LONG PRISON TERM FOR ITALIAN LOVER

The romantic elopement of Michael DeBellis and 16-year-old Opal Davis of Fairview has come to an end with the prison bars at Salem closing behind the Italian for an indefinite term of from two to twenty years. DeBellis pleaded guilty to a statutory charge on Tuesday and was given the indeterminate sentence by Judge Gantenbein.

Deputy District Attorney Collier was ready for trial of the case. DeBellis had indicated that he was going to fight the charges and C. T. Haas had been appointed his attorney by the court. DeBellis was indicted on two other charges. One was contributing to the delinquency of a minor and the other was kidnapping.

DeBellis and the girl were located in Los Angeles about two months ago, and brought back to Portland by Sheriff Hurlburt.

'CALICO HOP' AT ROCKWOOD HALL

The "Calico hop," to be given by the Women's work committee of Rockwood grange tomorrow night, promises must come dressed in calico or gingham or they will be fined ten cents at the door. Men are not expected to dress up for the occasion and will be fined a like sum if they wear white collars.

There will be a surprise supper for which 25 cents a plate will be charged. A Portland orchestra has been engaged which will furnish all the latest music for the "steppers" as well as the old-fashioned tunes for the older set. Tickets will be 50 cents for men, ladies free. The dance will last until 3 o'clock.

FUNERAL TODAY OF MRS. HORACE KNOX

Mrs. Horace Knox passed away on Wednesday last at Good Samaritan hospital in Portland, where she had been taken for treatment. The funeral took place today from her late home in Kern Park, with interment in Clackamas cemetery. Mrs. Knox leaves a husband, a daughter, Iness and son Roscoe, who are grown young people, and a little son, Jimmie six years of age.

The Knox family is well known in Boring and vicinity, where they have lived and where they have many friends. Miss Iness is a graduate of union high school in Gresham in the class of 1916.

GRESHAM PEOPLE AND HAPPENINGS

Leslie St. Clair spent Thursday at home and assisted at the Outlook office.

Mrs. W. R. Burke arrived home Sunday night from California, where she has spent several months past.

Joseph Jr., the year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wooley, is recovering from a severe attack of pneumonia.

Justice Rollins has reopened his office in the Todd building on Main street recently vacated by James Elkington.

Mrs. L. T. Lusted and daughter, Miss Inez, are spending a few days in Portland visiting with the former's son, Harry Lusted and family.

Rev. S. G. Roper's new house in Thompson addition is finished and the family moved in this week. The house is neat and attractive and was built by Oscar Thoren.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Stanley are receiving the congratulations of their many friends upon the arrival of a second daughter at their home, born on Wednesday morning last.

The Tuesday Study club will meet at the library next Tuesday evening, February 27, and take up studies in the life and works of Oliver Wendell Holmes. Mrs. J. E. Metzger will present a paper on "Dr. Holmes' Life and Philosophy," and Mrs. Jas. Sterling, one on "Poetry of Holmes." Mrs. A. Hevel will review Elsie Venner. Roll call will be answered by quotations from Holmes.

Placer mining on Rogue river is claiming the attention of several men of Gresham and vicinity. Frank Wostell, A. Hevel, Otto Magnuson, C. W. Keller and Walter Brill left last week for West Fork station, on the horseshoe bend of Rogue river. Mr. Wostell and C. R. Keller have leased placer mine claims in that locality. The above named men will be employed on those claims. C. R. Keller expects to go to his mine in about a week.

POCKETS ARE SLIT AND MONEY STOLEN

A dispatch from Tacoma on Wednesday details the robbery of B. Weinstein, the man who last week invoiced the grocery stock of the Frakes store in Gresham. The dispatch reads:

Five thousand dollars in $100 and $50 bills were stolen from B. Weinstein, of Portland, a buyer of bankrupt stock, while he slept in the day coach of a Tacoma-bound train from Portland last night, according to his report to the Tacoma police.

Near Centralia, the conductor noticed Weinstein's pockets slit open. The conductor telegraphed to P. J. McMurray, chief of the Northern Pacific special agents here, but the latter was able to find no clew. Weinstein lives at 685 Second street, and was on the way to buy a bankrupt stock in Kent.

A new wharf, 666 feet long and 45 feet wide, which will accommodate the largest ships entering the harbor; was built last year at Hongkong. Lighters have hitherto handled the imports into and the exports from this port.

Canadian unions are taking up the high cost of living with the Dominion government.

Something Good
Those who hate nasty medicine should try Chamberlain's Tablets for constipation. They are pleasant to take and their effect is so agreeable and natural that you will not realize that it has been produced by a medicine. Obtainable everywhere.—Adv.

Difficulty in procuring tinsel goods in France is due to the sequestration by the government of many factories formerly devoted to this trade. A few plants have been allowed to run so as to avoid a complete stagnation of the industry.

Guatemala's annual corn production amounts to 6,000,000 quintals of 104.4 pounds each. This suffices for domestic consumption only, as corn is the most important food in that country. Beans rank next in importance as a national food.

Lost Hours.
Things do get hold of us. If we are men, business and politics and friends and family conventional amusements take charge of us. If we are women, we are likewise engrossed in housekeeping, club work, children, politics, literature, cards and every sort of thing. Men and women are alike possessed by plans for the future and the necessary accumulation of at least a moderate amount of wealth. The fact is that few men and perhaps fewer women have time to be just themselves. They have no time to lose, and it is only in time that is lost to other things that we are nothing and nobody but just ourselves.
It was in the sudden realization that it had been years since she had really lost any time that the Ordinary Woman remembered the wonderful sense of satisfaction with which she used to dwell upon the quotation concerning two lost hours. Golden hours they were called, and each one was supposed to be set with sixty diamond minutes. The quotation added that no reward was offered, for they could never be returned. Childish wrong impressions are often strangely correct. She had had the idea all along that lost hours were golden hours, that each lost minute was a diamond, and, consequently, she had enjoyed those lost hours as she had enjoyed no others. They had been hours of dreams, hours of forgotten lessons, hours of lying in tall grasses, hours of slipping away from unwashed dishes, hours of hiding in the apple tree with not even a book to remind her of things outside herself. They had not been selfish hours because they were too indolent to be selfish, and, although they had been indolent, they had been big with sensations. They had been golden hours—golden hours trimmed with the blue of the sky and the pink of apple blossoms. They had been diamond moments, for even now they flash in her memory as no hours of school or play can flash. The fact that no reward was offered troubled her not at all. They were reward enough in themselves. And if they could never be returned there were always other hours to lose.
Beyond the childish days, even after she knew that the quotation was intended to make small boys and girls regret every golden hour they had lost, she could find nothing to regret. Even then she loved the golden lost hours, hours lost in watching the moon above the lilacs, or the waves on the breakwaters, or the snow in the fields, or the crowds in the city streets. It is only now that she finds anything to regret and she regrets only that she has no more golden hours to lose, that her hours are not her own and that she can not do as she likes with them.
