This is the last opportunity the Outlook will have to say anything upon or about the present political campaign, before the primaries. And it has very little to say now. There have been only two issues on which this paper has thought it worth while to say very much, and those two are so closely related to eastern Multnomah that they have been the Outlook's fight since the beginning of the campaign.

First of all, as affecting the agricultural interests of this community, has been the effort to secure the recognition of the needs of the county fair and to make an alignment of the candidates to the legislature who will promise equitable support to an institution commensurate to its worth, and recognize it as being fully equal in importance to the other expositions of Multnomah county.

Of the more than $16,000 raised on last year's valuations for fair purposes, the only agricultural fair in the county, second in the state to the state fair, only, has had but $1000 appropriated annually to its support. Such a condition calls for legislation which the Outlook has been asking the candidates to agree to. A few who aspire to seats in the legislature have seen the injustice being done and have pledged themselves to bring about a different arrangement if they are elected.

At no time has the Outlook disparaged the other expositions, and has asked for nothing more than an equal division of the appropriations. It is due this section, and the result in these columns has brought out the promise from the above list of candidates or their friends that the desires of the agricultural interests of our part of the county in this matter will be looked after during the next session of the legislature.

Those of the voters who want to see the county fair grow and expand and continue as one of our greatest institutions are requested to vote for those who will help us to get what we are asking for. The money is being raised annually by taxation, there is no increase asked for in that direction. It is only an equitable division of that which is available every year for fair purposes.

The other matter that has engaged the Outlook's attention during the campaign is the candidacy of Elmer S. McCormick for the office of county school superintendent. He is the logical candidate for the place and the voters of Portland should concede the position to the county. It is our opinion that a great many of the city voters will do so excepting the personal friends of the other candidates and those who are thoughtless or uninformed. Many assurances have come from Portland that Mr. McCormick will receive heavy support and there are numerous predictions that he will be nominated.

For the interests of eastern Multnomah and the schools of the country the Outlook has made Mr. McCormick's fight its own. The office, as has been explained before, is one that deals wholly with the rural schools, and its incumbent should be familiar with their requirements. He has nothing whatever to do with the Portland schools, as District No. 1 comprises the entire city and is looked after by a city superintendent. As to Mr. McCormick's qualifications, it would be superfluous to mention them. He is peculiarly adapted to conduct the affairs of the rural schools: he is of the country, lives in the country and would remain here if elected.

There is one other reason why he should be elected: This part of Multnomah has had no representation whatever in the courthouse for 17 years—when we had one of the county commissioners—not even a deputy. Neither has eastern Multnomah elected a candidate of its own for ten years, when one of our farmers was sent to the legislature.

This intolerable situation in a district where every precinct is republican, should be changed. The people of Portland should be made to understand that we are entitled to consideration, and the only way to bring it to their understanding is to vote solidly for what by right is ours—the county fair and the county school superintendent.

Ben Olcott tried to defeat James Withycombe for governor two years ago, and now wants to remain with the latter as secretary of state. Mr. Withycombe has a host of personal acquaintances in eastern Multnomah, where Mr. Olcott has never been seen. The duty of all republican voters in this section is plain—nominate C. B. Moore for the office of secretary.

A church conference at Saratoga declares that church members spend too much money on themselves. That backs up what this column has said all the past five years. A few more subscriptions, please; only $1.50 a year.

Some of our candidates have shown themselves to be such expert runners that we would suggest sending them after Villa. Being republicans, however, they would be disqualified by the administration.

Of course, if Justice Hughes happens to be nominated there will be another democratic justice of the supreme court. But the republicans can afford to make one exchange for a president of their own.

The ring is full of hats but there will be room for many more after the primaries. Just wait until the independents, prohibitionists, socialists and a few others get to shying their fedoras about!

Even Judge Cleeton will never make a good citizen of a boy who became wild through the neglect of his parents to fan the seat of his trousers when occasion demanded it.

It is freely predicted on the street corners in Portland that if Lafferty can get 7000 votes next Friday that Littlefield will beat McArthur. The voter can figure out the rest of it.

A straw vote in the P. R. L. & P. company's car barns gave Mr. Muck 1105 out of 1357. That result shows who is the candidate of the company for county commissioner.

The county fair has no individual number on the ballot, but the numbers of its friends that will be seen there should be looked up and remembered.

If Hy Gill keeps that kind of business up much longer in Seattle the people will have to move over the international line to get a prescription filled.

Cummins and Burton may be "favorite sons" somewhere else, but they will have to move to Oregon to get into full touch with the Oregon system.

Colonel Roosevelt will go to Chicago, so that if the nomination starts out on a still hunt for the man he will be on the spot.

A contemporary says: "It looks like everybody is to be soaked except the prohibitionists." With the accent on "soaked."

It will be Black Friday to some of our friends whom we don't care to mention this week.

Peddling the glad hand will go in to quiet obscurity for awhile next Thursday night.

Cast your vote next Friday for the friends of the county fair and E. S. McCormick.

Look for anxious looks about 5 o'clock next Friday night.

McCormick's number is 131. It's easy to remember.
