

BOARD FIGHTS FOR FARMERS AND BATTLES POTATO BUGS IN TWO STRONG RESOLUTIONS

Two very important matters, affecting the welfare of the farming community not only of this section but of the entire state, were taken up at yesterday's meeting of the Multnomah County Fair board. It is not usually the custom of the board to engage in other matters than propositions concerning the fair, but in this instance the board departed from its usual order of business to take up the question of appropriations of the state agricultural college extension service and urge its continuance by the legislature which threatens its destruction. The subjoined resolution concerning it was adopted unanimously and signed by all the directors except H. A. Lewis, who is now in Salem, and copies were ordered sent to the president of the state senate, the speaker of the house and every member of the Multnomah delegation in the legislature. It follows:

Whereas, We are convinced that the agricultural resources of the state of Oregon are far from being developed to their fullest extent, and

Whereas, We believe that the prosperity of this state is closely associated with the development of its agricultural resources, and

Whereas, We believe that the Extension Service of the Oregon Agricultural College, through its own machinery and that of the United States Department of Agriculture, with which it is closely associated, is doing and has done a great amount of good in the improvement of the agricultural condition of the state, thus affecting the prosperity of the state at large, and that the state appropriations now devoted to the Extension Service should be continuous in order to make it possible for the work to be made more stable, and that they should not be lessened, therefore be it

Resolved, That this board of directors of the Multnomah County Fair association, and that we, as representative farmers of this county, go on record as strongly opposing any legislation whereby the Extension Service of the Oregon Agricultural College will be abolished or crippled in the fulfillment of its aims and plans in regard to the improvement of the agricultural conditions of the state and that all possible aid be given said Extension Service wherever necessary to increase the efficiency of its work, which we believe to be of great value to all people of the state, and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to each member of the Multnomah county delegation in the state legislature and to Gus Moser, president of the senate, and to Speaker Stanfield, of the House of Representatives.

The other matter more directly concerns the great potato industry of Oregon, and especially of eastern Multnomah. It has been discovered that the Colorado potato beetle has gained a foothold in at least two localities in eastern Oregon and every effort is being made to prevent them from coming across the Cascades. The accompanying letter from Paul H. Spillman, county agricultural agent of Union county, is a timely warning of preparedness and to which the fair board gave its consideration.

County Agent S. B. Hall was assured of any assistance on the part of the fair association that it may be able to give. Mr. Hall will make every effort to prevent the introduction of the pest here for every imaginable reason, chief among which is the fact that California has strict quarantine laws and will bar all future shipments of potatoes from this state if the beetle ever shows itself here. In that event the potato industry of Oregon would be forever ruined. Following is Mr. Spillman's letter to Mr. Hall under date of January 22:

LaGrande, Ore., Jan. 22, 1916.
Mr. S. B. Hall,
County Agricultural Agent,
Gresham, Oregon.

Dear Hall:—I remember speaking at some length to one or more of the boys at the recent conferences held at O. A. C. relative to the Colorado potato beetle situation in our county. Undoubtedly you were not among them from the tone of your letter and am sorry that we did not get to discuss this matter at length while at Corvallis as you are about the first fellow I've run across that takes more than a passing interest in the subject.

The potato beetle has been in this county some three years or at least that is the first report of its presence. It is found in the Elgin and Imbler sections of the county, and during 1915 and 1916 the patches where this pest were found were sprayed, and this year will be more closely watched than ever. They have been found in the north end of the town of Elgin, but not in any of the farms in that district, while at Imbler they are found along a certain stretch of road about a mile from that town, both towns being in the northern part of the county. I have not been able to locate this pest in any other part of the county. However, I have it on good authority that they are present in both Baker and Wallowa counties and the entomologist at Pullman tells me that they are very common in six or seven counties in eastern Washington.

From this you will see that it is evident that this pest is firmly established in this part of the state, unless the two counties mentioned take some action in the matter. Personally I do not believe that they can be exterminated, but nevertheless I am going to do all in my power to try and get rid of them. So far I have found parties whose patches were affected with this pest, willing to co-operate in its control.

Prof. M. A. Yothers, Pullman, wrote me under date of August 16, 1916, in part as follows: "We have not attempted to limit the spread of the beetle here for there are and have been for a number of years thousands of infested patches in Idaho, and it would have been useless for us to attempt anything of the kind. In fact, it is so abundant that it has been necessary to follow the regular practice of spraying for this insect for the past three years. This season for the first time they are finding plenty of the beetles in the Sunnyside district in the central part of the state."

Editor Outlook:—Kindly publish this brief explanation in your paper concerning the cause of the misunderstanding as to which church should be used for the funeral of Mrs. Lane. Mr. Carlson was correct in holding the funeral at the Baptist church. That was his instruction and he had never been informed of anything different.

