PRIVETT-RUBY NUPTIALS AT BRIDE'S HOME

What was possibly the most elaborate wedding ever solemnized in eastern Multnomah, occurred on Wednesday evening, June 28, when Miss Eleanor Ruby, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Ruby, became the bride of Floyd L. Privett.

The hall decorations were entirely of palms and asparagus ferns, intermingled with canterbury bells, carried out in pastel shades. To the right the drawing room was carried out in the same effect. Adjoining was the music room, where the ceremony was performed by Rev. F. E. DuBois of the Church of the Strangers, assisted by Rev. H. N. Mount of the Vernon Presbyterian church, in front of a perfect bower of palms and canterbury bells. The decorations in the dining room were carried out in pastel shades of sweet peas, which, around the chandeliers, were made in three baskets, held individually by arch supports. Each basket was showered with ribbons hanging to the tables. On the center of the table and in each corner of the room was a colonial basket of sweet peas.

The bride who was given away by her father was dressed in heavy white satin, with an over drape of handsome fillet lace and a bodice of cloth of silver. The skirt was cut in round length and a court trail fell from the shoulders and a full length tulle veil which was held in place with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of orchids, lilies-of-the-valley and white Killarney roses, made in two parts, the one part thrown and caught by Miss Hieb and the other worn by the bride.

The maid of honor, Miss Kathryn Duerr, of New Martinsville, West Virginia, was dressed in pink taffeta with overskirt of chiffon cloth and silver lace. She carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas in pastel shades.

The bridesmaids, Miss Minda Frost of Portland, and Miss Leisia Ruby, sister of the bride, wore dresses of lavender taffeta, with pointed overskirts and deep frills of tulle. They carried muffs of sweet peas in the pastel shades and maiden hair fern.

The ring bearer, Mary Belle Billion, was dressed in white tulle and carried the two rings in calla lilies which were arrayed in a French basket of sweet peas.

Two little girls, Myrtle Clark of Salt Lake City, niece of Mr. Privett, and Heleen Harlow of Bellingham, Washington, were dressed in white tulle trimmed in pink rose buds and carried shepherd's crooks to which were fastened lavender and pink satin ribbons held in place with Cecil Bruner roses and maidenhair fern. Following were six girls: Mildred Bartholomew, Anna Dugan, Margaret DuBois, Miriam Oberg, all of Portland, Winnie Privett of Bellingham, Wash., sister of Mr. Privett and Annie Ryan of Vancouver. The six girls were dressed in white organdie, wearing shower corsage bouquets of Cecil Bruner roses and maidenhair fern, and formed an aisle with the ribbons for the bridal party.

Miss Lucille Kuntz of Salem, Ore., who played the wedding march, was dressed in pink flowered organdie with a corsage bouquet of Cecil Bruner roses. She also accompanied Mr. Alfred Schram of Salem, who sang "Oh, Promise Me" immediately preceding the entrance of the bridal party. Following the reception an elaborate luncheon was served to the one hundred and fifty guests present, Mrs. Carl Hollingsworth of Hood River serving ices and Mrs. Ray L. Smith of Lebanon, Oregon, at the coffee urn. Assisting in the dining room were Miss Marie Myers, Miss Nerina Coy Kendall and Miss Blodwin Williams all of Portland, dressed in pink and wearing Cecil Bruner roses. Presiding at the punch bowl were Miss Mildred McCauley and Miss Frankie Coy Kendall dressed in white and wearing Cecil Bruner roses.

In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Ruby, father and mother of the bride; Mrs. Privett of Bellingham, Wash., mother of the groom; Mrs. Clark of Salt Lake City, sister of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Privett; Miss Kathryn Duerr, Miss Minda Frost, Miss Leisia Ruby and Mr. W. Dugan, Jr., who acted as best man for Mr. Privett.

Mrs. Ruby's gown was of smoke colored charmeuse trimmed in lamie lace and orchid cloth of silver and wore a corsage of orchids and lilies-of-the-valley.

BANK OF GRESHAM COUNTY DEPOSITORY

The Bank of Gresham is now a full fledged County Depository, having received their first deposit of county funds amounting to several thousand dollars on the 27th inst. The Bank of Gresham has the distinction of being the only County Depository outside of the city of Portland.

