"The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins."

Official paper of the Town of Gresham, Oregon.

Official paper of the Town of Fairview, Oregon.

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the Postoffice at Gresham, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

ONE OUT OF TWELVE.

Too much legislation, too much regulation, too high taxes, constitute the great evil of too much government.

There is a general impression that, as compared with Germany or Russia, or even France, we are not governed very much in the United States; that government with us is only a loose, gauzy sort of garment, which does not touch us very intimately or bind us very much. But, if you take the total income of the people of the United States at forty billion dollars, something like eight per cent of it goes to government—that is, one dollar out of every twelve which every man makes goes into a government till. Obviously that is a pretty extensive interest.

To get a line on it, count up the other things that absorb as much as one dollar out of every twelve of your income. Aside from postal expenses paid out of postal revenue, the Federal government next year will probably be spending three dollars for every two that it spent in 1906. Advalorem tax levies in the several states rose from seven hundred and twenty-five millions in 1902 to thirteen hundred and fifty millions in 1912—the latest date reported on by the census bureau. Total revenue receipts of cities having thirty thousand inhabitants and upward rose from under four hundred millions in 1905 to more than nine hundred millions in 1915. Funded debts of the principal cities rose from nine hundred millions in 1902 to nineteen hundred millions in 1912.

We are certainly paying for quite a bit of government. Economy and efficiency in government are quite worth consideration, although they do not get much.

BRITISH WAR WIDOWS.

Theoretically that's a fine scheme which has been advanced for the disposal of British women who may be widowed by the war in Europe. It appears that women now outnumber men by more than 1,250,000 in the British isles, whereas, in some of the empire's oversea dominions men are in a large majority.

To redistribute these women, or as many of them as are war widows, when the conflict is over, the plan suggested is to send them to the dominions to remarry. A fund of $1,000,000 is being raised to defray the expense of their emigration and that of their children. The thing has been figured down to a nicety. It is a fine scheme—theoretically.

But it is not especially conducive to easy recruiting for the British army. A married man might be persuaded to enlist by the assurance that, if he were killed or dies of sickness, his wife would be sent across the sea to become the wife of some other man—some man whom neither he nor she had ever heard of—but the chances are aginst his patriotism being stimulated to any great extent by that assurance.

Some men even dislike to think of their wives being widows at all. This may be a selfish sort of attitude, but it exists nevertheless and there are men so constituted that they do not like the thought of their wives, even as widows, becoming the wives of other men. Some few, no doubt, would be so unreasonable as to object in their hearts to a plan which, however well intended, would send their widows long distances to marry strangers.

With these selfish thoughts possessing them, they might hesitate about joining the colors and taking a soldier's chance of leaving widowhood to be so promptly cheered and comforted. As a basic proposition, the normal man is willing to fight for his country when there is real occasion for doing so; but not for the sake of the assurance that some other man shall have his widow.

Perhaps Britain has all the soldiers she needs—now. There was a time, and not so very long ago, when it was different. Anyway, if the married men in the trenches or pounding away at the German lines near the Somme, ever get a moment to read the newspapers, it must stir their fighting blood a bit, and reconcile them to the prospect of a soldier's glorious death in the firing line, to learn that the plans are already on foot to ship their widows away for other men to marry, and their children for other men to train or brain, as the case may be.

From the standpoint of broad human interest, perhaps, this scheme has much to commend it; but a man is apt to take a somewhat narrow view of the case when his own widow is concerned. Incidentally, there may be cynics who will aver that this plan looks like a scheme to head off war widows' pensions.

We wonder if in forty years from the present time the residents of Gresham will be making improvements on their streets and find the remains of the hard surface paving that they are now laying. It is hardly probable.—Brownsville Times.

Berlin says the other side is paying a big price for the western drive. It is to be expected. In these days of prosperity there have been no bargain counter drives in the European war zone.

After a brief review of the synopsis of the income tax laws it looks very much as if we had been overlooked again in favor of some of the captains of industry like John D. and Andrew C.

It wouldn't surprise us a bit if the Germans were to install a subterrenean tube between Hamburg and the United States and establish a train service. And we would like to see them do it.

