IONIAN SERENADERS.

Four delectable girls are going to enlighten the opening day of Chautauqua with a galaxy of captivating performances that will lend a winged zest to the occasion which flits merrily throughout the six snappy happy days of Chautauqua—good time week for all. These girls are known as the Ionian Serenaders doubtless because of their inimitable mastery of the accordion, a favorite instrument with the romantic daughters of sunny Italy. Equally proficient at the piano, on the violin and cello, delightful in both solo and orchestral ensemble, their whole program sparkling with interludes of readings, pantomimes and impersonations, the Ionians in their colonial costumes seem to mingle the old lavender charm of romance with the snap of the best in refined jazz.

The battle hymn of the "Talent" following S. Platt Jones, who appears on the opening night is: "Keeping up with Jones" but those on the inside know that Mr. Jones goes himself one better in "keeping up with the Ionians" who precede him.

ERNEST J. SIAS.

Have you ever watched a switch engine at work in the railroad yards of a great traffic center? Did you ever notice how it went humming confidently along through a labyrinthian chaos of scattered cars? Did not you wonder at the incredible ease and speed with which this free lance engine assembles a train on the main track—and then goes whirling merrily along to make up another train? You will remember this little paragraph on the switch engine when Ernest J. Sias opens fire at the Chautauqua on the multifarious detail of community development. Watch him whip into shape and running order a lot of things about your community that escape the average person. Mr. Sias has made the business of expert town building a life study and practice and the results he has obtained are the only encomiums that he wants you to pay any attention to. As a platform speaker Mr. Sias is a pace setter for Chautauqua. Do not fail to hear him on Tuesday evening if you are interested in your home town.

BOSTON LYRIC OPERA COMPANY

As a member of the Affiliated Lyceum and Chautauqua Bureaus of America, Western Chautauquas are enabled to present to patrons programs which have received the stamp of approval from the almost hypercritical standards of the East. In this way it is possible to give no less a premier musical offering than the Boston Lyric Opera company, distinguished singers of light opera fame.

The fine thing about this company of artists in that they make it their business to sing a generous number of the old favorite ballads and folk songs that every one loves. Then, besides popular and classic selections from the operas, they present in costume the second act from the very best of all comic operas "Martha."

This is a musical treat that you will want to tell all your friends about. They will be with us on Tuesday for two concerts, both afternoon and evening. "Martha" will be the evening attraction.

ELLIOTT A. BOYLE.

The Chautauquas that are steadily building up are the ones which first of all make it a business to maintain a lecture staff of the first order of excellence. This is the strict policy of the western Chautauqua, and accounts in large measure for their tremendous expansion in the past few years. The benefits accruing to the musical and entertainment features are by no means lost sight of, but at the same time the foundation of the western chautauqua—which is the lecture forum—like that of a great building, supports the ornamentation—the latter being an appropriated reflection of the former.

A fundamental example is Elliott A. Boyle, a veteran of the Lyceum and Chautauqua platform. Managers of the great circuits throughout the country consider him an enlightened embodiment of the great things which the Chautauqua movement stands for. Since Mr. Boyle first became prominent in the public eye, through his association with Dr. Gunsaulus of Chicago in many notable campaigns for civic regeneration, he has permanently established himself in the hearts of the American people as one of the most worthwhile speakers of the present day. Mr. Boyle will be the speaker on Monday afternoon.

S. PLATT JONES.

"Happiness was born a twin
Who would enjoy must share it."
The truth of these lines will be brought home to you when you hear Jones. Don't go alone, or if you do, be sure to assume a sedentary position in immediate juxtaposition with a congenial spirit whom you know. You can't help but poke somebody's ribs when Jones gets started, and if your neighbor is a friend, the involuntary phenomenon of your levity stands a better chance of being overlooked. If you are ticklish you will be helpless and in no way responsible for your actions. You see, Jones, plays to that region of the diaphragm where the seat of the risibles is located and he is a veteran of the business. What a match is to a powder can, Jones is to Chautauqua folks. That low shaky chuckle which generates at the start is a short time fuse to a general explosion.