In addition to the Bank of Gresham is a designated Depository for the United States Postal Savings Funds, official depository for the cities of Gresham and Fairview and a large number of merchants and citizens.

Karl A. Miller is the cashier and manager of the above institution and will be glad to meet all who wish to make banking connections with a live and up-to-date bank.—Adv.

BLOW-OFF VALVES TO BE PROTECTED

Claude Stockton of Gresham has been given the contract to build a number of small "houses" over the blow-off pipes along the Bull Run water main.

There is a blow-off at every gulch spanned by the pipes, similar to the one that caused so much trouble last winter here in Gresham by freezing and causing a bad leak. At that time a large covering was built after the escaping water had been controlled, and it is now the intention to guard against similar accidents by rebuilding all of them, with more packing space around the valves.

SCHNEIDER STUDIO IN NEW BUILDING

Maxwell Schneider has about finished moving his photo studio to the second story of the new Mathews building and is ready to meet his customers there for a better class of work than ever before.

The place has been elegantly fitted up for the reception of those who call, and now Gresham can boast of one of the neatest and best arranged studios in the state.

The family apartments are also on the same floor, a spacious reception room, being at the disposal of all visitors.

CELEBRATION DANCE AT BECKER'S HALL

There will be a grand celebration ball at Becker's hall, July 4, Corbett Heights, both afternoon and evening. This is the best equipped ball-room in the state with hardwood floor. Best of music. Supper served.

The Columbia highway passes the hall and those who go out that way next Tuesday will find it an agreeable place to stop for refreshments as well as for dancing if so inclined.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leighton and family of La Grande, Oregon, visited this week with Mrs. Leighton's mother, Mrs. P. A. Gould. They made the trip by auto and came by way of Seattle, coming from that city over the Pacific Highway and traveling 1200 miles. They left this morning for home by way of the Columbia River Highway. Mrs. Gould accompanied them as far as The Dalles, where she will make a brief visit with her daughter, Mrs. Della Look and family.

The Women of Woodcraft were entertained last Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. G. B. Middleton at her home, where a pleasant time was enjoyed. The lodge colors of red, white and green were carried out in house and table decorations. Piano solos were rendered by Miss Della Zimmerman of Troutdale. Mrs. W. E. Bates and Mrs. J. N. Clanhain sang a duet and Mrs. Bates a solo. Mrs. Middleton was assisted in serving by Miss Zimmerman and her niece, Mrs. Jack Zilm.

was dressed in grey satin and wore lavender sweet peas.

Mrs. Clark's gown was of gold colored charmeuse, and she wore pink sweet peas.

Miss Inez Goitra served the wedding cake. Miss McCauley got the ring, Miss Frost the wish bone and Miss Kuntz the button. Miss Hieb caught the bride's bouquet.

The guests were received by Mrs. Aronson of Portland, and Miss Goitra of Salem. Many handsome gifts were received by Mr. and Mrs. Privett and during the evening were in charge of Mrs. Zimmerman and Miss Magurn.

Mr. and Mrs. Privett left for a short wedding trip and after August 1st will receive their friends at their new home 1214 East Burnside street, which was Mr. Ruby's gift to the young couple.

GRAND PARADE IN HONOR OF THE NOMINEES

All Gresham people and all others from everywhere are given a special invitation to participate in the grand parade and ratification meeting to be held tomorrow evening in Portland in honor of the nomination of Charles E. Hughes for president, and Charles W. Fairbanks for vice president.

A special notice to the Outlook intimates the demonstration will not be left entirely to the men as the women are included in the invitation. Women will march in the big parade that will precede the open-air mass meeting at the Multnomah Club stadium. Women will join in the musical numbers planned to intersperse the addresses; and a woman yet to be announced, will be one of those to make a talk endorsing the nomination of Mr. Hughes.

It has been decided by the committee in charge of the ratification that it would be quite a one-sided affair if left to the men alone and they took steps early to make the gathering properly representative. Women are invited to join in freely with the men in all phases of the ratification demonstration.

The committee has met daily at noon at the Imperial Hotel to arrange final details of the meeting. The main events are well in hand already, but to perfect the arrangements and assure success of each detail it was thought best to get the committee together each day until the mass meeting is held.

