Biggest Oil Output.

The output of oil wells from the wells of the country has reached the total of little less than 800,000 barrels a day—the largest daily average production in the history of the United States. These figures have been arrived at from a study of the statistics of runs and deliveries of the pipelines of the country for May, taken with the weekly reports from the Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter's correspondents in all the oil fields of the country. The production and consumption of oil have reached a parity.

The banner producing districts at present are the mid-continent, Louisiana, and gulf coast fields, with a total daily output of nearly 510,000 barrels. The mid-continent operators are drilling at the rate of nearly 1,400 wells a month, with more than the average number of gushers and large producers among the completions. The week's reports indicate that more crude is going into storage than has been possible under the conditions of stringency of supply, which marked the period prior to the opening of the spring drilling season. Already the warning has gone out that producers should proceed a little carefully and not break the market by pouring out a flood of new crude oil. The banner mark in the mid-continent field, as far as the output of crude oil was concerned, was attained in the spring of 1915, with a total of 400,000 barrels of new oil daily. So much has been said of late of increased demand and poverty of supply, that it has not been generally realized just what the mid-continent field had been doing during the last few weeks.

The production there is now 380,000 barrels a day—within 20,000 barrels of the highest ever attained—and any week may surpass this total.—New York Times.

A magnificent dramatic spectacle from the famous French classic of the Sea, is the most lavish production ever made, featuring Ida Schnall as "Undine", the beautiful water nymph assisted by two hundred beautiful mermaids, who are sure to please everyone with their diving and swimming stunts. This is altogether a beautiful and very interesting production, produced by the Blue Bird Feature Photoplay Co., and will be shown one night only.
