Always Rogues.

We are, at times, tempted to believe that there never were such rogues in the world as there are today. Without saying anything bad about anybody and without mentioning who it is we are not saying anything about, we must admit that we have come very close to a rogue or two not so many years ago in the administration of affairs in a city not so very far away. We are in a position at last to consider the situation from a far enough view to get a clear perspective. We have discovered in an old book, written almost a hundred years ago, the very sort of thing that has been going on under our noses. It may be humiliating to realize that people are no more clever than they were then and that the world is no worse off. Certainly it is a discouraging thing to consider that people are no more honest and that the world is not so much better off, either.

The advantage to be realized from the experiences related in the old book is not in its lessons in crime, but rather in its naive descriptions of the criminal administration of respectable affairs. It tells how it was all done and it is plain to be seen that it was done very much the same way then as it is now. Consider, for example, the methods of a certain lawyer, a man not welcomed in the best of society, but necessary to the successful career of many a rogue of an official. In the first place, the lawyer frequently called attention to the fact that no matter what accusations were brought against him, he remained calm, immovable—surely a very good idea. Beyond that he advised that in a critical situation, whenever affairs were approaching a solution, it was well to introduce into the case fresh issues, issues which had nothing to do with the affair in hand. This was with the object of producing confusion and of involving as many people as possible in the case so that nobody could understand anything about anything. He maintained that he was personally safe because when his affairs were going badly he got everybody implicated in them, even including the chief of police. It seems a simple enough theory to go by, but it was amazing with what strange results it worked.

The lawyer and his sharp practices were but one instance in the history of graft and intrigue that the old book relates. The point is, of course, that, with all this sort of thing still going on, we do not seem to be getting anywhere. We are neither more wicked and clever, nor more stupid and good. It naturally occurs to us that a new combination might be more effective. If cleverness and honesty could somehow be made to work together in the administration of public affairs, we might at least have something new to talk of and to think of and likely enough to enjoy.

Shaving is not labor, but a necessity, and the state has no right to deny a man the privilege granted a mule, according to a brief filed in the Iowa state supreme court at Des Moines by attorneys for a Davenport barber on complaint of the barbers' union for keeping his shop open on Sunday. "If a man can carry a mule on Sunday, he has a right to have his own head carried, in a manner of speaking," says the brief.

Bad Habits.

Those who breakfast at 8 o'clock or later, lunch at 12 and have dinner at 6 are almost certain to be troubled with indigestion. They do not allow time for one meal to digest before taking another. Not less than five hours should elapse between meals. If you are troubled with indigestion correct your habits and take Chamberlain's Tablets, and you may reasonably hope for a quick recovery. These tablets strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. Obtainable everywhere.—Ad.

TROUTDALE

Mrs. Van De Walker of Troutdale, who is a personal friend of Rev. John M. Dean, who is holding a series of meetings for the Y. M. C. A. of Portland says that it is well worth a trip to the city to hear him, as he is simply fine. He is doing a wonderful work among men.

Miss Belle Parsons, who is attending high school in Portland, spent the week-end with her father and Clarence here. She reports that her mother, who is taking treatments in Portland, is getting very much better, and expects to come home soon.

H. C. McGinnis, who was awarded a gold medal at the Panama-Pacific exposition in San Francisco, just last week received the medal and the certificate of award.

Ex-Chief of Police Slover, of Portland, gave a lecture in Troutdale at the church Tuesday of last week, in the interests of the Pacific Coast Rescue work. Mr. Miller, who was with him, added to the interest of the lecture with his songs, accompanying himself on the guitar. A goodly crowd was out to hear the talk.

The funeral of Mrs. Cooley, mother of Mrs. Dan Hurt, formerly of Troutdale, was held here in the church last Wednesday. Rev. I. B. Self, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Fairview, preached the funeral sermon. A quartet consisting of Mrs. J. A. Larsson, Mrs. L. A. Harlow, C. I. Raker and G. P. Lumsden sang the hymns.

Ed. Shroy and family left last Wednesday for Washougal, Washington, where they have rented a farm, going across the river on a scow. They have rented their place to J. R. Knarr.

Clarence Parsons, while returning from high school Tuesday of last week, on his bicycle, collided with an auto, and came out with one hand hurt and his face bruised considerably. Luckily for him it was mid-term examination week, and being exempt he did not have to go to school the rest of the week. He is about all right now, but will not enter in a beauty contest for a while.

The DeMoss family have arranged for a concert in Troutdale February 14th under the auspices of the Ladies Aid society. The place will be given later on.

ROCKWOOD

The Ladies' Industrial club will meet with Mrs. Cutler on Wednesday afternoon, January 31. All ladies are invited. Several members of the club spent an afternoon recently in Fairview, the guests of Rev. B. C. Brewster and wife.

MELROSE AND VICTORY.

The meeting of the Embroidery club has been postponed from February 1 to Thursday, February 8. All members and friends take notice of the change.

Immigrants and Poverty.

