BORING

The local Odd Fellows and Rebekah lodges have elected officers for the ensuing term as follows: Noble grand, John Meyer; vice grand, Claude F. Cross; secretary, William A. Morand, re-elected; treasurer, W. R. Telford, re-elected.

Boring Rebekah lodge No. 213, officers elected were as follows: Sarah E. Frank, noble grand; Nora M. Richey, vice grand; Amy L. Morand, secretary, re-elected; Myrtle I. Telford, treasurer, re-elected. Both lodges are flourishing and having initiations almost every meeting night.

The Oregonia school here gave an entertainment and program in the I. O. O. F. hall Wednesday evening. There was a large attendance and everyone present seemed interested in the success of the school under the direction of Prof. L. H. Mallicoat, Miss Pearl Ruegg and Miss Hazel Goger. Following the program a Parent-Teacher association was organized and the following officers were elected to serve for one year: president, Mrs. Irma Schultz; vice-president, O. W. Boring; secretary, Miss Pearl Ruegg, and treasurer, Prof. L. H. Mallicoat. It is planned to hold monthly meetings and various topics relating to school and home life will be discussed. The next meeting of the association will be held at the schoolhouse Friday evening, December 22.

A road meeting was held in the I. O. O. F. hall Wednesday, November 29th, which voted a special road tax of five mills. John Meyers, present road supervisor, was unanimously elected to be recommended to the county court for supervisor for the coming year.

Union High School No. 1

Mrs. T. W. Atkinson left Saturday for Calgary, Canada, to visit her daughter.

Tuesday evening the orchestra met for practice at the home of Fred Smith. They are doing excellent work.

The church will give a bazaar in the Union high school building on December 16, 1916. The program committee has arranged a very interesting program and is hoping for a large attendance. Many pretty things will be on sale at the booths. This is an excellent opportunity to acquire many small Christmas gifts.

TROUTDALE

An election for the purpose of selecting city officers for the coming year will be held in Troutdale next Tuesday, December 4.

Don't forget the Ladies' Aid bazaar and supper on Saturday evening. A good time is assured and many articles will be on sale, suitable for Christmas gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Grievish left yesterday to live in Portland. L. M. Russell of Portland, succeeds Mr. Grievish as manager of the Cherry Park acres, and is moving out this week with his family to reside on the place.

The school children gave a Thanksgiving entertainment at Multnomah Farm last Wednesday afternoon, for the benefit of the inmates.

Another Hero.

To look at him, even closely, was to see nothing even remotely suggestive of the hero. The typical American hero—or is he especially American?—is tall; he was short. Where the hero has a heavy mane of glistening black hair, wavy and impeccably trimmed, he had a most imposing acreage of shiny poll; instead of the hero's traditional Greek nose, symbolic of aristocratic ancestors and a natural aptitude for leading men to do things they never could do but for a Greek nose to follow, he had a dogged little upturned nose, useful, perhaps, but far from beautiful. His chest arched, but instead of soaring like that of the hero, it arched the wrong way, and the span of his thin shoulders was no more than half that of the standard magazine cover lover. In a bathing suit he was a sight to behold. And as for his eyes they were so nearly concealed by heavy spectacles that as far as appearances went it mattered little whether he had any.

Certainly he did not appear to be a hero. Anyhow, he was well past the age when a man can be the hero of a romantic affair of the heart. Besides, he was married. Furthermore, he had five children, all in process of being educated, a mortgage on his home, an exacting spinster sister to look after, a little business in a side street which kept him tied body and soul, a fondness for strong cigars which he could not afford, and, lingering in the back of his head a firm belief, carefully nursed since his early boyhood, that with proper training he could become the champion lightweight boxer of the world. He never in all his life fought anybody taken a boxing lesson. But he had read everything about boxing that he could find, he knew the records of all the leading fighters, and twice in his life he had written to the sporting editor of his favorite newspaper pointing out errors in boxing news items.

Still, this is not enough to make him a hero. That part came in when it was discovered that he had never once revealed to his wife or children, much less to the spinster sister, the nature of his secret ambition. Year after year he had patiently yielded to the demands of a growing family. At length he even went so far as to sell some of his boxing books, which he had kept securely locked in an old cupboard in the back of his store. The money went for music lessons for his second daughter. He exulted over the sacrifice. If he could not achieve his own ambition he could at least see that his children had the chance. And yet he never told. His wife thinks he is a model husband with a model husband's limitations, and to his children he is just a plain father. His spinster sister nags him and seems to enjoy it. But he never retorts, nor is he in any way pugnacious, either in word or act, around the house. Every day since he first met his wife he has been tempted to tell her, but there is enough of the hero in him to fight it back. His third child, an only boy, came in one evening and between swabs at a bleeding nose announced that he had whipped the neighborhood bully. "You're your dad right over again," said the hero. His wife stared and his sister snuffed, but the hero stuck to his guns and faced them down.

So-called conversation of our water power, coal and oil lands by the government for the "benefit of future generations" is forcing the price of coal and oil so high that the present generation is hard put to find fuel and gasoline to carry on industrial development.

Though the soil of Ladakh, included in the state of Kashmir, is sterile and the climate severe, the country is a great source of supply of the wool used in the manufacture of Kashmir shawls.

Overland Automobiles

Which Do You Prefer?

Pullman or Freight?

No one would think of riding in a freight car if he could enjoy the comfort of a big, comfortable easy riding Pullman parlor car.

So with automobiles. Most of the popular priced cars ride like freight cars. This is due to the old fashioned type of spring.

Many manufacturers still continue to use them. The Overland does not. The 75 B Overland has the latest type of cantilever shock absorbing springs. As a result it is one of the easiest riding cars in the world. One demonstration will prove this. $635 f. o. b. Toledo.