The M. E. church was proposed to Mr. Lane by myself, thinking the size and convenience were better than the Baptist church, and it was an oversight on my part in not notifying Mr. Carlson of the change. Trusting this will be sufficient, thoroughly exonerating Mr. Carlson of any blame whatsoever, that the public may be correctly informed. Yours truly,

MRS. ELLA ATON.

GOVERNMENT APPROPRIATIONS PASSED BY STATE LEGISLATURE SUNDAY CLOSING LAW KILLED

Features of the legislation enacted at Salem so far this week, and of other features killed are embraced in the passage of appropriation bills and the death of Dr. G. L. Tuff's Sunday closing measure. Following is a resume of some of the work done yesterday:

Appropriations totaling $344,555, the first big appropriation bills to go through both houses of the present legislature, were passed by the senate yesterday. They had previously passed the house.

This total of $344,555, all of which is for expenses and maintenance of various state departments and institutions for the next two years, was divided among five bills, introduced by the joint ways and means committee of the two houses.

The appropriations included $118,100 for expenses and maintenance of the offices of the Governor, Secretary of State and State Treasurer; $74,435 for the Oregon State Training School; $55,260 for the Oregon State school for the Deaf; $33,320 for the office of Attorney-General; and $59,440 for the upkeep of the state capitol and supreme court building.

$369,555 Now Appropriated. The only other appropriation measure that has passed both houses was a bill carried early in the session appropriating $25,000 toward the expenses of the legislature.

Adding this $25,000 to the money appropriated yesterday brings the sum total of actual appropriations to date to $369,555.

The senate had one of the busiest days of the session. When it adjourned shortly before 6 o'clock it had passed 19 bills, several of them being measures of importance, and had killed five others.

One of the bills that met an instantaneous and painless death was S. B. 146, Dr. G. L. Tuff's one-day-rest-in-seven measure. It died without even a rollcall, being indefinitely postponed automatically when an adverse report on it by the judiciary committee was adopted.

Feeding Wild Ducks. Senator Dimick's bill to prohibit the feeding or baiting of wild ducks, aimed particularly at Multnomah county sportsmen, was killed on final passage by a vote of 18 to 10.

The senate had thrashed out the wild-duck situation pretty thoroughly last Friday when nearly every senator on the floor spoke for or against a report by the Game Commission recommending indefinite postponement, which was voted down at the time.

So when Senator Garland shut off debate by moving the previous question there was no outcry.

Immediately thereafter the senate killed off another bill of Dimick's to prohibit the hunting of Chinese pheasants until October 1, 1919. Cusick and other senators pointed out that the State Fish and Game Commission already has authority to close the season on pheasants at its discretion.

With only five negative votes, the senate passed the so-called public necessity bill.

This measure, S. B. 165, modeled after the Wisconsin law and similar laws in other states, limits public utility competition by requiring that no competing company may enter the field against an established utility, unless the Public Service Commission, after a hearing, shall issue a certificate that the new utility is needed for the public convenience and necessity.

The fake advertising bill declared for by the Portland Ad club was passed after a lively debate, in which Senator Strayer headed the opposition. He declared the bill to be "vastly too drastic,—puts every man who advertises within the criminal laws," and it would be a "two-bladed ax that will do vastly more harm than good."

He wished to have the word "knowingly" inserted in the bill, so as to require that a man must knowingly advertise falsely before he would be liable under the act.

Senators Bishop and Smith, of Coos, both merchants, said the proposed law was a good one and not too drastic, though Smith said that he believed that "the merchant who tells the truth in an advertisement is wasting his money."

Moser, Orton and Farrell were others to defend the measure. Their views prevailed, only six senators voting no.

PIONEER METHODIST CHURCH OF FAIRVIEW MUST BE SOLD AND NEW ONE IS TO BE BUILT

Reference to a "For Sale" advertisement in the Outlook will recall the pioneer days of sixty-four years ago and some of the incidents in connection with the Methodist church at Fairview.

The Methodist church property there is for sale, having lost its usefulness in consequence of the onward march of progress, as seen in the county road improvement which has so isolated the church and parsonage as to make it almost inaccessible.

The "Panama Canal," which was a necessity on account of the railroad crossing over Main street in the town of Fairview, has left the church property at an elevation of fully twenty feet above the street. Only at a large expense could it be made accessible from the thoroughfare, yet it is valuable in other ways and for other purposes.

The property consists of two acres on which stands the church, parsonage and team shed. The society has decided to sell it and buy property elsewhere suitable to its needs and erect thereon another edifice.

