The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins. Official paper of the Town of Gresham, Oregon. Official paper of the Town of Fairview, Oregon.

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the Postoffice at Gresham, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

SCHOOL PROBLEMS.

School Superintendent-elect, W. C. Alderson, has stated that he will not advocate the merger of all the districts in a county, under one board with the superintendent as its head.

The belief is growing that the district school cannot advance to its fullest value until it is placed under the direction and authority of men and women to whom teaching and school administration are a profession.

Except in the remoter sections the "little red schoolhouse" is already a thing of the past. Not that the little schools have all passed out or that they are not doing faithful educational work.

President Garfield said: "Mark Hopkins at one end of a log and a pupil at the other, constituted a university." But the present school requires more than one teacher, proper shelter and apparatus, desks that will not contribute to curvature of the spine and defective eyesight.

The teacher is in the greatest of all professions. When a state loses interest in its schools it is itself lost. The great army of teachers in the big cities gives some notion of the fact that Oregon, while claiming no perfection, is awake to the necessities and possibilities of her schools.

MILLER'S EMPIRE.

Two hundred thousand acres of land in southern Oregon will soon be in a fair way to be divided up into smaller sections and become wealth-producing for many persons instead of for one man who has held it in his own name for six years.

Henry Miller died in San Francisco a few weeks ago, aged 89 years. Starting life as a butcher boy he had a passion for acquiring and holding land.

Lux died in 1887 and in 1910 Miller acquired all the interest held by the twenty-seven heirs of Lux. After the land all became the property of Miller he owned 600,000 acres in California, 200,000 acres in Oregon and 200,000 in Nevada.

and had half a million cattle and sheep in equal proportions. Miller was often pointed out as the typical example of the poor boy who acquired wealth through industry.

This will probably be brought about through the divisions of the estate among the heirs. The "empire" so carefully builded is not likely long to survive its founder.

The single taxers' announcement that they will bring the thing up again in 1918 was wholly unnecessary. That is one of the things that can never, never die; but it can be swatted again just a little harder than it was this time.

The Outlook congratulates H. A. Lewis upon his election as state senator. He is in good company, as far as the county fair is concerned, and Gresham helped to elect them all.

By decree of the Italian government sugar has gone up to 24 cents a pound, due no doubt to the government's desire to imitate the war prosperity of the neutral nations.

The smaller towns of Oregon will nearly all have their innings at politics before the year ends. Gresham, always first, started the game last night.

The resolute spirit of the martyr is existent yet, as has been shown by the man who insisted on making good his freak election bet.

Had there been a Mrs. Hanley in all the other normally republican western states it wouldn't have happened.

All of the western states but Oregon will hereafter date events from the year of the landslide.

If rumor is to be trusted the de facto government in Mexico is almost de functo.

It is now pertinent to ask how many votes a brass band can swing?

Her Son Subject to Croup. "My son Edwin is subject to croup," writes Mrs. E. O. Irwin, New Kensington, Pa. "I put in many sleepless hours at night before I learned of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mothers need not fear this disease if they keep a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house and use it as directed. It always gave my boy relief." Obtainable everywhere.

NEUTRALITY'S LAST STAND.

Now that the election is over and President Wilson has been re-elected, it may not be amiss to say, without danger of being charged with partisan motives, that the president is himself fearful that this nation may yet become engulfed in war.

"This war is the last the United States can keep out of. I say that because I believe that the business of neutrality is over. Not because I want it to be over, but I mean this, that the war now is on such a scale that the position of neutrals sooner or later becomes intolerable."

If that be true, America should take the lead in an alliance of nations to maintain peace after war. This doctrine was first advanced by President Taft in connection with an organization designed to support it. It is not to be disputed that such a purpose would be highly desirable if attainable, but one has only to look back no further than the Franco-Prussian war to realize that such an undertaking is practically impossible unless the nature of man himself can be attuned to this broad principle.

Wars, generally speaking, are the outcome of either personal ambition or national greed. Nations are composed of individuals animated by similar aims. Consequently we cannot believe that the lofty purpose suggested by President Taft can be attained until the spirit of brotherly love shall be universal among individuals.

New Business Manager.

On November 1st, M. E. Smead severed his connection with the Portland Chamber of Commerce, and has assumed the position of business manager for The Oregon Voter.

Through his management of such events as Buyers' Week, and the many excursions that the old Commercial club and present Chamber of Commerce ran to various points of the Northwest, Mr. Smead has formed a very wide acquaintance among business men, especially in Oregon.

Notice.

A chicken dinner from 6 to 8 and an evening of enjoyment will be given at the Pleasant Valley grange hall, Saturday evening, November 18, 1916.

The proceeds go to defray the expenses of building a playshed for our school. Games will be played. Supper 25c. Everybody cordially invited.
