CRITICISM BENEFICIAL.

There is a noticeable increase in the discussions over school methods and systems, and the country is not going to suffer by reason thereof. Opinion is very strong in support of the theory that public education in the United States has reached the very pinnacle of excellence, but there are always bold spirits criticizing and urging reform, and in the friction thus engendered both public and the teachers are benefited.

Jasper McBreen of the United States bureau of education has expressed himself before the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers' associations as favoring longer school terms and more drastic home-made laws for compulsory attendance.

We think it quite desirable that our educational leaders should begin to discuss the longer school term. Standard public schools, universities, colleges and academies run about thirty-six weeks a year. Why is it necessary to have such long vacations? In the olden time, the 8-months' school term wasn't known. Nine, ten and eleven months was the rule. A longer term would unquestionably reduce the cost of education, and thus lessen the drain upon the family resources, and the shorter vacation would likewise have its advantages for both parents and children in many instances. At least that is our way of thinking.

As for the drastic home-made law for compulsory attendance, which Mr. McBreen recommends, that is really the solution of the attendance problem. Our fathers and mothers enacted home-made laws that were infinitely better than anything the boards and legislatures have ever given for the discipline and rearing of children. These parental enactments extended far beyond the school questions. They entered into the life of the child in all respects.

Now too much is left to legislatures, board and teachers, and the teachers are only too frequently embarrassed by the hostility rather than aided by the sympathy and co-operation of the parents, who should always be a help to the men and women who teach their children, and not a hindrance.

There never was a time when people were taking a more earnest interest in public education, and such discussion as has been precipitated by Mr. McBreen and others will prove helpful in many respects. And while the teachers are perfecting the curriculum let the parents keep that little hearthstone legislature in operation. In that way they can help, and they will find their children obtaining better results from the schools.

"Billingsgate" is an accepted term for vituperative language. A speaker in a political club wished to vary this expression in chiding an opponent, and criticized him for using "fishmarket language." Thereupon another member rose and protested against this phrase. "I have been a fish dealer for thirty years," he said, "and have never heard any bad language used in my business. The fish business is a respectable one, and should not be the subject of a slur."

WOMEN IN WAR.

The regent of the San Francisco chapter of the women's section of the navy league announces that 250 women will go into military encampment on the United States Presidio in that city June 1 for six weeks under strict military rule to learn the ways of war and to undergo training in first aid work.

Under conditions of modern warfare, to care for the wounded is one of the chief obligations that belligerent governments owe to the soldiers who risk their lives in battle to support its cause, and for this work the women are naturally gifted and under proper training can render great service to their country in the stress and fury of war's havoc.

It is beyond the foresight of man to say just when the United States may be plunged into war, and as camps are being established in various sections of the country to give military instructions to men in private life, and women are much concerned in obtaining a wider sphere of activity in which to give expression to their potential energies in conserving the national welfare, training camps for them, as indicated above, where they may acquire efficiency in first aid work would seem to be entirely proper, and in seeking such instruction we have no doubt that the movement will growingly appeal to their enthusiasm and patriotism.

The Outlook is of the opinion that the grange of Multnomah county should support D. C. Lewis for reelection to the legislature. He is the only candidate so far who has declared for a rural credit system, which is distinctly a grange measure. Whether the law shall be state or national it is due the farmers that one be enacted.

A Thaw kid, aged 17, is asking the court for an allowance of $25,000 a year, and his guardian says he is capable of using it. Doubtless, any kid of 17 could use that much every year. If we had been favored with an annuity that large when we were 17, Rome would have done its most terrific howling at that period.

When we hear people saying that congress is loafing on the job we recall the fact that a democratic congress has franked over nearly 40,000,000 letters in the past year that would have otherwise cost $800,000 in postage besides the price of the envelopes.

An Oregonian by the name of Lockwood wants to ascertain just how crazy the people of Oregon really are, and he will most likely find out when his presidential candidacy is passed upon by the people next month.

When a fellow's brain is organized so that he can feel that he is the purest patriot alive and that those who disagree with him are traitors and scoundrels, he is just a natural born candidate for some local office.

There are so many poets nowadays that there are not enough laurel wreaths to go around, hence the modern poet struggles along without a haircut. Sometimes without several of them being cut.

A Boston weather sharp says we are going to have an exceptionally cold summer, but our prediction is that it will be safe for Oregonians to hock their overcoats for Fourth of July spending funds.

By using water glass eggs may be stored indefinitely. Of course, that is what has been done all the time, but heretofore the results have not been up to the expectations of the users.

Kansas City went republican by 8000 majority and forfeited her fellowship in the temple of democracy. But then too much democracy turns the stomach and requires casting out.

Tell your wife at breakfast tomorrow morning that she ought to have a new suit and an Easter hat, and if you don't get a good dinner that evening all faith will be dead.

Old man Carranza is such a good churchman that he was willing to give up Villa during Lent, but other influences seem to be prevailing against him.

The weather bureau has been awful good to the Inter City league, but wait awhile. The Pacific Coast league opened up in Portland today.

Summer is showing its face around the corner in Seattle. Mayor H. Gill wants a municipal dispensary of summer thirst quenchers.

Candidates for Nomination
AT PRIMARIES, FRIDAY, MAY 19

SHERIFF T. M. HURLBURT AGAIN A CANDIDATE

Sheriff Hurlburt filed today the petition initiating his candidacy for renomination as sheriff before the forthcoming Republican primary election. It contains some 3500 names, drawn from virtually every precinct in Multnomah county. Under the law only 500 signatures are required. Friends of Sheriff Hurlburt, however, voluntarily took this occasion to show their confidence in, and esteem of, him piling up a petition seven times as large as required.

Another striking feature, according to his friends, is that his is the only petition filed for that office. His party opponent in the forthcoming primaries simply paid the $20 fee and declared himself in the race that way rather than to assume the burden and perhaps a little trouble, incident to the circulation of a petition.

Sheriff Hurlburt has received many requests to address meetings, particularly gatherings of women organizations, which are standing for law enforcements, and which are also interested in and working upon sociological questions. The introduction by him of the "honor system" among the prisoners at Kelly Butte, which he has supervision over, coupled with the establishment of his method whereby the county now pays prisoners who do good and efficient work in the quarries there, has put Sheriff Hurlburt in the same class with Thomas Mott Osborne, of New York, Thomas J. Tynan, of Colorado, and other men, whose humane methods are making men and useful citizens out of criminals in penal institutions. Those who are interested in this work as well as the law enforcement are anxious to hear Sheriff Hurlburt speak about them. He will likely tell in Gresham within the next ten days.

The army of Monaco, though small, was resplendent during peace times, but now that war is under way it has been dissolved because the professional soldiers who composed it have all been called home and are fighting under the French or Italian colors, as the case may be, or drawn up in the Swiss contingents guarding the frontier.
