GRESHAM PEOPLE AND HAPPENINGS

A private letter received yesterday from Miss Jessie Young, formerly a high school instructor in Gresham, states that she is teaching in the high school of Clay Center, Kansas, where she has been employed since leaving here two years ago.

Miss Helen McCormick left yesterday for Seattle, where she will attend the University of Washington. Miss Vera Williams, of Eugene, is visiting her college friend, Miss Vaughn McCormick.

Mrs. Violet Thornton, of McMinnville, is here to spend the next two weeks with her mother, Mrs. P. A. Gouid.

Miss Elsie Calkins started today for Fort Klamath, where she will teach in the Indian Agency school. Miss Calkins is a graduate of Reed college in the 1916 class.

At the meeting of the Ladies' Aid society held at the parsonage last Wednesday, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: president, Mrs. C. M. Zimmerman; vice president, Mrs. C. J. Lundquist; secretary, Mrs. W. E. Beagle; treasurer, Mrs. C. E. Risher. The date of the regular monthly meeting was changed from the first to the fourth Wednesday of the month. Plans are already being laid for the annual chicken pie supper and parcel post sale to be held early in December.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Meyers, Mrs. M. Nystrom and daughter, Esther, returned last night from an auto trip up the Willamette valley, which lasted for five days. They passed through Corvallis, Albany, Eugene and other cities, camping or stopping at hotels.

A large tent has been secured by the local Women's Christian Temperance Union for use as temperance headquarters during the fair. Provisions will be made for the comfort of visitors and a program will be given each afternoon. A piano will add to the attractiveness of the place. Any voters not registered are urged to visit the tent and do so before the notary public, who will be in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Honey will leave soon for a visit in North Dakota.

Floyd Metzger is back from Seaside, where he worked during the vacation. He will leave soon for Corvallis for a year's study at Oregon Agricultural college.

Preaching services will be held at Zion Evangelical church next Sunday morning at 10:30. Rev. J. H. Karpenstein will preach.

Miss Mamie Hoss is enjoying a rest from her duties as bookkeeper for A. W. Metzger. She is spending a few days at Welches.

Mrs. A. W. Lindsey and granddaughter, of Boise, Idaho, who have been guests at the home of E. C. Lindsey for the past week, has gone to Portland for a short time and will soon leave for California.

Melvin Brugger, of Columbus, Nebraska, is visiting his brothers, Theodore and Andrew. The three brothers, with a fourth, John Brugger of Lents and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Karpenstein and the wives of Theodore, Andrew and John, made up two automobile roads which made the trip over the Columbia highway on Thursday. The trip was a continual round of surprise to all concerned. This was the first time in 34 years when all the brothers and sisters had been together.

A number of young people, members of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday school, met last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. St. Clair and held a jollification. Those present were Ellen Simonson, Mabel Michel, Gladys Wright, Grace Fieldhouse, Hannah Lane, Noma Fultz, Irene Miller, Eva Pullen, Mildred, Winifred and Margaret St. Clair, Glen Risher, Merrill and Mervin Good, Emil Lauber, Orville Zimmerman, Bayard Miller, Keith and Harold Lyman, Chase St. Clair, Mrs. W. E. Beagle and Mrs. St. Clair.

Thomas Ginder has just returned from a trip to Brightwood where he has been rusticated for a week or two.

An adventurous career has come to a more than usually adventurous end in the case of China Jim, who died recently, after for many years conducting a store on Pike's Peak. China Jim's body, en route for the land of his fathers' spirits was lost in the wreck of the Chyo Maru and all efforts to recover it have been vain.

Anna K. Gilman, dead in Boston, leaves one cent to each of her legal heirs.

EVERYBODY ELSE DOES.