The passing of the oldest church building in eastern Multnomah as a house of worship recalls some of the incidents connected therewith which have been furnished the Outlook for publication by D. S. Dunbar, the last surviving member of the pioneer days when the church was established.

Mr. Dunbar is past 72 years of age, and as a boy attended the organization meeting in 1853. His memory of all the incidents connected with the event are remarkably clear and interesting.

The society was organized at the home of E. R. Scott on April 10, 1853. The home of Mr. Scott stood on the north side of the Sandy road, a small cabin which was destroyed only a few years ago. It was there the Methodist church of Fairview was organized, its sponsors being Dr. John Crosby, A. C. Dunbar, R. P. Wilmot, Charles Fezette, E. R. Scott and Wilson Buxton.

For sixteen years the church had no home of its own but regular services were held during all that period. The little congregation met in the members' homes for awhile and then for a year or two in No. 7 schoolhouse two miles west of Fairview. Afterward it met in the Buxton schoolhouse near Troutdale, and it was not until 1869 that an earnest effort was made to build a church. Charles Fezette had taken up a donation land claim, a portion of which became the property of Hiram Smith and wife. It was they who gave the Methodist society a deed to the two acres where the church was built and which is now to be sold.

In those days this section was a part of Clackamas county and jurisdiction lines were rather vague. The "circuit" embraced nine congregations extending "all over," as Mr. Dunbar puts it. One of the meeting places that the preacher had to visit was at the Cascades and another was near Eagle Creek. The others were scattered and small, but Fairview was the central point.

When the deed to the property had been given the society, it proceeded to the erection of the church. The district was then in charge of Rev. Casper, and through his energy the edifice was constructed at a cost of $1200. The contractor was Abraham Kenzie. He had an assistant named Selee. The church was dedicated that same year by Rev. A. C. Fairchild. Eight years ago there was a celebration of the 49th anniversary of the dedication. Rev. C. L. Creevy was in charge at that time and the services were largely attended.

The property and its buildings have cost the society $2400, but it is now for sale at less than half that figure in order that another lot may be bought and a new church erected. The present trustees are Mrs. J. W. Benecke, Edwin Burlingame, Mrs. Jessie Zimmerman, Charles Shaw and Samuel Dickson. They are authorized to make the transfer and proceed with the new work.

The Fairview Methodist church has had a long list of pastors, some of whom have later become more or less famous. The most noted, probably, is Louis Albert Banks, who is now the pastor of a great church somewhere east and has attained celebrity as a writer and author.

Commencing with the first pastor the list is as follows: Revs. G. Gerish, Roe, Miller, Star, Skidmore, Skipworth, Hoberg, Alderson, Wig-sted, Sharp, Casper, Ferguson, C. E. Cline, White, Rounds, Chapman, Louis Albert Banks, Stevens, Ward, Monroe, Moyes, Hardingham, Bettis, Moore, Crandall, Kane, Struble, Rees, Creevy, Coleman, Rinehart, Jahn, Brown, and the present incumbent, B. C. Brewster, who has but recently entered upon his second year.

At a meeting of the Gresham fire department members last evening the resignation of Arthur Dixon as captain of the chemical company was accepted and F. Jennings, assistant, was promoted to fill the vacancy. John Hamlin was appointed as assistant.

The secretary, Harry Johnson made his monthly report, showing $498 in the general fund and $154.75 in the benefit fund on January 31.

The matter of a new automobile engine was discussed, but so far no definite plans have been presented for securing it.

FAMOUS WESTERN DRAMA TO BE SEEN IN PORTLAND

An unusually important theatrical offering is to be staged at Baker theater in Portland by The Alcazar Players for the week starting February 18th. It is Belasco's "The Girl of the Golden West," a superb scenic production and thrilling dramatic triumph that is worth anyone's while. Those contemplating a trip to the metropolis in the near future, should try to go some time that he or she can be there during the week the play is on. We can see all the important movies right here in our city, but the big dramatic hits make a trip to the metropolis necessary, and as for "The Girl of the Golden West" it is sure worth a trip there and back for the sole purpose alone of witnessing one of the foremost plays of the decade staged by a company of this standing.

The play deals with life in California during the golden days and its fame has spread to every home in the United States. The story could not possibly be even sketched in a few words, but it concerns the "girl" who keeps a saloon and dance hall in a mining town, and who, despite her surroundings is sweet and innocent, guarded from all harm by "her boys," and who falls in love with a "stranger" that turns out to be Ramerrez, the outlaw. Although there are a whole stage full of men in the cast, many of them highly important to the plot, there is but the one girl and an old squaw. It will be seen at The Baker (Portland) all week commencing Sunday matinee, February 18th with matinee Wednesday and Saturday.
