"The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins."

Official paper of the Town of Gresham, Oregon.
Official paper of the Town of Fairview, Oregon.

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the Postoffice at Gresham, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

MOVIE MANNERS.

In Portland there is a moving picture censor board, composed largely of women, and while they take notice of the films, and occasionally put one out of commission they seem to pay no attention to the acting actresses who show themselves in clothes and gestures infinitely more immodest than any to be seen on the screens. One such exhibition has been running there this week.

Women throughout the country are interesting themselves to greater extent than ever before in the censorship of moving pictures. In many instances, however, the impulse back of the movement has its source in the picture exhibitors rather than in the women themselves. In both cases the motive is obvious. In the first, the women are persuaded, through observation and experience, that the pictures are not all they should be. In the second, the exhibitors are merely making shrewd use of the women for the purpose of attracting attention from the living wares and, at the same time, forestalling the more genuine and the more independent scrutiny of the screen productions.

A censorship inspired and directed by the exhibitors will hardly be productive of satisfactory results. Whatever of benefit, therefore, is accomplished by the women will come about through the efforts of those who take the matter in hand because they are convinced there is a demand for it. Still, whether there is as great a need for their censorship as some of them seem to think there is, remains in doubt. The movies, it must be remembered, are everywhere. No community seems to be too small to support a picture theater. The films, too, are countless and for years, now, the production has continued unabated. Yet objectionable pictures have been comparatively few.

On one point most of us can agree. We have observed a growing tendency of comedy films to make far too much of bad manners. Ingenues are shown who seem to be wild, untamed creatures, with untutored habits of a barbarian. And these little heroines, all the more interesting because they manage in one way or another to lay claim to our sympathies, are generally shown in a light that encourages the juvenile observer to imitate them.

Most of them, whatever else they may be, are, plainly speaking, of the "smart aleck" type. Morals are not involved, and it might be well for the women volunteer censors to keep this fact in mind.

With due apologies to the juniors for omitting a report of their class play in our last issue, we will say that it was excellent in every way and a big financial success. Our columns are so crowded with important matter of all kinds, that more than a column and a half of advertising was left out on Tuesday and a lot of other good stuff. It sometimes happens that way.

D. C. Lewis, candidate for state representative for re-election, is greatly interested in agriculture and horticulture and all matters pertaining to farm life. He wants to see home life as it should and could be were conditions changed just a little. He stands for rural credits.

"Are any of our criminal laws... of enforcement," he asks a candidate for office. We'll bet two to one that a motor car driver charged with speeding will get his'n if he ever gets in front of Judge Langguth.

Henry Ford is the presidential choice of three states, yet we don't believe they will find him as easy as the members of his peace commission did.

It's an even bet that the sugar trust heard about the big crop of strawberries we are going to have this year.

The New York Tribune has quit taking liquor ads. One more swat at the octopus from an unexpected quarter.

It looks very much just now, without waiting to hear from the other precincts, that by the end of the baseball season Gresham will be almost as famous as Skamockawa or Milpitas.

"Solving Tax Problems" is the top sheaf of a recent newspaper editorial. The problem is no older than civilization, so why bother our heads about it. Leave it to the legislature.

When one person is handed a gold brick we laugh at him. But when a whole city full is given the oroidic alloy by a baseball promoter it is what we were all looking for.

The market inspector intimates that care should be taken in dressing chickens. From our observation, which is not official, it is the undressing that demands more care.

Over the season's agrostological sunshine comes the increased cost of sugar with a promise of going still higher. What a blow it will be to the automobile trade!

The young voters in Nebraska caused Bryan to run at the tail end of the ticket. Current events must have been a popular study in the Nebraska high schools.

At any rate, the Giants won two games out of four and went to Salem with a percentage of .400. We can at least look down with scorn upon Woodland.

A bunch of candidates will spend two hours in Gresham tomorrow night and we hope our soft drink jobbers will have a good supply on draught.

Ambassador Morganthau acted as best man at his son's wedding. He will probably continue in the same role when the family bills begin to mature.

Another good thing about the Columbia highway is that you can come back on the train in case your auto gets troubles of its own.

The price of molasses and syrup is going up also; but as they cannot be used in running autos nobody is making any fuss over them.

Why Constipation Injures.
The bowels are the natural sewerage system of the body. When they become obstructed by constipation a part of the poisonous matter which they should carry off is absorbed into the system, making you feel dull and stupid, and interfering with the digestion and assimilation of food. This condition is quickly relieved by Chamberlain's Tablets. For sale by Gresham Drug Co.—Adv.