If the present blockade of immigration, which the war has forced upon this country, could be continued for a few years, the problem of dealing with poverty in New York city would almost solve itself. This is the conclusion reached by C. Loring Brace, secretary of the Children's Aid society of New York, which was founded in 1853, and since then has consistently striven to place orphaned children in homes instead of institutions. He stated that in the last ten years immigration has been on such a large scale that it has lowered the standard of living conditions, and this in turn has made the problem of dealing with poverty more serious. But lately there has been opportunity to work with the immigrants through their children without having the work undone by the arrival of new immigrants who bring their old-world customs and insist upon retaining them in this country. Concerning the care of dependent children, Mr. Brace said:

The number of orphans or deserted children placed permanently in families during the nine months ending June 30, was 296. Our agents have been tireless in their efforts in behalf of these homeless children, and all have secured excellent homes with every promise of doing well. We now have under our supervision in families 1,946 children. Since the founding of the Children's Aid society, in 1853, it has rescued and placed in homes with families in the country, where many have been legally adopted, 31,719 orphans and deserted children, of whom complete records are kept in the central office. In addition to this, the society has provided remunerative situations in the country for 29,479 older boys and girls, has aided 31,364 persons, mostly children, to reach friends and employment in the west, and has restored 12,628 runaways to parents—125,181 in all.

As a rule, most of the wards of this society become farmers and farmers' wives, but some of them have entered public life and business and been successful. One has become governor of a state, another governor of a territory, two members of congress, ten county officials, two mayors of cities, one a supreme court justice, thirty-five bankers, ninety-nine teachers, and many others have become successful merchants in rural communities.

FAIRVIEW

At the coming meeting of the Fairview grange, on February 3, the first contest program will be given, which will consist of a debate between the men and women members. The question to be discussed is "Resolved that the jitney service is quicker and better than the electric car and should be patronized." The affirmative will be supported by Mrs. J. W. Townsend, the leader of the female forces, assisted by Mrs. S. B. Hall and Miss Gladys Bliss. The negative will be defended by the Rev. I. B. Self, C. H. Stone and Blaine Turner. This will be the first meeting of a three-months' contest, upon which the grange has entered.

Miss Abbie Upham of the Home Mission Board of New York, will speak at the Presbyterian church at Fairview Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. She has been speaking in Portland and is said to be a splendid speaker. It is the chance of a life time to hear her. Her subject will be "Old things in new America." Special music of a high order will be a feature of the meeting. Everyone is most cordially invited to enjoy this treat.

A. W. Zimmerman has rented his farm at Fairview for a term of five years to Mr. Yaun, an expert dairyman. Mr. Yaun is excavating for an addition to the house, which will be erected at once. Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman are spending the winter in California.

Miss Rosalie Luscher returned home Saturday evening from the Portland hospital, where she has been since her accident of January 4. She is able to be about the house but is not entirely recovered.

The entertainment given by the DeMoss family under the auspices of the Women's society of the Presbyterian church, was well attended and much enjoyed. The gross receipts were $26.

The Rev. B. C. Brewster and Mrs. Brewster entertained at an informal luncheon on Saturday afternoon, when the following guests were present: Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Rowen, Mrs. A. J. Stone and son and Mrs. Stensland of Rockwood, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Dunbar, Mrs. Julia Snover, Mrs. S. C. Dixon and Mrs. J. W. Benecke of Fairview.

Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Stone, of Portland, spent the week-end with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Townsend.

Louis Stone, of Molalla is visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Stone.

Preaching services will be held at the Methodist church next Sunday evening, when the pastor, Rev. B. C. Brewster, will preach. The Epworth League will meet at 6:45 and will be led by Mrs. Dixon. The topic is "My attitude toward my social inferiors." All are welcome.

Dorothy Benecke and Merle Heslin are attending high school in Portland.

On exhibition in Springfield, Mass., is the working model of a dreadnought from the San Francisco fair. Everything on the little vessel works automatically, the band plays, sailors run around the decks, the wireless sends out messages, the ship gets underway and goes into action and her guns fire several broadsides.

In Oakland, Cal., an owl escaped from a bird store and wandered to Broadway. Traffic stopped and a crowd collected while the bird, blinded by the glare of the sun, blundered across the street. After some minutes a little boy picked the owl up and carried it back to the store and traffic was resumed.

Fred Gamish, of Newport, N. H., says he has just concluded the sale of an automobile in which the buyer turned in twelve fine Yorkshire pigs as part payment, and, in fact, so anxious was the farmer for the car that he also parted with his horse, two cows, a heifer and some calves.

Horseflesh as food was introduced into Gaul when the country was invaded by the Franks after the conquest by Julius Caesar. Records relating to 1494 show that it was eaten in Paris at that time. In several European countries this food is much used, and often from choice.

A newspaper in a Brazilian town 2,000 miles from the mouth of the Amazon gets all its telegraphic news by wireless.

As a result of some recent experiments, it is asserted that a good grade of paper can be made from grape vines.

A crimson geranium of Mrs. J. H. Savage at Henniker, N. H., bore seventy-six blossoms at one time.

The Habit of Taking Cold.
With many people taking cold is a habit, but fortunately one that is easily broken. Take a cold sponge bath every morning when you first get out of bed—not ice cold, but a temperature of about 90 degrees F. Also sleep with your window up. Do this and you will seldom take cold. When you do take cold take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and get rid of it as quickly as possible. Obtainable everywhere.—Ad.