They told her that to attempt such a thing would be unwise, and so straightway she must do it. To their arguments she replied that several women of her acquaintance had mastered the things, and even if she was a grandmother and not very tall or very robust, that was no reason at all why she shouldn't learn. "Everybody else does," she said; "so why not I?" So they agreed to teach her. In no time at all she was able, at a speed of ten miles an hour, and with nothing ahead of her but a seemingly endless stretch of smooth, deserted country road, to manipulate the iron beast with surprising dexterity. And since she loved the country and there were plenty of long stretches of country road, visions came into her mind of pleasant half hours after the morning work was done—speeding gently through aisles of exuberant corn, past fields or hay sweet with fragrance liberated by the mower, and down along the river where the branches of the sycamores jealously shielded the road from the fire of the sun. But her vision was interrupted by the approach of a bronzed king enthroned on a load of hay. Prudently she steered her iron beast into a fence corner while his horse sauntered by, smiling indulgently, for no doubt he had two or three at home.

In due time she mastered the superficial essentials of straight driving. Alone on the country road she imagined all kinds of tight situations, and invariably she came out safe and sound. And then she essayed the city streets—not the quiet little streets through which she found her way to the country, but the busy streets where there were traffic policemen and hundreds of automobiles and thousands of pedestrians—poor souls—who when run into or over can become excessively wroth, even when the offender is only an amateur unused to the streets which, as some see it, not the automobilists but the pedestrians make unsafe. Thereupon ensued a period of the utmost confusion. It is not enough to pull on the steering wheel and shout "Whoa." The perverse thing is not amenable to vocal persuasion. It must be kicked and prodded.

"Everybody else does," she maintained. As so, apparently, everybody else did. So did she. But meantime she contributed the following as her share in the destruction of the universe: One guaranteed collision bar, one bright and shiny fender, one chicken (which, however, proved upon examination to have passed to the great beyond some days previous, but that did not lessen the shock which came of having accidentally killed something), one new garage door, one ten-foot section of immaculate picket fence (in this instance there was a choice between a delivery wagon, captained by a somnolent youth, and the fence) and five sound nervous systems which had once been the unappreciated possessions of members of the family. But now she is content to sit back and let the others do it. No doubt she gets a certain satisfaction out of knowing that magic has nothing to do with their behavior in tight places. And certainly she is happy to have accomplished what they thought was beyond her. But it may be that she is looking about for new worlds to conquer, new problems to which she may bring her experience with the potent formula: "Everybody else does."

Canada has found such a profitable market in the United States for its calves that it shipped practically all of them out of the country, thereby causing a rennet famine which threatens to ruin the cheese industry. The only way out of that trouble seems to be to ship the milk and cream to the United States, so we may be drinking imported milk.

SUMMONS.

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for Multnomah County. Laura Martin, Plaintiff, vs. Joseph A. Martin, Defendant.

To Joseph A. Martin, the above named defendant:

In the name of the State of Oregon, you are hereby required to appear in said complaint filed against you in the above entitled court and cause on or before the 29th day of September, 1916, and if you fail to so appear and answer, for want thereof, the plaintiff will apply to the court for a judgment and decree as prayed for in plaintiff's complaint, to-wit: for a decree of this court annulling and dissolving and setting aside the bonds of matrimony now existing between the plaintiff and the defendant, upon the grounds and for the reasons set forth in said complaint; of the cruel and inhuman treatment of plaintiff by defendant and your failure to properly or at all provide for or support the plaintiff during the period of your married relation.

This summons is served upon you by publication in pursuance of an order made by the Honorable W. N. Gatens, judge of the above entitled court on the 16th day of August, 1916, which order prescribed that the summons in this suit would be served upon you by publication thereof, once a week for six consecutive weeks in the Gresham Outlook, a semi-weekly newspaper published and of general circulation in Multnomah County, State of Oregon, and that the first publication thereof be had on the 18th day of August, 1916, and the last publication thereof be had on the 29th day of September, 1916, both dates inclusive.

True Service to the Farmer

When you read about the Federal Farm Loan Law, just bear in mind these points about our bank:

In arranging a loan with us you know exactly with whom you are dealing. You do not have to let everybody know your business nor subject your farm and your affairs to investigation by strangers.

We do not ask you to guarantee the loans of nine or more other men not to become surety for farmers in less favored districts.

We do not require you to increase your loan so as to become an investor as well as a borrower.

We make no stipulation to prevent you from dismorgaging or freely selling your farm within five years if you so desire.

Think over these points. Meanwhile, if you want the best credit accommodations, consult us concerning your loan.
