THAT WELFARE LAW.

It has come to the knowledge of the Outlook that a well known capitalist was ready a year ago to invest $100,000 in an Oregon industry...

But he was diverted from his philanthropic enterprise because of certain conditions set going principally by an Oregon law that vests certain powers in an industrial welfare commission...

So much for the blasting of a good intention: but it is a sad commentary on our boasted progress when capital is diverted by freak laws.

The Louisville Courier-Journal, loyal always to Kentucky, declares that horses are still used despite the automobiles.

A Philadelphia doctor says it is just as important for a man to guard against overwork as it is for him to be sure to do enough.

Our purpose in saying all this is to see if the agitators cannot be persuaded to look with a broad vision on the adjustment of hours of labor from a national standpoint.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING.

Arthur S. Hurrell of Buffalo, N. Y., has been chosen by the school board as director of vocational education in the Indianapolis public schools.

It is essential that any vocational work undertaken by the schools be thorough. Employers have complained that such instruction as was given was of little practical value.

In a lecture at one of the Des Moines, Iowa, churches a missionary from India told of going into the interior of India, where he was taken sick, that he had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with him and believed that it saved his life.

Indianapolis has made a good start toward a system of vocational training in the courses given at manual training high school and at the Technical school...

"Come back next year, pioneers, and may your number increase." Oregonian. The only way to increase the numbers of pioneers in Oregon is to advance the admission year so as to include those who came here before February 14, 1859...

Denver is to issue a million color post cards, a quarter of a million guide books, half a million one-day trip pamphlets, and much other matter, to be distributed by a tourists' bureau...

It is said that there is no rheumatism in Mexico, but that fact is not going to make us enlist. It is also said that a wolf won't eat a Mexican, because he is soaked with red pepper.

It's a sure shot that if women can't get decent shoes to wear, when the leather is all gone, the skirts will all go back to their old-time length.

We fancy that the average pink tea would not appeal very eloquently to anyone just at this time if there was an invitation to a half section of cherry pie handy.

William Thaw, the aviator, is winning great plaudits in the war zone for his high flying. Harry was a high flyer, too, but he usually lit on the roof gardens.

"There is a wonderful versatility in human sympathies," says a Boston ethnologist. Unquestionably so. Many of us have seen men who were even fond of snakes.

Spain is willing to aid in restoring peace but is smart enough not to risk getting the splinters knocked off her head by jumping in when the fighters are clinched.

Laziness is a disease, declares one of the eminent doctors. The surprising fact is that most of the victims always look so distressingly healthy.

The harem has often figured in song and story and is one of the world's most famous settings for advertising cigarettes.

There is general rejoicing at Newberg, the Enterprise says, over the fact that a new and better cannery is being built.

"Inside information" is something that a surgeon has after the operation for appendicitis.

Who said this nation wasn't prepared? Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching.

Those new kahki suits would be almost enough inducement for a fellow to enlist.

Now it is up to the guessers to tell us how long the war with Mexico will last.
