THE CHRISTIAN SABBATH

Chapter 12.
By C. M. BROWN.

We believe we have produced sufficient evidence to convince any person with an open mind, that the law of Moses was intended for the Jews only, and passed away with the destruction of the nation. The Sabbath, which was a part of those laws, likewise shared the same fate.

We are now to inquire into the things that succeeded Judaism.

As God was the central thought of the old dispensation, and religion was so arranged as to bind the worshippers to the thought of responsibility to the God who was the maker and preserver of all things; in like manner under the new dispensation every thing points to Christ. He is the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end. The end of the old and the beginning of the new dispensation. One cardinal doctrine of christianity, which we want to emphasize to begin with, is that Christ was God manifest in the flesh. The same being who was the Creator, now becomes the redeemer. He is the self existing, perfect one who inhabits eternity. This fact being admitted precludes the thought that he was the product of any thing that preceded his birth. He was not the creature of the age, or the product of Jewish thought or the outcome of Jewish religion, or the culmination of moral sentiment. He was not created to fill the types and shadows of Judaism, but they were only a feeble shadow of the Christ whose character was dimly portrayed in them. He was not created to fulfill the prophecies, but the prophets wrote about him because they had caught a vision of him. We are not to interpret him by scripture, but we are to interpret scripture by him. While he was a Jew and as such was subject to their laws, he was not circumscribed by them. The same things said here of the absolute independence of Christ may be said of the kingdom that he came to establish, commonly known as christianity. It is not a theory about Christ but a vital union with him. The whole system is so constructed and arranged that every part and parcel refers back to him and has its explanation in him. This is so vitally true that any thing that does not connect itself directly with him should be discarded as an imposter. The passover could not be transferred into christianity as one of its ordinances for the reason that its meaning was to be sought in the deliverance of the Jews from bondage, and for the christian to observe it would be to lead his mind from Christ to an incident that is not connected with christianity. For this reason the Lord's supper takes its place, and in its observance we as worshippers of Christ are by faith connected directly to his death, and made partakers of the atonement. The pentecost was a celebration of their harvest, and at the beginning of the new dispensation it was made a harvest of souls by the outpouring of the Holy Ghost, and the christian church has baptism to symbolize it. Baptism is intended to connect the faith of the recipient with the Holy Spirit that Christ sent to take his place when he ascended to the Father. The Mosaic Sabbath could not be transferred into the christian church for the reasons already given of these other things. It was given to the Jews for three reasons:

1st. To link them with the creator; 2d. to memorialize their freedom from Egypt; 3d. as a reminder of their providential feeding in the wilderness. None of these things belong to the christian dispensation, and if that Sabbath was to be observed it would have no reference to Christ, and its observance would tend to lead the worshiper away from him, instead of binding them together. Having no reference to Christ and no explanation in him and no tendency to link the worshiper to him we are forced to discard it as non-christian. Christianity is so far from borrowing its ordinances from any other religion, that it demands the entire abandonment of all else and the coming in by faith in Christ. The Jew as well as the Greek, the Roman, the Chinese or Hindu must abandon all things that pertain to his old religion and accept christianity, without trying to drag old things in with him. The christian Sabbath connects the believer directly with the resurrection of Christ, which is the capstone of redemption.

THE EXPERIENCE OF A GRESHAM MAN

This man took two prescriptions to a prominent Portland druggist who charged him $2.10 for filling them. Thinking it a little too expensive he brought the copies to our store. Our price was 90c and we made a fair profit at that.

You may ask, why this great difference? Here it is:

The Portland druggist pays from three to ten times the rent we do. He employs expensive prescription clerks. All his expenses are much greater than ours. While he may give special prices on some well-known article to induce you to come in, he must make it up in other ways. He does as the above indicates. We use pure, fresh drugs and charge a fair profit, no more.

Our fifteen years in this locality is back of us. It pays to trade at home.

The microbe that causes colds flourishes in damp, cold weather. To get rid of a cold take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is effectual and is highly recommended by people who have used it for many years as occasion required, and know its real value. Obtainable at Gresham Drug Store.