George L. Baker has been placed in charge of the parade feature.

Speakers for the ratification meeting so far arranged are Governor Withycombe, Senator C. W. Fulton, A. E. Clark and Robert Tucker. Others will be added to this list.

TALE OF TIME WHEN GENERAL LANE FOUGHT

The unpleasant situation in Mexico will bring out some tales of the other Mexican war. One of them has already appeared, and it concerns no less a personage than the late General Joseph Lane, once a senator from Oregon, and the grandfather of Harry Lane, now senator from this state. The following account of his singular adventure is an episode of "Bad Blood Between Two Good Men," written by Edward T. Dickey, who served in an Indiana regiment in the Mexican war. It will be new to the people of Oregon, but is probably authentic. It is as follows:

The good men were Brigadier-General Joseph Lane, afterward of Oregon, and on the Breckenridge ticket in 1860 for vice-presidency, and Colonel James H. Lane, of the Third Indiana, who afterward settled in Kansas. Discussing some intimacies of the regiment the colonel intimated that the general was a man who disregarded his word. "The general struck at the colonel," the colonel dodged and struck the general in the face. They were then separated.

The general started away, saying as he went, "Colonel Lane, prepare yourself." The colonel brought his men into line and while he was saying to them that the trouble was his own and he desired them to take no part in it, the general was seen coming into camp with a rifle on his shoulder. Colonel Lane did not see him until he was within thirty yards. The general then stopped, and waited for the colonel to speak. "Are you ready, Colonel Lane?" The colonel turned to a man in the ranks to load his musket, and replied, "I'd soon be ready." As the colonel was about to take the musket the general was surrounded by a number of men who led him away. "I have no doubt," wrote Mr. Dickey, "that this saved the lives of both men, for had they exchanged shots the general would have killed the colonel and fifty musket charges would have found lodgment in the general's body."

GATZERT RUNS OVER RAPIDS AT CASCADES

For many years it was considered an impossible feat for a boat of any kind to come over the Cascade rapids and remain afloat. But the rapids seem to have lost their terrors to the men who run steamboats on the Columbia now-a-days, for it was only yesterday that the Bailey Gatzert came all the way from The Dalles to Portland down the open river, bringing a full load of freight and about fifty passengers.

The river is now at the proper stage for bringing boats over the rapids, and on several occasions a river steamer has been brought down from the upper river to Portland for use on the lower Columbia and Willamette. It was about forty years ago that the steamer Shoshone was brought from the upper Snake river in Idaho to Portland, and it was considered a miraculous feat at the time. But it was successful, for every precaution had been taken, and the adventure was heralded all over the coast as a remarkable performance.

A few years later the steamer Hassalo was brought over the Cascades in much the same way, and again in 1887 the Harvest Queen was made a great gala day, several thousand people having gone on excursion trains to Cascade locks to see the steamer make a mile a minute in the seething current of the rapids.

Since the locks have been in operation there has been no occasion for a steamer to come over the Cascade rapids until yesterday, when the Bailey Gatzert came down from The Dalles and found the locks covered with water and impassable. Then the captain decided to come anyway and made the trip successfully.

R. W. Thorpe, who has been employed at the Stephenson sawmill, boarded the Gatzert at that place on his way home to spend the Fourth. The steamer went to the head of the locks and found the water too high for passage. There was only the recourse of making the run over the rapids or tying up until the water goes down, and the trip that was once thought impossible was made in safety at the rate of a mile a minute with the steamer backing water all the way for six miles.

All the upper river pilots are familiar with the dangers of the rapids now and know where safety lies in making the run. The trip would be impossible in low water, but now the government gauge at the locks shows 44.5 tenths feet, which is sufficient to cover all the dangerous rocks but in no way lessens the current.

It is not everyone who can lay claim to having come over the Cascade rapids, perhaps not more than a hundred or so, and it is something to talk about.

Forethought.

People are learning that a little forethought often saves them a big expense. Here is an instance: E. W. Archer, Caldwell, Ohio, writes: "I do not believe that our family has been without Chamberlain's Colic, Diarrhoea Remedy since we commenced keeping house years ago. When we go on an extended visit we take it with us." For sale by Gresham Drug Co.—Adv.