It is necessary to admonish patrons who have not heard Jones before, not to be alarmed at the conclusion of his entertainment if there are several persons whose antics seem to require the aid of a physician. Some heads are more opaque than others and it takes longer for the Jones brand of jokes to percolate. It often occurs that about a third of the audience become convulsed over the preceding joke about the time he is more than half way through the next. Watch for Jones at Chautauqua on the opening night.

GULLOTTA TRIO.

This is a day when everyone is familiar with the best that music affords. A great percentage of homes have talking machines upon which they may hear the great singers, bands and orchestras. Unless people are going to hear something exceptionally fine in the way of music, they prefer to listen to the splendid records which they may hear at any time. But they will leave the finest records whenever it is possible to hear such a concert as will be rendered at Chautauqua by the Gullotta Trio on Monday afternoon and evening.

Vincenzo Gullotta, the renowned European concert violinist, plays with a delicacy of touch, a velocity and brilliance of technique that is rare even among our most famous violinists. Mrs. Gullotta, wife of the distinguished virtuoso, is a delightful accompanist, her splendid work at the piano being especially noticeable in that her support shows such exquisite taste in following and shading her principal. Fern Goltre, soprano concert singer has distinguished herself in the music centers throughout the country and like either of the two other members of the Gullotta Trio is alone considered a star attraction.

Where there is a will there is a way, is a saying so approved by long experience as to have passed into a proverb. It should prove an inspiration to the people of Gresham to bring their united energies to bear toward paving some of the streets. We have every other advantage of a small city and it is up to us to make those advantages better.

A breach-of-promise widow in New York whom an infatuated broker called his "booful baby," has pulled down a verdict for $40,000. Lovers will indulge in gushy baby talk, but it seems that some men when in love haven't sense enough to know that it is dangerous to "booful baby" a keen widow and then try to back out of it.

Our townsman, W. H. Congdon, is quoted as saying that he heard the Hawaiian quartet five years ago and would gladly pay five dollars rather than to miss them when they will be here next Friday night. Such an expression is the best recommendation that could be made for that remarkable organization.

If a man wishes to be a successful candidate for office in Multnomah county it is quite an asset to have a name similar to that of some prominent citizen. By judicious capitalization of this asset, as was done in the recent primary by some candidates, several thousand voters may be roped in.

It is said that Congressman Page of North Carolina will retire because he believes this country is going to get into war. The man is scared or he wouldn't retire. When a fellow gets the quivers, let him go.

The open sesame—A Want Ad.

Tomorrow's news dispatches will probably announce the choice of the national convention for president and vice president. Oregon's choice is Justice Hughes, and it is freely predicted that he will be the nominee. Interest at Chicago seems to be centering on Fairbanks for the second office.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox says women are fast becoming as responsible as men in the walks of life. If that be true, we advise them to stick to the walks and beware of the gas wagons at the street crossings.

The preparedness propaganda we hope, will not fall by the wayside and let us get our boots whipped off just because some may think we ought not to be ready for emergencies.

Professor Grimshaw of New York University says New York is the most vulgar city in the world. And, mind you, it is not the poorer people who are making it so.

It is sufficient to be always on time. Promptness is invested with dignity, whereas Johnny-on-the-spotness is apt to be tiresome.

A number of the people of this district attended the commencement exercises at Gresham Tuesday evening. Congratulations are extended to the members of the class and we hope to have the pleasure of seeing Cedar scholars finish their high school work there. The union way is such an improvement over the time when young people had to leave home or else do without an education.

Cedar school closed Tuesday with a picnic dinner on the school grounds for the children. A very pleasant time was had by all.

Mr. Wilkinson, of Hood River, was a visitor at the home of Elmer Mercer the first of the week. Mrs. Wilkinson is expected Friday to spend a week or so visiting at the former home and also with Mr. and Mrs. Cuddeford.

Mrs. Mamie Cuddeford will have charge of the raspberry picking at the Sweet Briar farm. All those desiring to work there this season should report to her.

The organ in St. Paul's cathedral, London, is the largest in the world, and the position of organist is regarded as the highest musical post in the British empire. The organ, with its five banks of keys, was originally built by Fr. Bernard Schmidt, a celebrated German organ builder, between the years 1624 and 1650.