There is no harm in thinking seriously of what may come after the war. Contemplating the sweet bye-and-bye is all right so long as you don't neglect the howling now-and-now.

Just to show those grangers how we feel toward them we will let them have the first whack at testing our new hard surfaced Main street. It will be ready for them by Saturday.

The national rural credits law wasn't intended for the Mexicans, yet we'd suggest a loan of $2, on monthly installments, if it would induce them to keep quiet.

Meat prices lean upward," says a market report. Some stunt. Perhaps it meant to tell us something about lean meat and fat prices and got things mixed.

Since we have been able to kick off the top spread at night we have quit sending postcards to our absent friends that we were sleeping under blankets.

The Portland film censors seem to be determined to have the film artist press the button before the heroine has a good chance to finish her dressing.

If the Deutschland ever comes back we extend it a cordial invitation to come this way and take on about 10,000 cases of Columbia river salmon.

One of the most distressing and unsatisfactory ways of wasting time is to argue with a fool, and no man with three grains of sense will do it.

Pastor Wagner says one must be different after the war is over. The difference may consist principally of a shortage of legs and arms.

If you don't get the chance to go out camping this summer it will be in order to pitch your tent in the grove during fair week.

New Orleans demands heavy indemnity bond from jitney drivers.

Billiousness and Stomach Trouble.

"Two years ago I suffered from frequent attacks of stomach trouble and billiousness," writes Miss Emma Verbyke, Lima, Ohio. "I could eat very little food that agreed with me and I became so dizzy and sick at my stomach at times that I had to take hold of something to keep from falling. Seeing Chamberlain's Tablets advertised I decided to try them. I improved rapidly." For sale by Gresham Drug Co.—Adv.

RIGHT, WILL WIN.

Whenever individuals, organizations or corporations think they have the world by the tail, and all that is necessary to get results is to twist it, they are in for a sad awakening.

The so-called trusts proved this to themselves very clearly a few years ago.

Many of the labor organizations which of late have grown more powerful than any trust, are beginning to abuse their power and some of them are how due to hear the alarm clock and roll out of bed with a thud.

Nationally, the railway enginemen and trainmen have found that their demands have reached a point where they must reckon with the public and not the railroads. If their case is bad, they will get scant sympathy.

Locally, the longshoreman and freight handlers have found that force of arms can no longer intimidate the public. When the Chambers of Commerce in the largest cities on the coast combine to put a stop to conditions which are crippling and killing business and industries, it is time the agitators awakened to the fact that they are no longer dealing wih a few shipowners but are reckoning with the public as a whole.

Nobody has a fight on the union as a union but when an organization whether it be a labor combine or a capital combine, trys to force conditions on the public which are uncalled for, it finds in deep water.

RURAL CREDITS BILLS.

A few days ago it was announced in the newspapers that President Wilson had signed the national rural credits bill.

At the same time it was published widely that the state grange rural credits bill would find its way on the November ballot for the people to vote upon.

The two bills are almost similar, and a person would naturally like to know if they will conflict in any way if the Oregon bill becomes a law; or, will they both become operative together on the principle that "you pays your money and takes your choice."

In this connection, the following from the O. A. C. Press Bulletin concerning the Oregon measure, might well apply to the national bill:

If the proposed rural credits amendment is enacted by the people at the next regular election, it will go a long way toward relieving the farmer of the burden of debt and the excessive interest in commissions on the $30,000,000 farm indebtedness in this state. The average rate of interest on this indebtedness is but little under 9¼ per cent. Under the proposed bill the interest would be five per cent. To this would be added one per cent to pay off the principal and at the end of thirty-six years the entire indebtedness would be wiped out, the interest paid up and the claim settled on a payment of but six per cent annually on the entire amount borrowed. This would save one-third the annual interest bill and wipe out the debt in thirty-six years.

That shark business has gone far enough. They are interferring with the New Jersey mosquitoes and corporation laws.

Rubber, which was introduced into Europe in 1735, was used first for pencil erasers, next in waterproofing cloth, and finally in solution as a cement, though by now its vulcanized forms, especially that which goes into motor car tires, take precedence over all others in point of quantity consumed.
