TWO BEST FEATURES.

Two of the Chautauqua lectures were peculiarly appropriate and have been worth more to the people at large than all the other features of the week.

Many of the numbers were merely entertaining, but all were of exceptional merit. Yet it remains to say that the two lectures mentioned were not only entertaining but highly instructive, and, if seriously considered, will be found later to be the two features that will be of the greatest and most lasting benefit.

Mr. Franke's lecture, as explained in the press notices, "was the most scholarly, common sense analysis of the Bible with respect to its relationship to human experience, ever written or spoken." It was all that—and more.

But Mr. Sias' lecture on a different subject, and with a theme that appeals to every citizen, was for the upbuilding of the home town. He spoke some homely truths, not as a complainer, but as an instructor of how to build better and bigger.

Now that Chautauqua is over it might not be amiss to say that there was some complaint heard because of the high cost of single admission tickets.
