have spent $499,000 thus far in promoting peace. That being the case it cannot be denied that he has accomplished something.

Royal chinook salmon are now coming in from the Pacific. They will go up the Columbia river if they can.

The surest sign of spring will be when the street car company begins running open cars.

TREE BUTCHER.

Already the "tree butcher" has begun his annual campaign. For the next two or three months he will have a busy and lucrative practice. Claiming a knowledge and experience he does not possess he will go from house to house, especially in the suburbs, soliciting the job of pruning and spraying trees and shrubs and "doctoring" those that have begun to decay or have suffered damage in the winter storms.

Such a man can do more damage in half an hour than nature can remedy in ten years. But little does he care so long as the fee he demands is paid him. The owners of beautiful shade or fruit trees often fail to realize that they live, grow and die much as the human body does and that cutting away of their branches and the removal of diseased parts from them is as much a surgical operation, with the same kind of risks, as that which a physician performs in a hospital. And they carelessly permit the "tree butcher" to have his way.

But there are good "tree doctors" as well as bad "tree butchers," though the latter seem to be in the majority. It is not difficult to identify the one from the other, provided ordinary precautions are taken by making inquiries and demanding references and credentials.

THE SEAMEN'S ACT.

Captain Robert Dollar, owner of extensive marine interests in the Pacific, has been a vicious critic of the seaman's act, but never until last week did he express himself as hopeless that American shipping would get relief.

The act will go into effect tomorrow, and Captain Dollar has indicated that he will remove the Dollar line offices from Seattle to Vancouver, B. C. He determined to take this step only after he became convinced that the new seamen's act regarding foreign registry provisions would go into effect as planned. By removing to Canada he will escape the law because his terminals will be in a foreign country.

"It is not a question of patriotism," he says. "No man would like more than I to be able to fly our own flag, but it is simply a question of economic impossibility."

Captain Dollar's Puget Sound business is largely in lumber between the North Pacific coast and China. He indicates that his removal to Canada will block possibility of transfer to American registry. Of all the bills now before congress, not one, he says, promises relief.

THE DEADLY GERM.

Dr. Woods Hutchinson is never quite happy unless he is telling us that the deadly germ lurks everywhere. And if health departments, municipal, state and nation, have their way about it, the people are not to be permitted to forget the fact. On the contrary they are to be put on their guard.

Individually and collectively they must be taught how to protect themselves—what to do, and especially, what not to do. If one had a list of all the things and all the practices prescribed as inimical to health, hazardous, and "dangerous in the extreme," and abided by the list, one might attain a ripe, old age, it is true, but—would living be worth while?

Everybody must be careful of everything. In New York they have banished the tin whistle. Women have lately been warned against false hair and against furs. Men have been cautioned against the cigar cutters. And so it goes.

All these warnings and cautious and danger signals are wise, of course, and necessary. They keep down sickness and give a healthier tone to the mortuary tables, which in turn help to reduce life insurance rates. Because of them disease is held in leash. But is it not barely possible that the fear of disease, a disease in itself, may arise to take the place of the banished and vanquished germ?

If any of the local boys fail to get on the Gresham baseball team they can console themselves with the reflection that eastern Oregon will soon be howling for harvest hands.

FAIRVIEW

Harry E. Brooks, son of W. T. Brooks of this place, has qualified as an expert rifleman in the government service. He enlisted in the U. S. marine corps in Portland, January 9, 1915, and went into training at Mare Island. In April, company 41, of which he is a member, was transferred to the U. S. naval station at Guam, Ladrones Islands. Mr. Brooks writes about the abundance of fruit on the island, coconuts, bananas and pineapples growing in abundance. The rain storms too are different there. There is never a sprinkle or drizzle, but it comes pouring down in perfect sheets. Also in Guam they are a day ahead of us, for in crossing the Pacific they went to bed on the 19th of the month and awoke on the 21st. His many friends here are glad to hear of his success.

Mrs. Jennie McCormick gave a tea for the benefit of the Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church on Wednesday afternoon. A chicken supper and program will be given by the society on March 11, to which all are cordially invited.

The telephone men are welcome visitors in Fairview as we have been without the use of our phones since February 1, which seems like a very great while.

The following officers were elected at the Epworth League of the M. E. church on Sunday evening: President, Miss Rachel Peterson; vice-president, Miss Dorothea Benecke; secretary, Wm. Butler; treasurer, Converse Burlingame; organist, Miss Merle Heslin.

Chicken Supper.
The Ladies' Aid society of the Fairview Methodist church will give a chicken supper on March 11, from 5 to 8 o'clock, in the city hall. A social hour, including games and music will follow the supper. Admission free. Supper 25c.—Adv.

AGAINST LARGE STANDING ARMY

A. W. Lafferty Urges Enforcement of Land Grant to the Letter.

Republican ex-Congressman Expects to Win May 19.

A. W. Lafferty.

"Against a Large Standing Army." The foregoing is the first plank of A. W. Lafferty's platform for renomination to congress at the primaries to be held on May 19.

Mr. Lafferty has twice been elected to congress from Portland as a Republican. He has always been affiliated with that party and has never at any time registered otherwise.

Would Open Lands.
The second plank in Mr. Lafferty's platform reads:

"For enforcement of Oregon's great railroad land grant by the sale of every acre, timber and all, to actual settlers at $2.50 per acre, under a drawing system to be conducted by the federal court at Portland, thereby giving to every one an absolutely equal opportunity."

The unsold railroad lands aggregate 2,300,000 acres.

Cummins May Help.
Mr. Lafferty will send to each voter, under the frank of Senator Albert B. Cummins or other national leader who is friendly to Mr. Lafferty's campaign, the speeches which Mr. Lafferty delivered in congress in 1915, just before his term expired.

These speeches deal with preparedness, the present status of the land grant case and other live issues. The thorough distribution of literature will be supplemented by a personal canvass. Mr. Lafferty is confident of victory.

Platform Is Specific.
There are 12 planks in Mr. Lafferty's platform. Each one is deemed of vital importance. In addition to the two already quoted they are:

3. For Genuine Rural Credits.
 4. For a Liberal Protective Tariff.
 5. For Return of Our Irrigation Money.
 6. For Conveyance of Forest Reserves in Trust to the States.
 7. For Giving to Oregon 'the Benefit of Her Own Natural Resources.
 8. For More Liberty to Homesteaders.
 9. For Development of Northwest.
 10. For Government Owned Ships.
 11. For Limited Old Age Pensions.
 12. For Moderate Inheritance Tax on Fortunes Above One Million Dollars.
