The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins.

Official paper of the Town of Gresham, Oregon. Official paper of the Town of Fairview, Oregon.

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the Postoffice at Gresham, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

END NOT IN SIGHT.

How much longer will the war last? Nobody knows. When hostilities began the world heard much of the impossibility of its long continuance.

Of course, every nation concerned would welcome peace. The trouble is, each is still insistent on a peace on its own terms, or at least, on the terms acceptable to its groups of powers.

Conrad P. Olson, candidate for nomination for state senator, is a young man of clean character, marked ability and clear record and ought to be supported by every voter who desires an economical, business-like session of the legislature.

The old line leaders say they will have enough votes at Chicago to defeat the colonel. If they do, the colonel will say things that will make them think a Kansas cyclone has hit the town.

Few men are better known in Multnomah county than is John M. Mann, candidate for state representative. Though a business man of Portland he has owned property in this part of the county and has always been a good friend of the farmer.

The approaching presidential postmasters' convention makes one almost believe that there are no politics in the minds of the members. Of course not; that is the last thing a postmaster thinks of before going to sleep.

People who do not believe Americans are aggressive might take a look through the Portland plaza blocks and take note of the ferocity with which the Sons of Rest do not take the numerous offers for employment that are being made by the lumber camps.

In spite of the clouds which darken above our beloved country, there is a rift through which gleams the beauty of June and its strawberries. But they'll have to grow extra sweet this year to offset the beautiful price of sugar. Let's all pray for sunshine.

Regarding the statement that the Germans use "liquid fire" the query naturally arises how they managed to get a shipment from California through the blockade.

HAND SHAKING.

'Tis now the bug-house feeling comes. That makes our fingers itch To shake the hand of everyone— Of candidates and such— Before that fatal day arrives. To make the May-bees shiver, Upon that cold and cheerless morn They journey up Salt river.

This is the biennial year for hand-shaking festivals, and we have been kept so busy lately at this one diversion that we went away into the woods long enough to moralize a little on the queer but ancient custom that accompanies the campaign for office every two years.

When a fellow thinks of running for office he should look his hands over. If he has a fat, wet hand, a hard, flinty hand, a macerated hand or a long bony hand he should arrange to cut out handshaking during his campaign.

Handshaking is the most degenerate and overworked custom we have. Just now it is nearly always symbolic of a touch for a vote. Often in being introduced to strangers we have been malmed for weeks.

Many a defeated candidate who put too much dependence in his fore paws might have won out '12 year since the beer joints are closed. We often wonder why chysters and mixers and grafters with all their boasted knowledge of human nature, never learn whom to fondle and whom to leave alone.

Mrs. Ellen Aldrich, after a fierce campaign, was elected mayoress of Sawtelle, California, and then decided she didn't want it and resigned.

May Day was an ideal day, and many of us felt more conspicuous than we would have felt had the weather bureau been awake to its possibilities.

Steel rails have taken a sudden and rapid rise. As we use very little of this commodity, the rise does not particularly disturb us.

Anyhow, if the delegates to the democratic national convention find there is no opposition to Wilson they will have all the more time to display their political enthusiasm and get acquainted with each other.

The frog this spring must have been off its feed, for it failed to work with its sometimes efficiency. But nature balanced things up a little with a few hail storms scattered here and there.

One almost gets the impression that being a candidate for the nomination for any office on the democratic ticket this year is very much in the nature of a special privilege.

The ostrich of commerce, which is valued on account of its millinery plumage, stands six feet high and has a kick like an old army gun; but it can't swallow a rat hole.

Harry Thaw has been granted a divorce from Evelyn, which confirms our suspicions that he was not as crazy as some others tried to make him.

With sugar prices aeroplaning as they are we will probably make pickles take the place of preserves next winter.

The weather man did his best last week to clean the streets even if it happened to overlook clean-up day this year.

Probably the present situation in Mexico will give Senor Villa a much needed rest.

It may be that those Irish patriots are just in training for Dounybrook fair.

Prospective Tenant—There isn't room in these flats to— Janitor—There's a fine, roomy cellar in which all tenants are permitted to swing a cat by the tail.

E. V. LITTLEFIELD.

Judge E. V. Littlefield was born in Yamhill county, Oregon, February 14, 1873, and was educated in the public school of that county, afterwards graduating from Lafayette Seminary, Lafayette, Oregon, in 1891. During the winter of 1891 and 1892 he worked on the street car lines in Portland, Oregon, and resigned this position to teach school in Yamhill county, Oregon, where he continued to teach school from 1892 to 1898. In 1898 he was elected county school superintendent of Yamhill county, serving two terms and having been elected to said position by the highest majority of any man on the ticket at both elections.

Married in 1896 and has one child, a son, 16 years of age. Is a member of Portland lodge No. 55 A. F. & A. M., Webfoot Camp, Woodmen of the World, Scottish Rite Masons and Portland lodge No. 142 B. P. O. E., and also a member of Mount Hood Council No. 2117. Is a member of the Multnomah Amateur Athletic club, Portland Chamber of Commerce and Portland Business Men's club.—Paid advertisement

Whooping Cough. One of the most successful preparations in use for this disease is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. S. W. McClinton, Blandon Springs, Ala., writes, "Our baby had whooping cough as bad as most any baby could have it. I gave him Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it soon got him well."
